WAVERLY HOTEL,

Newcastle, N. B., Wednesday, January 1, 1879,

'I'll put it up, then, 'said Kim, who was quite as eager to see his little sister's gift as she was. So the pretty case went on the sideboard, and Puggie unfastened a long, queer-looking bundle.
'Ohl ohl ohl' she exclaimed. 'A SCROFULA,

After which Teddy gave it some crumbs and made it squeal an accom-paniment to his funny little whistle. 'Jim is smart enough,' said Teddy, when his pet had gone through all the tricks he knew; 'but he doesn't like Father. He never comes out when Father's here.' While the children were still busy a heavy step was heard on the stairs. Jim, the little mouse, ran back in his Jim, the little mouse, ran back in his hole; Sissy caught hold of Teddy's hole; Sissy caught hold of Teddy's hand; and Kim waited to see what would come next. 'It is up here?' said a lond voice. 'Yes, sir, please,' replied/Maria. Teddy at once ran and opened the door. Two men were in the hallway holding part of a bedstead, while Marie was telling them where to bring it. Mrs. Christy said a few words in a low tone to the men, and very soon low tone to the men, and very soon years of labor. they entered the sick man's house as 'I s'pose it's all Teddy's work, for both, buy only bread.
