WHAT MEN LOVE.

When a man admires a new frock you have on what, nine times out of ten,
is the reason for his admiration?
Because it is the latest style?
Because it is an French model?
Because of the fine texture of the material it has?
If he is an average man, he is not likely to notice all these details. But if he is a man of taste, he will notice the difference between a man who wears a dress that is "made to order"
and a man who
is "made to look like a man's dress".Because it is an

Rabbit

And scraped their legs under their in the dear Old Bramble Patch was filled with pretty music in the winter time by these little people, as well as by the Canary Bird who lived in a gold cage just over the red geraniums in the long green box at the window sill."So you had your photograph taken," laughed Lady Love, the little rabbit's pretty mother, as she un-wound the woolen muffler and pulled off her bunny boy's cap.

"I hopped fast all the way because Professor Crow asked me to leave a letter at Mr. Buck's house," explained the little rabbit."Did he?" asked Lady Love.
"Mr. Buck broke the water pail in the school room," went on the bunny boy, taking off his overshoes. "A snowball slipped right out of his hoof as he was running by and whizzed through the open door. Professor Crow is going to make him pay for the pail. It was a bill I left at Mr.
Buck's house, not a letter.""Gracious goodness me," exclaimed Lady Love. "Professor Crow is very strict," and she smiled to herself as she opened the oven door to look at the Carrot Cakes.
Just then the telephone bell went.
"Tinkle, tinkle, tinkle, tinkle, Jingle, jingle, jingle, jingle!""Who is calling little me?
Mother's making the Turnip Tea," answered the little rabbit, just like that, quick as the wind that blows off pictures on the walls, including a beautiful one of the Queen, and about it are photographs, among which is a large one of the Princess Mary Viscountess Lascelles. The curtains and carpets are green, which is the predominant colour in the room and makes it restful to the eye.The bedroom used by the Prince is, in reality, a small dressing-room opening off a spacious bedroom; the Prince, however, preferred to have the smaller and more plainly furnished room as his sleeping apartment. The larger room was once they had York House as their Lon-
