

GIVE SECRETS ON HOW TO ATTAIN OLD AGE AND HEALTH

Aged Brother Tells How To Live 150 Years Happily Despite Present-Day Rush

Edward Harris of Ridout Street Takes Physical Exercise at 87. While George Writes History of Canada at 92.

If you wish to learn how to live to be 150, how to write a book at an advanced age and how to grapple successfully with the problems of life, visit Edward and George Beecher Harris in their home, "Eldon House," at 92 years of age, overlooking the beautiful plateau of land just above the Thames River on Ridout street.

Edward Harris will give you the recipe for longevity, and George, the younger brother, will offer you the formula of happiness. The latter was born at "Eldon House," 87 old age, and is an old-time gentleman and sportsman whom almost everybody knows. Edward, who is 92 years, only recently came to visit his brother from Toronto. But he is an old Londoner, although only those who lived back in the heydays of '53 will remember him well.

At 92 years of age, Harris has completed the first volume of an extensive history of early Canada. He expects to finish the second and last in a short time. He is an extremely cultured man, a philosopher, and intimate of such celebrities as Lord Lansdowne, the Duke of Argyll, Lord F. O. Oliver, Sir John Lubbock, and many others who have passed away.

Some weeks ago the ninth edition of "Canada, the Making of a Nation," written by Edward Harris, was published. Four thousand copies were ordered by the late U. F. O. government. In the book, Mr. Harris stresses the need for "higher" immigration for Ontario. It shows a remarkably acute and original study of the economic situation in Ontario, and every line was written at an age when most men are well content to lie in bed and end their last days without thought of the busy modern world in which they live.

Mr. Harris is a great admirer of the late Henry Ward Beecher, the brilliant platform orator. Consequently, when asked the secret of long life, he replied, just as Henry Ward Beecher replied many years ago to a similar question.

"First of all make sure you've got a good father and mother," Mr. Harris said when the query was put to him. He went on:

"If we took care of ourselves we should live to be 150 years at least. But a man cuts 40 years off his life by his diet, and some more than that. In the old days, men lived to be 150, the advanced ages they do now because they knew nothing about the science of eating. In my time, all the blackguards who died between 25 and 30, but the world has progressed and they now manage to live until 40 and 45."

"I consider it an infamy, the way people of Ontario eat meat. Pork is the favorite dish—has been for centuries. The people have been the victims of more persons than any disease. In my time everybody ate salted pork. Salt is one of the worst things you can eat, and pork is worse than that. With the three largest lakes to draw from, Ontario should live almost exclusively on fish and vegetables."

"I consider I have cut my life short by at least 40 years, owing to my ignorance of diet when a young man. But the reason I did not die at 50 or thereabouts is because I discovered the wisdom of eating only certain foods. If I had known this sooner I would have added half a century to my life. Fifty years ago the young men never had afternoon tea. They had afternoon whiskey. If a boy of 18 did not take a few nips before going to bed, he would imagine himself an object of sympathy. The removal of the bar, however, has done away with the afternoon whiskey. It is an extremely demonstrated exercise which he says should be taken every morning."

He squatted to the floor and back several times slowly. It done very slowly a dozen times it is equal to walking six miles, he claims. He goes through a variety of such exercises each day despite his age.

Mr. Harris is looking forward with relish to participation in the Old Boys' reunion. In the '70s London was financially hard up, and citizens looked on Old Boys as slackers for not staying in Ontario. In those days the city became bankrupt. At council meetings the aldermen would vote to spend money by a show of hands, and if anybody failed to vote in the affirmative he was immediately fired out of town. This policy resulted disastrously for the city, and it has taken it until the present time to catch up.

"Favors Darwinian Theory." "Fifty years ago," he added, "London was not much of a place. Everything the city councilors did was wrong. The less said about the London of the nineteenth century the better. But for the errors of our fathers we would have been a city of 200,000 population."

Mr. Harris inclines to the Darwinian theory of descent of man. "I believe I am half monkey myself," he said. "I used to climb trees as fast as an ape."

George Beecher Harris substantiates everything his brother says, and more. George is the last of the old sportsmen of 50 years ago, whose riding and tennis had been seen in investigation of the two of them are living proof of the efficacy of their theory.

CITY POLICE ON WATCH FOR BANK BANDITS

description of the men, as given by one of the boys, tallied somewhat with that of the men wanted in Toronto. Police are looking for the men in question.

Taking Precautions. Describing the men, the boys said that one of them was of more than average height and clad in a brown suit. The other was quite a bit shorter and wearing a blue suit. The clothing of both men was shabby. Police officers of Toronto stated that one of the bandits was quite tall and that their clothing was not new.

