The principle of the case into court of this case will undoubted edity be a ruling that it is no violation of the Lord's Day Act to operate a street railway system on Sunday. The bringing of the case into court floor has entertained bigger crowds this week than in months, and the enthusiasm is bound to spread. Why shouldn't it? Think of the difference between these prices and what you're accustomed to pay. On sale Monday morning:

SUNDAY CARS A NECESSITY IN HAMILTON the Hamilton Street Railway for running cars on Sunday has all been heard. The argument in the case will take place at Osgoode Hall on a day to be appointed by Judge Rose, who conducted the proceedings at Hamilton. It is admitted that the Hamilton Railway Company has a right under its charter to operate its system on Sunday, provided such operation is not a violation of the Lord's Day Act. We do not see how the good people who are prosecuting this case can expect the judge to give a judgment in their favor after the testimony of the Rev. Canon Bland, rector of Christ Church Cathedral. The rev. gentle-man stated in the box that it was hiefly through the intercession of nembers of his congregation that the railway company was prevailed upon to establish an electric service on Sunday. After the old horse cars were taken off, a large numbed of ladies

Considered a reliable and practical authority on business matters in general, gives the following valuable suggestions in respect to life insurance:

"A policy maintained until maturity means profit. A policy allowed to lapse means loss.

"No new policy can compensate for the loss of one that is old.

"The man who, after assuring his life, allows his policy to lapse, even temporarily, makes a greater mistake than the man who fails to renew his fire policy; for, in the latter case, if his property is not consumed, he can reinsure it on the same terms as before. On the other hand, he who allows his life policy to lapse may, through accident or some impairment of health (unknown perhaps to himself), become unassurable. If he escapes these dangers he can only reinsure at an older age, and at a higher cos:
