

gular posts pass into Canada, from the States, and through the provinces, as far as Halifax.

Newspapers are printed at Quebec, Montreal, and Newark, in Upper Canada. They are carefully guarded against every thing that may excite discontents among the inhabitants, or encourage assaults upon religion and government.—Books are seldom printed, as the communication with England is constant, and all literary productions are obtained early, at a moderate price. No paper-mill has been erected, and that article is imported from abroad.

The climate is more congenial to commerce and agriculture, than is generally imagined. Accessible to the ocean, and vessels of heavy burden coming up the St. Laurence, as far as Montreal, great amends are made to those who do not reside on the borders of the sea. It is evident to every honest man, that it must be the wish of the people of the provinces, to be at peace with the people of the States. No substantial good could be gained, but much might be lost by the contest. No advantages could be derived to the States, as a government, by a war with Canada. Individuals actuated by a thirst for spoil, and by
