Miss McCorkindale Makes Big Plea at W. M. S. Convention.

WORK IS OUTLINED

Final Session of Former Methodist W. M. S. Held in London.

"There is a thrill in standing at the springs of a nation," said Miss Mc-Corkindale, W. C. T. U. organizer of Australia, in an address before the afternoon session of the final convention of the old Methodist W. M. S.

of the London district.

"As we in Australia are laying the foundations for a nation, so are you women in Canada. It is a privilege and a great responsibility to belong to a young country. The foundation must be laid in righteousness and truth." Miss McCorkindale went on to Miss McCorkindale went on to speak of her country, and to show something of the work that was being done by the women, particularly the missionary women. She spoke of the geographical position of Australia, which necessitates a different mode of life from that of Canada. of life from that of Canada.

Use Eucalyptus Tree.

The eucalyptus tree, a favorite growth in Australia, gave the speak-Indies. er a splendid opportunity for an il-lustration. She stated that there were 213 varieties, and that each tree absorbed ten times its own weight in water. Scientists took adventage of their absorbent qualities and trans-planted thousands of them in the swamps of Africa, where they soak ed up the moisture from low-lying lands and made a center free from fever. She compared the trees to people She told the women that Christ expected the same powers from them.

They were here, she said, to transform the world, and make it a better place for those who were to come in generations. Miss McCorkindale told another interesting story to illustrate the influence of Christian life. It was of a boy, in whom her Bible class of boys had taken an interest. When he was of school age, the Christian En-deavor society, of which she was a member, paid for a college educa-tion for the lad. Just as he had completed his term he took seriously ill, and the doctors could do nothing for him. His home was on probably the most heathen island of the group, and when he knew he could not recover, he demanded to be sent home. He went, and before he died he had converted the 200 people on the island, brough their visits to him at Today a Christian church er his grave.

Mrs. McEvoy Speaks. Mrs. J. M. McEvoy, president of the former Presbyterian W. M. S. of the London district, brought a meslage from her women. She told of the Presbyterian D. M. S. contribu-tion to the United church. Her paper outlined the mission fields and the work being done.

Mrs. R. S. Heard brought a message from the last board meeting. She stated that the London branch stood first in the number of auxiliaries, and that it stood second in its givings to the missionary cause. She also stated that 110,832 strangers had been cared for during the past year.

Mrs. Gordon Wright brought a mes-sage from the interim board meeting, which she and Mrs. Heard were priv-

MISS NETTIE JONES' PUPILS | APPEAR IN FINE RECITAL

The first of a series of interesting student recitals was given recently at the studio of Miss Nettie Jones, 346 Colborne street, when some of her vocal and piano students provided an attractive program. During the evening Miss Jones read a clever account of the origin and early de-velopment of opera.

The following pupils took part in the recital: Pearl Palmer, Leona Mottashed, Ruth Lucas, Bernice Border, Edna Timbrell, Edith Wil-Mrs. A. Leonard and Mrs. G. Baker.

Bobby Coon Determines To Discover Where Yowler Goes In the Moonlight

By THORNTON W. BURGESS. Bobby Coon knew that the sensible thing for him to do would be to curl up in his hollow tree and stay there But Bobby wasn't ready to do this.

No. sir, it wasn't quite late enough in the season. Bobby wasn't through laying up fat. He still had an appetite. So, though he knew that hunters were looking for him by day and wight. Bobby refused to stay at home. night. Bobby refused to stay at home, He slept most of the time during the day, but every night saw him out looking for more food in order that he might store up more fat under his skin.

But always Bobby was listening for the voice of a dog following his trail. It had happened at this season of the year every year since he could remember. Perhaps it was because Bobby always had escaped that he felt sure he could escape again. There were few tricks for fooling offertory, and the devotional period was led by Mrs. J. D. Omond.

Solution of the devotional period out dance which was given by Mrs. Ernest Watkins at the Jenkins at gallery, Toronto, last night, in honor know. They were talking feel like running particularly that night and, furthermore, he wanted to eat, not run. So he looked about for the quickest way of getting rid of that bothersome dog.

Now it happened that Yowler the Bob Cat had started out hunting that evening at just about the same time that Bobby had started out, As Bobby Coon ran he came to the fresh trail of Yowler the Bob Cat. A crafty look came into Bobby Coon's eyes. He turned and began to run a little faster and he ran in the same direction that Yowler the Bob Cat was going. The truth is Bobby was following Yowler's trail.

Now, Bobby was too fat to run very far. At the first opportunity he jumped up on an old stump and from there to a tree. Up this he climbed and from a fork high up he waited for what would happen. Hardly had he reached his perch when along came that dog down
