

That Tired Feeling

Means danger. It is a serious condition and will lead to disastrous results if it is not overcome at once. It is a sure sign that the blood is impoverished and impure. The best remedy is

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla

Which makes rich, red blood, and thus gives strength and elasticity to the muscles, vigor to the brain and health and vitality to every part of the body. Hood's Sarsaparilla positively

Makes the Weak Strong

"I have used six bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla as a general tonic and have enjoyed the best of health. Although I had a strain of work I have had no sick spells for many months and no lost time, so I am overjoyed." THOMAS S. HILL, 201 Brunswick St., St. John, New Brunswick.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Is the Only

True Blood Purifier

Prominently in the public eye.

Hood's Pills cure habitual constipation. Price 25c. per box.

In the Sporting World.

Oklahoma Wants the Corbett-Fitzsimmons Bill.

A Purse Subscribes to the Two Year Old Turf Record Broken.

BASEBALL.

FLY. Frank Scheibek, the baseball player, has won his suit against Manager Van Derbeck for wages, but Judge Simpson, in rendering judgment yesterday, cut down his claim from $289.60 to $199.56, with $2 costs.

WRESTLING.

THE SANDOWN MEETING. London, Oct. 18.—The autumn meeting of the Sandown Park Club began yesterday, the principal event being the race for the Sandown Gold Cup, of 2,000 sovereigns. The race was won by J. Porter's Red Heart, Lord Arlington's Church Parade 2nd, Mr. J. M. Brooks' chestnut filly 3rd.

The Duke of Westminster's Omladina won the Sapling Plate, for which fourteen horses went to the post. Meli Melo was second, and Goldstein third.

RECORD BEATEN. Lexington, Ky., Oct. 18.—The two-year-old colt Tommy Britton yesterday wiped out all race records here. The record for 2-year old fillies of 2:15.6, held jointly by Silicon and Impetuous, was beaten by him by half a second. He won the $2,000 Lexington stake with ease from a field of three starters. Tommy Britton has not yet met defeat, and won his fifth race of the season today.

ATHLETICS.

THE COMING FIGHT. Dallas, Texas, Oct. 18.—George W. Taylor, chief of the fire department of Guthrie, Oklahoma, submitted to Secretary Wheeler a proposition that the citizens of Guthrie will deposit $15,000 cash to guarantee that there will be no interference with the Fitzsimmons-Corbett fight if held there. They propose to move the amphitheatre from Dallas free of charge, and erect it on the site at Guthrie without expense to the Florida Athletic Club. Secretary Wheeler stated the proposition to President Dan Stuart at Hot Springs for submission to those interested.

PEDESTRIAN RECORDS. Denver, Oct. 18.—W. P. Stanton has walked 100 yards, heel and toe, officially timed and judged, in 14.4 seconds. The previous record was 19 seconds, held by John Meagher, of Lawrence, Mass.

MANAGER HAYS'S SUCCESSOR. Joseph Ramsey, jun., of St. Louis, Mo., has been appointed to the position of general manager of the Washburn Railway, made vacant by the resignation of Mr. Hays.

Mr. Hays will come to Canada in a fortnight, and thoroughly inspect the Grand Trunk from Portland to Chicago, taking charge of the road as general manager on Jan. 1.

CURLING.

CLUBS REORGANIZED. Forest Club—Patron, J. F. Lister; patroness, Mrs. J. F. Lister; president, Dr. O. Totten; vice president, G. M. Vanvalkenburg; secretary-treasurer, H. J. Pettipiece; chaplain, Rev. E. Lyon Hutchinson; representative members, Geo. N. Matheson and Thos. McCracken; committee of management, president, vice-president and W. C. Boddy, A. F. Steele, and M. A. Smith; skippers G. M. Vanvalkenburg, Dr. Totten, W. C. Boddy, A. F. Steele and H. J. Pettipiece; honorary members, W. D. Griggs, of Woodstock, and the presidents of the Sarnia, St. Marys, Petrolia and Stratford clubs.

Embro Club—Patron, Geo. N. Matheson;

...Just fancy, five quire packet of fine quality, and five packets square envelopes to match, for 50c.

...New Books. Crockett's "A Gallows Way Herd," equal to, if not surpassing the Little Samboet, paper 50c, cloth 60c. Conan Doyle's "The Hound of the Baskin's," paper 50c, cloth 60c.

...Subscriptions. Received for all ladies and gentlemen who gave us such interesting addresses.