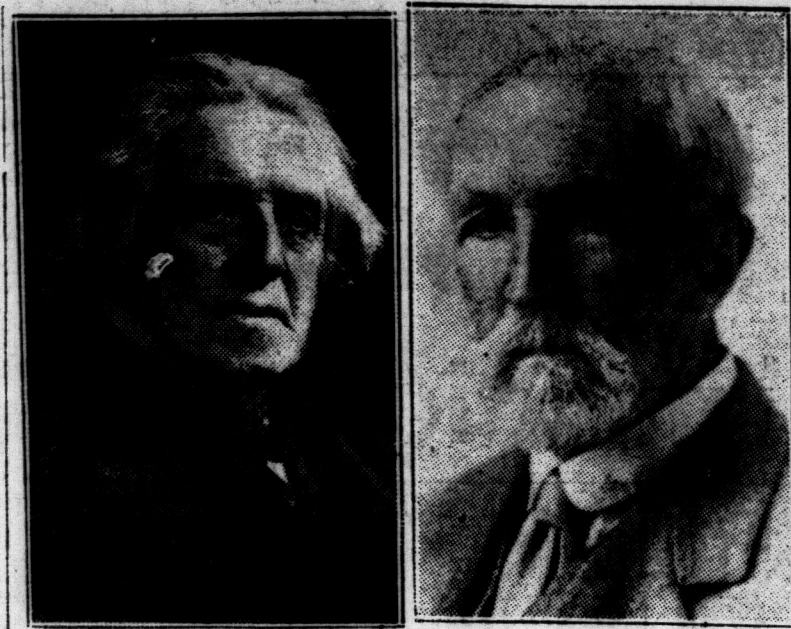

WITHOUT A CLUE.

Canadian Press Despatch. Toronto, July 25.—Local and provincial police admit that at present they are baffled in the pursuit of the six bandits who early Tuesday morning held up the messengers of several Toronto banks and escaped with a sum of money estimated at between $34,000 and $130,000 after seriously wounding three of the messengers in a sensational gun battle. The police are without any clue to the identification of the gunmen, and from out the numerous reports which have been received from various parts of the province of the presence of strange men "believed to be the bandits who shot and robbed Toronto bank messengers" there has come one single definite statement that would justify the belief that the police have any hope of immediately capturing the highwaymen. The authorities, however, are not ignoring the reports. In almost every instance where belief was expressed of the presence of the bandits, investigation was made, but without any tangible result.

Confers With Nickle.

General Victor Williams, commissioner of provincial police, and Assistant Commissioner Alfred Cuddy conferred with Attorney-General Nickle this morning on further steps of the provincial authorities for the apprehension of the bandits. Although no definite statement could be ascertained this morning, it is believed that the attorney-general's department will offer a reward for the capture of the gunmen in addition to the reward of $10,000 already announced by the Canadian Bankers' Association.

Strong protection was again afforded the bank messengers on their

The Bank of Montreal, Bank of Nova Scotia and the Sterling Bank sent their messengers to the clearing house on foot, while the others used motor cars with extra guards.

Hospital officials state that the condition of the three messengers is improving. The two men, Campbell and David, who were seriously wounded in the fight with the bandits, is much better and that they are on the way to recovery.

The bandits' car is described as being a seven-passenger touring, painted dark red or wine color, bearing the No. 21858, black mudguards, left front wheel slightly bent, left back door handle broken off, black wooden wheels, on left front door a strip of paper about one and a half inches wide scratched off, glass in the tail lamp out, four cord tires almost new, one tread tire on the tire carrier, and a rip in the back of the top on the right side.

Objects To City Handling Coal

The municipality of London will not purchase Alberta coal or any other kind of coal for sale to its citizens, if Mayor Wenig has anything to say about it.

"I should say not," his worship declared today. "The city had an experience along that line during 1922, and it is not long since we got rid of the last of it, and at a considerable loss at that price."

"We are not in the coal business. An enterprise of that nature should be left to the coal dealers. Nothing doing."

SUSPEND SENTENCE ON MAN FOR FRAUD IN HAMILTON

Canadian Press Despatch. Hamilton, July 25.—W. H. Larkin, who was prosecuted on a charge of false pretences, was allowed to go on suspended sentence today. He yesterday pleaded guilty. The charge against Larkin was that of selling phonograph records to purchasers to go with phonographs, which they were to have the agency for, but which he did not deliver.

One of the purchasers of the records this morning put in a plea for mercy. It is understood that Larkin, who is a native of Peterboro, is wanted in a number of other places for selling the records.

