In June last, the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council decided of the new Government, which is as back to their constituents. Mr. in the case of the Queen vs. Russell follows: that the Provincial Legislatures have no power to pass laws to restrict the sale of liquors. Their Lordships say :

Lordships say:

"It is to be observed that the power of granting licenses is not assigned to the Frovincial Legislatures for the purpose of regulating trade, but in order to the raising of a revenue for Provincial, local or municipal purposes." The Scott Act is not a fiscal law for raising revenue; on the contrary, the effect of it may be to destroy or diminish revenue. Indeed, it was a main objection to the Act that in the city of Fredericton it did in point of fact diminish the sources of municipal revenue. It is evident, therefore, that the matter of this Act is not within the class of subject No. 9, and consequently that it could not have been passed by the Provincial Legislature by virtue of any authority conferred upon it by that subsection."

No. 9 was one of the sections, was contended the Scott Act was until the 12th day of April. ultra vires the Dominion Parliament.

a matter of policy; it is a matter of necessity. If we wish to prevent the unrestrained sale of intoxicating liquors we must legislate immediately; for I take it that any man in this city or in any other part of Ontario can open his saloon and sellinguors, and there is not a court in the world can prevent his dois to be ready to pay the license of the Career memotr of Ontario. This is an open things which should exist. It is not a state of things which should exist. It is not a state of things which should be made a political plaything it is not a state of things which should be made a political cry, but it should be dealt with at once; and I am sure gentlemen on both instance of the Government, address themselves caimly and considerately to the means of doing warsy with kine conditions of things. And if the little produced was become regulations in restraint of the sale of intoxicating liquors we will supplem in any such power as their have be into the first clause, to the fellip where and the full subtraint confered upon this Parliament, by the full power and the full authority confered upon this Parliament, by the full power and the full authority confered upon this Parliament, by the full power and the full authority confered upon this Parliament, by the full power and the full authority confered upon this Parliament, by the full power and the full authority confered upon this Parliament, by the full power and the full authority confered upon this Parliament, by the full power and the full authority confered upon this Parliament, by the full power and the full authority confered upon this Parliament, by the full power and the full authority confered upon this Parliament, by the full power and the full authority confered upon this Parliament, by the full power and the full authority confered upon this Parliament, by the full power and the full authority confered upon this Parliament, by the full power and the full authority confered upon this Parliament, by the full power and the full authority confered upon
