Yerkes rushed over and picked up Becker's grass-cutter and tossed it to Wagner, Snodgrass taking third. Murray came to time with a two-bagger into the left field bleachers, scoring Snodgrass and putting Becker on third.

Manager Stahl here called in Hall to pitch and Merkle, the first man to face him, fouled out to Carrigan. Carrigan dropped Herzog's difficult foul fly after a hard run and then the New Yorker doubled to centre and Becker and Murray came across with two runs. These put New York in front for the time being. There was wild excitement in the stands, but the inning ended when Myers went out, Wagner to Stahl.

Boston Desperate.

One run behind, Boston became desperate, but their eighth inning opened inauspiciously. Yerkes put up a high fly to Murray and Speaker went out, Mathewson to Merkle. Lewis hit for two bases. Fletcher then made his third error on Gardner's grounder and Lewis raced across the plate with the tieing run.

Merkle opened the tenth for New York with a solid drive to centre for three bases. After Herzog had been retired, Wagner to Stahl, and Myers had been passed purposely, McCormick, who had been sent in to bat for Fletcher, hit out a sacrifice fly to Lewis, scoring Merkle.

Yerkes opened the Red Sox tenth by dropping a grounder in front of the blate, which Wilson got and threw to Merkle. Then Speaker made his long triple, on which he scored on Wilson's error at the plate. Lewis doubled, but was left on the paths, Gardner going out, Doyle to Merkle, and Stahl Herzog to Boston Desperate. was left on the paths, Gardner going out, Doyle to Merkle, and Stahl, Herzog to Merkle

Following a quarrel about three weeks before the fatal day, Bateman demanded $500 from her as a share of the property. He wanted an order of separation because he claimed she was suffering from a serious disease. "The money is all mine and he will not get one cent of it," said she on one constant. Externally thereupon became occasion. Bateman thereupon became incensed and threatened to kill her. The witness saw Bateman a few days before the murder trying to shove his wife over a red hot stove. She seized a chair and thereby prevented him from doing it. Richard Luke said that he was attracted to the Bateman house by the crowds. After he had gone into the house and found the body of Mrs. Bateman lying on the floor, he said to Bateman, "You have murdered your wife," and the accused man made to comment. Bateman showed no resentment concerning the charge. He turned away and left the premises Blocked Would-be Rescuer

Frank Mallett, a hotelkeeper at Cedardale, said that he had known the Bateman couple for several years. Shortly after the alarm was given that the house was on fire he told Bateman about it. Bateman answered that he did not see any smoke. He asked Bateman if he would open the door and allow him to extinguish the fire and release his wife if she were in there. "I shall not touch the door," said Bateman angrily. "You had better be careful what you are about to do." The witness ultimately entered the house. The woman's bedroom was filled with smoke. Bateman's Savage Threat.

Mrs. Emily Colborne, who with her husband occupied a section of the Bateman house, was the first witness at the trial. She testified that the Bateman couple had never lived happily together. They were constantly quarrelling. A few weeks before the tragedy Bateman had threatened to kill his wife by chopping her head off and placing it on the fence, after which, he said, he would burn the home.

In an endeavor to obtain evidence as to whether the prisoner was rational or not, G. D. Conant, counsel for Bateman, cross-examined the witness severely. Mrs. Colborne said that Bateman, cross-examined the witness severely. Mrs. Colborne said that Bateman had a violent temper, which was very easily aroused and he was of a nervous temperament. She told of how the couple had fought over Mrs. Bateman was very quick-tempered and very rarely a day passed without a tiff.