DECLARES TRADE FUTURE BRIGHT DESPITE CHAOS

J. E. Ray, Canadian Commissioner, Visits City To Give Concerns Solutions For Troubles.

TOURING DOMINION

Notwithstanding industrial chaos with which many lines of business are at present confronted, executives may look forward to the future with hope and confidence, if they will concentrate on the production of first-class goods at competitive prices.

This, in short, is the optimistic message of J. E. Ray, noted authority on industrial subjects and Canadian trade commissioner to Manchester, England, who arrived in London this morning.

Mr. Ray is making a tour of the business centres of Canada for the purpose of discussing export problems of Canadian manufacturers. This morning he visited many local industries to advise them on these problems. Among those visited were the Ruggles Truck Co., the Empire Mfg. Co., the Battle Creek Cornflakes Co., the Columbia Machine Works, London Concrete Machinery Co., London and Petrolia Barrel Works, Somerville Paper Box Co., McClary Mfg. Co., Spramotor Co., Silverwoods, Ltd., and many others.

Mr. Ray came to London primarily to discover how local concerns are equipped for export. He recently completed a survey of the Maritime Provinces, Quebec and the larger cities of Ontario. In an exclusive interview with The Advertiser, he offered many valuable observations in connection with export trade, and summarized the problems and future of Canadian industry in the clearest and understandable manner for which his numerous writings are noted.

"The difficulties confronting Canadian exporters in the export of England," Mr. Ray declared, "are probably greater than they have been in years. Canadian export trade to that area was extensive during the war, and the boom year of 1919, when competition was not a large factor in sales. Today, however, British manufacturers realize they must not only cut down costs month by month, to maintain old domestic trade as much as possible, but also to regain markets lost during the war when they were engaged in military production."

"The next twelve months will see a scramble for world trade unsurpassed in history. Great Britain, Germany and France are all struggling to regain the lost markets of old or to obtain a foothold in new markets. It is certainly a competitive struggle, and competition much stronger."

Mr. Ray added that sentiment in England was strongly in favor of Canadian goods, but it must be remembered, he cautioned, that sentiment is not a safe basis for trade. All exchanges of goods are governed by economic conditions and the ability to offer high-quality products at reasonable prices.

"Everywhere I find a remarkable interest in Canadian goods and a development of exports," continued Mr. Ray. "If Canadian manufacturers will only eliminate waste, whether it be in connection with materials or overhead charges, there should be great possibilities of creating extensive and permanent connections."

Want Canadian Trade.

The Canadian trade commissioner to Manchester added that he was much impressed with the activity of Canadian manufacturers in England. He certainly was worth while, he asserted, for the Canadian manufacturers to give more attention to the possibilities of export trade. There are splendid facilities for the reception and distribution of traffic and direct communication from Canada to the Atlantic ports to the warehouses of Manchester which is the centre of population of nine millions of people in a radius of 30 miles.

"The ship canal authorities of Manchester," he said, "are doing all in their power to attract Canadian goods. The advantages of a central port in the north of England are fully appreciated by Australia and New Zealand, who are making direct exports to produce thereto."

"Manufacturers in this country staidles such as high ocean freight rates, as impeding the flow of trade between Canada and Great Britain. If some reduction of freight rates were possible an undoubted impetus would be given Canadian exports."

Canada's chief competitor in wool products is Scandinavia, owing to its geographical situation, so it will be seen how beneficial a reduction of freight charges would be in the way of decreasing the difference in landed costs of the two countries.

Mr. Ray paid tribute to the indefatigable efforts of H. F. Poussett, director of the Commercial Intelligence Service, Ottawa, who is determined to do all in his power to make Canada a leading export country.

The distinguished visitor to London was astonished at the interest displayed by local manufacturers in regard to export trade. A number of city firms sent members of their staffs to caucuses on export trade held last winter in Toronto and McGill universities, under the auspices

German People Panicky Over Slumping of Mark

Bewildered Citizens Rush, With Bundles of Money, To Stores To Exchange Useless Currency For Anything Tangible.

Special Cable to The Advertiser.

Berlin, July 25.—The spectacle of a nation of people all striving to get rid of their money presented itself throughout Germany today. Bewildered Germans, unable to follow the drop of the paper marks into nothingness, are making desperate efforts to lay hands upon everything tangible in lieu of the practically worthless currency.

A panic is on in the minds of the people, who find the banks unable to supply the change for a ten dollar bill. Citizens are hurrying to shops with thousands of thousands mark notes, done up in paper bundles. "Give us anything you have to sell," they are demanding, in many instances, of harassed clerks and shopkeepers, who, midas-like, and everything they touch turning to these paper marks that are snowing under the once orderly economic life of Germany.