Thanking Miss Ibbotson, Montreal, Mr. W. C. Barron, Miss Nellie Burnip and Miss Gilmour, who added greatly

ANDERSON'S
163 Dundas St.

patroness, Miss L. Matheson; president, J. Bowles; vice-president, J. Campbell; representative members, G. M. Vanvalkenburg, Dr. Ross; chaplain, Rev. G. C. Peterson, Rev. W. J. Hindley; secretary-treasurer, R. A. Duncan; honorary members, J. Sutherland, M.P., Capt. Gordon; managing committee, M. McNeil, R. Geddes, A. Rosa.

Petrolia Club—President, R. D. Noble; vice-president, Robt. Jackson; secretary-treasurer, Alex. McQueen; committee of management, the president, vice-president and secretary-treasurer; chaplain, Rev. Neil McPherson; patron and patroness, Mr. and Mrs. Engleheart; skippers, Chamberlain, Archer, Bradley, Cameron, Woodward, Noble, Cooper, Fraser, Noble, McKee, Bell, tankard skippers, Woodward and Cooper.

THE WHEEL.

SPOKES. The trouble between the racing boards of the Canadian Wheelmen's Association and the L. A. W. over Fred Longhead, champion class A rider of Canada, has not yet been settled. Chairman Gideon claims the young man belongs in class B, while Chairman Orr, of Canada, has a decidedly different opinion on the subject. Bicycling World.

Walter Foster, at Napa, Cal., has broken the world's bicycle record for a quarter of a mile unpaced, making the distance in 24.35 seconds.

THE CLOSING MOMENTS

Of the King's Daughters and Sons Convention.

A Paper on "Faithfulness" by Mrs. Tilley—Reports from Several Circles—Thanks—Farewell.

THURSDAY AFTERNOON.

The closing session of the fourth convention of Ontario's King's Daughters and Sons was held in the Croydon Hall this afternoon. After the usual devotional exercises, the result of the election of officers was announced. Mrs. Austin, of Toronto was chosen provincial secretary, Mrs. Annie M. Brown, Toronto, recording secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Ann, of Ottawa, vice-president, and Mrs. Tilley, city, by virtue of her office as Dominion secretary, is president. The result was received with applause.

Ottawa was chosen as the next place of meeting.

Mrs. E. M. Tilley, of this city, presented a lengthy paper on "Faithfulness," which she had read at the women's meeting of the lay workers' convention of the Diocese of Huron. Mrs. Tilley had been led to the preparation of the paper by its having been again and again brought before her eyes and borne upon her mind, the sad hindrance to God's work, the dishonor brought upon his name and character, and the bad example set to others, who in their turn are influenced by their indifference and lack of faithfulness in duty on the part of professed followers.

The paper first dealt with the members' responsibility in church service, and then with their work, and how surely faithfulness in these things affects others. The great blessing lost by neglect of, or unfaithful attendance at, the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, was most eloquently spoken of, and in conclusion Mrs. Tilley urged upon the members to put away the dullness, the apathy and the indifference, and give each day at their very best, remembering that God has appointed a niche for them to fill, that no one else can fill them, and that the hours wasted could never be recalled.

CIRCLE REPORTS. The Cup of Cold Water Circle, Hamilton, W.R., organized in February, 1891, with eleven members. Meetings are held every two weeks, and are led by different members. No money has ever been raised by the circle, but the members pay 5 cents a meeting, whether present or absent, and 1 cent a meeting toward sending two delegates to the annual convention. The work of the circle was principally confined to visiting. During the year the members had been compelled to part with one of their number, Miss Maude Burnham, who died in February.

The Royal Helpers' Circle, of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, in Guelph, was organized with twenty members in July, 1892. In the year just closed the membership had been increased to 33. The funds raised were devoted to refurnishing of the ward in the general hospital.

The Watching Circle, of St. James' Church, Stratford, had a membership of 53. Thirty-nine were resident, 14 scattered, and three had joined as individual members. One of the scattered members had organized a circle in Morphet. All funds were raised by free will contributions.

Mrs. Gibbs, of Port Arthur, presented a general report on the circles of that town. There were five circles altogether, four of which were in connection with the church, and one being in connection with St. John's Episcopal Church. Three of these were formed six years ago, and have ever since constituted the relief corps of the town. During the six years nearly $2,000 have been raised through the treasurer's hands.

Perhaps the chief feature of Port Arthur's work was the purchase of an ambulance for the town at a cost of $800. The circle in connection with St. John's Church has procured a solid silver communion service. Many committees are working in the circle, one of which has taken care of the church and communion linen and service, and the less and keep the church in order. Another circle especially devotes its efforts to the procuring of Christmas dinners for the poor. Last winter it sent out 27 baskets, in each of which were a turkey, groceries and toys for the children of the household. The circles were especially careful in their methods of raising money. With the exception of $70 raised by a concert, the entire $3,000 was the result of free will offerings.

