Members of the Every Day Club do not relish the idea of a crowd of disappointed people being sent away from their grounds through the obstinacy of one or two ball players.

A STABBING CASE IN THE POLICE COURT

Dennis Sullivan, Charged With Stabbing Policeman Perry, Remanded for Further Evidence—A Point du Chene Visitor.

Dennis Sullivan was arraigned before Judge Ritchie this morning, accused of stabbing Patrolman Ira Perry on Mill street, with a pocket knife, and stated that he recollected nothing of stabbing or resisting the officer while under arrest for intoxication, yesterday afternoon. Policeman Perry testified against Sullivan, and the hearing was conducted as a preliminary examination. Perry stated that Sullivan, whom he had arrested on numerous occasions, was obnoxious at the Grand Union Hotel yesterday, and at 3 o'clock was accused by the proprietor of snatching a woman from the hotel and fracturing her arm. He was not permitted in the hotel, and half an hour later Perry arrested Sullivan and took him into custody in front of the saloon on Pond street, adjoining the hotel. Sullivan was a source of annoyance to the proprietor of the hotel. He did not resist until he had almost reached North street, in the custody of the policeman, and unknown to Perry, snatched an open knife in his hand. While persuing the officer to release him, he brought the blade upward and against Perry's chest. He was promptly thrown to the pavement, and in the struggle jabbed the blade into the patrolman's side. Perry said he obtained possession of the knife and temporarily passed it to Joseph McElhenney until he subdued Sullivan. William Morris was liberated at the May term of the county court on suspended sentence for breaking and entering a freight car, attempted to intimidate a young man into giving the knife to Morris, who would decamp with it, but McElhenney did not heed him. Sullivan threatened to decapitate Perry, and subsequently in a cell, said he would blow the officer's head off, when he was once more at liberty. Perry said he was once more at liberty, and Sullivan threatened to stab him into his side until he reached home. Four hours later, the wound was made much in length, and Dr. G. A. B. Addy affixed a plaster to it. This morning it was quite painful, and he was ordered to remain quiet for a few days until the danger of blood poisoning had passed.

His Honor asked if Perry expiated Sullivan leaving the saloon, but the latter replied in the negative, and His Honor remarked that it was not generally known that the person who sells liquor to an intoxicated man is responsible for his acts after he departs from the barroom, and until the effects of the liquor have passed off.

Sullivan was remanded for the stabbing and after the evidence of Dr. Addy is adduced, will be committed for trial to the circuit court, which opens on Tuesday. He was also remanded for resistance, as the officer testified that Sullivan kicked violently both on Mill street and on a street in the city. He was fined $8 or two months for intoxication. William Brown, who was taken into custody for wandering on Market Square at midnight last night, said he was from Point du Chene and was penniless and friendless. He informed Patrolman Bowers that he was accommodated at the Royal Hotel on Wednesday night, and to the magistrate said he vacated the city only yesterday with a quantity of goods. He said a wife and six children awaited him in Point du Chene, and for their sake would prefer not to be detained in jail. A fine of $8 or two months was suspended, and Brown was ordered to vanish toward the Northumberland Strait as rapidly as his legs would convey him.

George Gibson, whose term of two months for intoxication expired early in the week, was taken into custody last night at Reed's Point, and was fined $8 or two months this morning.