Pockets no longer are large enough to hold all the mark notes one requires for an excursion into the streets of Berlin. A familiar sight is the citizenry with its long bundles of money under arms or stuffed in huge handbags.

of the Commercial Intelligence Service. Such courses are calculated to educate their staffs in the foreign sections of their factories.

Mr. Ray has written two books on trade conditions in Canada and another will be published recently, but will need revision owing to the tremendous changes wrought in late months to industry. He is the author of other works having to do with the export and economic situations of British Columbia, Newfoundland, Cuba and other countries to London manufacturers," said Mr. Ray in closing the interview. "It is that they can look to the future with hope and confidence, if they will concentrate on the production of a first-class grade of goods at competitive prices."

Comparing the industrial conditions of Great Britain with those of Canada, Mr. Ray declared Canadians had reason to be congratulated for the activity of their factories, however small it may be, judged by war-time standards.

CAYUGA ODDFELLOWS HOLD SUCCESSFUL CARNIVAL

Special to The Advertiser.

Cayuga, July 25.—A street carnival under the auspices of the L. O. O. F. lodge was largely patronized. The Brunswick Trio of London were the entertainers of the evening, and their program delighted the audience. The gate receipts amounted to $240, and about $50 were realized from the dancing, with the Cayuga Oddfellows Prizes for dancing costumes.

Prizes for dancing costumes were won by George Flessette, Margaret Dunville, and Mesdames J. O. Best and C. Wild.

The date for Cayuga's civic holiday has been changed from August 14 to August 15 to allow for the preparation of a good bill of sports.

Windsor, July 25.—Charged with attempting to murder her husband, Proctor Watson, negro, whom she wounded with a shot from a .32 caliber revolver yesterday, Margaret Watson, 409 Catawqui street, stood mute when arraigned in the police court this afternoon. A remand for eight days was ordered. Watson has repudiated a confession which she is said to have made to the police after being arrested Tuesday night.

ARREST AFTER TWO YEARS ON CHARGE OF THEFT

Special to The Advertiser.

Windsor, July 25.—The 2-year-old case of the alleged theft of $5,000 from Cecil Smith, of Windsor, by George Welsh, a former Detroit taxi-cab driver, became international Tuesday night with the arrest of Welsh by Windsor authorities on a charge of larceny charge sworn to by Smith.

The Windsor police say the $5,000 which Welsh is charged with stealing was a payment for a load of whiskey which was to have been delivered to Smith. About a year ago Smith was sent to prison for violation of the prohibition law, but was freed following an appeal.

BOY ROBS MILK BOTTLES AND GOES TO GUELPH

Special to The Advertiser.

Windsor, July 25.—James Donohue, 17 years, 425 Hall avenue, today was found guilty of housebreaking and stealing money from milk bottles. Magistrate Gundy sentenced him to three months in two years in Ontario Reformatory. Leo Fournier, 1529 Gladstone avenue, also found guilty of similar offences. He pleaded to be allowed to return home as his assistance was needed by his aged parents. The court deferred sentence on Fournier until Saturday.

YOUR WEIGHT FOR A BLOW.

A bunch of Philadelphia messenger boys recently learned a new way of "beating" the automatic weighing machines, which are used in weighing in the cities. The first one, placing his mouth to the slot designed to receive the coin, gave a hard blow and then quickly jumped upon a platform and his weight was thereupon recorded. One after the other the remainder of the party went through the same performance, greatly to the amusement of a crowd of persons who had gathered to watch them.

BLENHEIM WILL HAVE WATERWORKS SYSTEM

Company Is Formed To Utilize Water From the School Well.

Special to The Advertiser.

Blenheim, July 25.—A short time ago the school board secured what it believed to be an abundance of water in a well drilled on the McCoubrey property back of their new continuation school. The board believes there is an ample supply of water not only for the schools but also for any citizens who may wish to use it. A movement was on foot recently to petition the council to take steps to install a system of waterworks in town provided they found that it could be accomplished at a certain figure. Sufficient signatures were not secured to the petition, many fearing for the taxes and cost. In the western part of the town a local syndicate has a very satisfactory waterworks system in which quite a number of citizens have their residences connected up.

It is now proposed to form a joint stock company to utilize the water from the school well for the benefit of citizens in the eastern section of the town. The proposed company have appointed provisional directors: E. W. Knight, R. W. Littlejohn, J. L. Rose, John C. Whittington and W. L. Shillington.

Already work has begun on the proposed system. Guy Pickering of Harwich is digging trenches on various streets, and water pipes are being laid in the city. The main line will cross Talbot pavement to serve some in the northeast ward.