Mrs. Austin, of Toronto, reported verbally on the work in York county.

THANKS.

Resolutions were unanimously adopted.

Thanking the Bishop of Huron for his impressive Bible reading at the opening session.

Thanking the railroad and transportation companies for their kindness, and the press for the valuable reports and free distribution of papers.

Thanking the Dominion secretary for the able manner in which she occupied the chair.

Thanking Miss Annie Brown, of Toronto, for her faithful services as provincial secretary during the past two years; also Miss Margaret Brown, of London, for her valuable services as recording secretary for our convention.

Expressing hearty thanks to the officials of Croydon Hall and Park Avenue Presbyterian Church for the use of their buildings; to the ministers for their kindly words of cheer, and to all the ladies and gentlemen who gave us such interesting addresses.

Thanking Miss Ibbotson, Montreal, Mr. W. C. Barron, Miss Nellie Burnip and Miss Gilmour, who added greatly to the success of the public reception at the "Ys."

Thanking the hostesses who so generously and kindly opened their homes to the delegates and to the pages and decorating committee.

The following resolution was passed: "That we earnestly advise our members to obtain money for carrying on their philanthropic or church work by free will offerings or self-denial, or in cases where entertainments are held for this purpose, we urge that they shall be of such a character as shall bring no discredit upon the name of the Master to those who serve him."

The finance committee reported that $38.68 had been received towards convention expenses, of which $37.88 was taken as a collection at the First Presentation. The accounts paid so far were $38.40, leaving a balance of $20.28.

THE CLOSING MOMENTS.

"Can a circle make special rules for itself? asked one delegate when the question drawer was opened. "We had some members who frequented drinking places. We made a rule prohibiting the same, and the parties left the circle."

"Of course," replied Mrs. Tilley, "and a circle has the fullest liberty to say who can become members. I do not doubt but that your circle will flourish a great deal better in consequence of its action."

Another delegate wanted to know if there was any difference between an entertainment for the benefit of the poor and one for the church. Mrs. Gibbs thought it proper to have a musical entertainment with an admission fee, in aid of the poor. She favored the revival of nice entertainments.

Why are there not more circles of King's Sons? asked another.

Mrs. Tilley replied that the St. Andrew's Brotherhood had been formed in many places, thus taking the place of the King's Sons. The Christian Endeavor, too, was partly responsible for the scarcity of Sons' Circles.

"And how many members are there in dear Mrs. Gibbs' circle?" was the information a fourth delegate sought.

Mrs. Gibbs Twenty-eight in my circle; 105 in the five circles in Port Arthur.

A few minutes were spent in giving personal testimony as to the benefit of the order to the spiritual life of the members, and Mrs. Gibbs was called on to make a few closing remarks.

Touched by emotion at the thought of parting with so many of her co-workers, Mrs. Gibbs arose, and with tears in her eyes referred to the sadness of the moment. She was simply overcome, and asked the workers to forget anything she had said, which Mrs. Gibbs sounded just as gentle as if spoken by Mrs. Tilley. She wanted the Daughters to pray for her and remember her as she passed over to great lake on the west.

Mrs. Gibbs wanted you to simply make one public demonstration—that God helping, you will be more active. Every woman who has made such a resolve will lift up her hand with me.

Mrs. Gibbs was raised. "God be with you" was sung, the benediction pronounced, and the numerous delegates, after many a farewell handshake, departed for their respective homes.

WHITESIDE AS HAMLET.

A Gratifying Performance by the Rising Young Tragedian—A Large Audience.

When Walker Whiteside, then a youth to fame unknown, appeared before a slender audience in this city two years ago in a very imperfect but promising performance of Hamlet, critics said that he had little art but much genius, and would some day be great if he persevered. He has not only lived up to the prophecy, but has profited by the criticism. Last night's Hamlet showed a marvelous advance in studious insight and professional technique. Mr. Whiteside has greatly refined his methods and corrected many of his faults, notably the over-deliberate elocution and the excessive staginess that marred his first performance. While no one ever exhausts the possibilities of Hamlet or wholly satisfies the youthful actor realizes the ideal as nearly as any who have graced the American stage in recent years, and he has time before him. Though not heroic in appearance he has a mobile, wonderfully expressive face, and a rich and flexible voice, and a magnetic personality that stamps itself at once upon the audience.

