The wholesale trade has developed some activity during the week. It is most noticeable in drygoods, a good enquiry having sprung up for Christmas goods. A better tone pervades the hardware trade, in some lines of which prices are higher in consequence largely of the Democratic victory in the States. Business is rather more active ies, leather, boots and shoes, paints and oils. All that is seemingly now want-ed to make a brisk Christmas trade is seaonable weather.

Payments generally are rather more satisfactory and a better tone generally per vades trade

No particular change is reported. Patent, cough and horse medicines have the call. Payments fairly good.

Demand from the country continues brisk, and city trade shows considerable improvement. The demand for glass continues to be the feature of the trade. There is a fairly brisk demand for turpentine, and linseed oi! is quiet at unchanged prices. White lead continues dull, and no one seems anxious to push it. An improved demand is reported for plateglass. Glass continues to arrive freely. Payments show some improvement. PAINTS AND OILS.

produce better prices because of the rivalry The continued broken weather is having a beneficial effect on trade, and the improvement noted during the last couple of weeks is more marked. November shipments are up to date ahead of those for the same period last year. The feature of the trade is the demand for heavy goods. Collections are coming in fairly well.

There is a decided improvement in all lines, but without any change in values. Compared with a year ago the volume of trade is reported to be larger. Tanners of solored leather have all the orders they can sake care of. For sole and heavy harness

Trade generally shows some improvement, and payments seem more satisfactory. Demand for coffees is good, and prices on Rios are 1-4c to 3-8c higher outside, with the probability of further advances being soon chronicled. There is an increased demand for fruits of all kinds, with prices hardening in both Valencia raisins and currants; few dealers have any Valencias under 5½ to 5½ ca pound, and for the better grades 5½ to 6c are the provailing prices. The second and last direct shipment of Malaga fruit has just arrived. Canned goods are moving slowly at 85c to $1 for corn, peas and tomatoes; purchasers still holding off in anticipation of lower prices. Demand has fallen off considerably for salmon, but prices are firm at $1.45 up. Syrups and molasses are in fair demand at unchanged prices. Teas continue to occupy a strong position. The demand, although scarcely so heavy as a week ago, is still good. Demand is good for medium and low-priced Ceylon and Indian teas, and better value is being offered here in the latter than what they can be laid down. Receipts of Japans here are very light and green teas are strong. Medium and Ceylon teas have advanced 6c to 7c a pound during the week. "There has been a much larger demand of late than ever before from the country for plate-glass," remarked a dealer yestertake that as an evidence that the merchants are getting into better shape, for I don't think they would be putting in plateglass windows in their stores if things were bad with them. Then, as you know, there merchants and others living in the country to put plate-glass in their private dwellings. I suppose they have caught the idea from the fine plate-glass windows they have seen in the best residential parts of Toronto. O, yes, plate-glass windows are getting quite the thing in the country."

R. Cochran received the following despatch from Kennett, Hopkins & Co. to-day:
CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Wheat—Last visible statement stated that several of the W.W. markets showed a decrease and the largest of them, St. Louis, increased its stock but 41,000 bushels. Current receipts at primary winter markets show a marked decrease, indicating that before long they will be quite inconsiderable. Deliveries may keep up a while in northwest, but if market should improve under diminishing winter wheat receipts, northwestern farmers would be likely to hold back.

Walker & Co. to-day:

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Corn has been strong and higher. The buying has been by commission houses and those engaged in receiving business. Receipts continue very light and shippers begin to talk of scarcity of article. Receipts of hogs about as estimated, but prices lower. There was the same support given to the provision market which has been so noticeable for a few days past, and on the advance brokers had large orders to sell. It looks to us as if the bull party were trying to make a market on which to unload their holdings. Would not care to be a buyer just now.