His rendering of the soliloquies was original, luminous and scholarly. Perhaps the best was that beginning, "Oh, what a rogue and peasant slave am I," which brought him an enthusiastic curtain call. The immortal "To be or not to be" was spoken almost in a monotone. In the arrangement of the scenes Mr. Whiteside has shown admirable judgment, though one can scarcely understand the surprising liberties he takes with the text. Mr. Whiteside is to be praised for his magnificent stage settings and for his splendid company. His supporters, with one exception, were entirely new.

Mr. Saphore, as the ghost, was a Polonius and the first grave digger, was richly humorous. Miss Wolstan's Ophelia was sweet and true and Mr. Sturgeon's Laertes was spirited and robust.

It spoke well for the local taste that the audience was large and appreciative. Mr. Whiteside has established himself as a favorite in London.

AVENGING LENZ'S MURDER.

The Slayers of the American Bicyclist to be Brought to Justice.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 18.—Wm. A. Schatleben, the St. Louis wheelman, under date of Sept. 21, wrote his sister at Alton, Ill., giving her an account of his recent developments in his endeavors to bring to justice the murderers of Lenz, the cyclist who was killed in Turkey. He says in part: "After countless delays that are sufficient to drive insane an American accustomed to pushing affairs to an immediate conclusion, my hopes for winding up my affairs here are in a fair way of being realized. Yesterday I received the cheering intelligence that the committee on investigation is about ready to begin operations. It will be headed by Shakh Pasha, an official of the Sultan's court, and a favorite of the Sultan. Today I received a call from the Pasha, accompanied by the interpreter of the English consul and a retinue of army officers and attendants. Myself and my native interpreter and a friend whom I had safely brought from the side of a private conference which was then held.

"I laid before Shakh the names of the men I had every reason to believe were guilty of murdering Lenz. The immediate prosecution of the undertaking is promised by the Pasha."

A GREAT SPOUTER.

Fremont, Ohio, Oct. 18.—A monster oil well has been struck on the Jacobs farm, near Scott township. For three days it has spouted at the rate of two thousand barrels a day, and shows no sign of letting up. A acre of ground surrounding the well has been diked up, and is covered with oil a foot deep.

Charities Organizing.

Representative Gathering at the City Hall Last Night.

Committee Chosen to Report on the Cost of a Central Bureau.

Proposal to Establish a Labor Bureau and Saving Bank in Connection—Views Exposed by Different Speakers.

The charity meeting in the City Hall last night was attended by a couple of hundred people. The gathering, however, was very representative. Mayor Little occupied the chair, and on the platform with him were Bishop Baldwin, Canon Richardson, Rev. Wm. J. T. Hill, Rev. Benjamin Clement, Rev. A. L. Russell, Rev. E. N. English, Mr. Verschoyle Cronyn, Rev. Robert Johnston, and Mr. H. E. Gates, who was elected secretary of the meeting. Rev. W. J. Clark sent a letter of sympathy and regret at his inability to attend.

Other clergymen seated about the hall were: Deacon Innes, Canon Dann, Archdeacon Davis, Rev. J. G. Stuart, and Rev. Mr. Cunningham. Others present were: Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Parker, Mr. John Labatt and Misses Labatt, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Compin, Mr. and Mrs. Dr. Arnett, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Pearce, Mrs. Thornley, Mrs. J. W. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Macbeth, Mrs. (Rev.) English, Mrs. and Miss Hutchison, Miss Carling, Mrs. Frank Leonard, Misses Ibbotson (Montreal), Mrs. Chas. Shanly, Misses Kibbe, Mrs. Evans, Jos. T. Marks, Hubert Ashplant, C. R. Sayer, ex-Mayor Taylor, and many others.

In opening the meeting, the mayor said that in his connection with municipal affairs he had seen the great necessity of such a body of organized charity to prevent the overlapping by charitable societies, and to put down professional pauperism. Certain people made a habit of going from place to place to seek relief, while really deserving cases could not get help because they had not the effrontery that the others had. He then introduced

BISHOP BALDWIN.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be given in the best possible manner, and might afford the greatest amount of relief. All were one, he said, as far as the need of charity was concerned, and he drew attention to some of the necessities of the case. Some people, by attending different churches, obtained more relief than they should, and to prevent this a central committee was necessary. This central committee was to be composed of Boston, and all societies dispensing relief by this means obtained a bird's-eye view of all the charity work of the city.

The Bishop of Huron said that the meeting would have to consider the most feasible way of so systematizing the charities of the city that they might be