RUSSIA RAISING ANOTHER ARMY.

An Immense Force May Be Mobilized to Prosecute War to the End --- Fears Gen. Linevitch Cannot Reach Harbin Without Enormous Losses.

St. Petersburg, March 18.—2.10 p. m.—Telegraph communication with the retreating Russian army, has been cut for over twenty-four hours, but the authorities hope it is only temporary, declaring, that they have no information that the Japanese have reached the railroad in General Linevitch's rear.

Nevertheless, with the curtain down, the war office, naturally is the prey of the direst forebodings. The last word from the front was contained in a telegram from one of the Associated Press Russian correspondents, the only correspondent with the retiring army. It presaged an attack from the rear, The telegram, although dated Changtulu, (forty miles north of Tie Pass) at four o'clock, Thursday afternoon, was sent from Kaiyuan, thirty miles north of Tie Pass, and reached St. Petersburg, only this morning. It was very brief, saying simply that the army was retiring in good order, and destroying the railroad as it went, but was constantly pressed by the Japanese, the rear guard actions, being continuous. There were ominous words in the concluding sentence, as follows:—

"We believe the Japanese are making a wide turning movement north and that they are ready to fall upon us, when we get out of the ring-like group of mountains, which surround the Tie Pass Gorge."

Fear the Worst.

"In the long retreat to Harbin, the Russians only have the advantage of the Mandarin so far as Kai Yuan, whence it bears eastward to Khirin, whence the railroad continues north to Harbin. According to the general staff, however, a good wagon road runs parallel to the railroad.

But for an army of a quarter of a million men encumbered with impedimenta, with an active enemy relentlessly pursuing and operating on its flank, and the constant threat of the enemy closing the line of retreat, it is admitted that the single railroad and wagon road afford poor prospects of Gen. Linevitch being able to bring off the remnants of the army confided to his care without tremendous sacrifice of life. If the Japanese actually succeed in throwing a strong force across the line of retreat, it is recognized that the army might be forced to capitulate.

A New Army.

In the meantime, the mobilization of a new army has already begun in several provinces, although the order has not yet been published. A division of the Imperial Guards at St. Petersburg, received orders to-day.

The newspapers generally endorse Linevitch's selection as temporary commander-in-chief, on the ground that Kuropatkin's lack of success made his supercession imperative. At the same time, it is recognized that Kuropatkin's failure also rests on other shoulders, and pity is expressed at his sad fate.

Will Go as Far as Possible.

Tokio, March 18.—Beyond the general retirement of the Russians along the railway northward, little is known here of the details of the past three days' events in Manchuria. Various reports of the number of additional Russian prisonefs captured are in circulation. One estimate is 20,000. It is impossible to confirm the reports. There is much speculation over the extent of the Russian retirement. Harbin is regarded as a logical base, but it is suggested that they may attempt to hold the Kirim line. The country between Kiauan and Sungari is inhospitable. Formerly the conservative element in the high councils of Japan favored settling a limit to the Manchurian advance. It opposed advancing to Harbin, but the results of the victory at Mukden are removing opposition, and the bulk of opinion and judgment now favors pressing advantages and carrying the war to the utmost limits possible.

The Strikers Busy.

Warsaw, Mar. 18:—The directors of the Vistula railroad have asked for troops to guard the bridges between Siedlos and Molkin, in consequence of the receipt of letters threatening their destruction. There has been a recrudescence of strike agitation in the Lodz district. A party of strike leaders forced workmen at the mills at Pabianice to leave their work but the men refused. A fight followed, an agitator was killed and others wounded.

UNTRUE STORY ABOUT ST. JOHN.

Portland Paper Tells a Fake Yarn About St. John Harbor Being Frozen Up and Credits the Statement to Captain of Vessel From This Port.

(Portland Express, Mar. 16.)

St. John, N. B., "the port which never freezes", is having about all the trouble it cares to have with ice this winter, and its declaration that it had one great advantage over Portland, that its harbor was always free of ice while Portland's was not, has been proven false. This winter the whole thing has been turned about and Portland has been practically free from ice while St. John has had all kinds of troubles with it.

Vessels have been frozen in and damaged and now the steamer Hilda arrives from St. John with coal, which she took from two barges which are still frozen in there notwithstanding that spring is at hand.

The Hilda arrived at 6 o'clock last night, with over 1,538 tons of coal consigned to William M. Bradley. Captain Chambers reports that the ice conditions at Parrsboro, N. S., and in Nova Scotia have never been worse.

Early in February barges 6 and 7, both of which are so well known here, put into St. John, N. B. There they caught in the big freeze and have not been able to get free since that time. The Hilda this week was sent over to St. John to get the cargoes of the two barges and bring them to this port and so, after being over six weeks on the road, they finally have reached their destination.

Captain Chambers reports that it was 10 degrees below zero down there one morning this week, which shows what kind of weather is being experienced in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

The above story was shown to a number of shipping men at this port today, who laughed over it, saying at the same time, that the person who penned that story must be off his base. Who ever heard of the harbor of St. John, N. B., freezing over in winter? Not even the slips around and about the harbor ever freeze, because of the great fall and rise of the tide, and the temperature of water, which Captain Thompson ably described in an article he wrote recently, and published in one of the Portland papers, stating that the Bay of Fundy contained very little ice, as compared with the New England ports along the New England coast.

As to the steamer Hilda, Captain Chambers, which vessel arrived here on March 2nd., from Portland, Maine and was chartered to load coal at Parrsboro, on Wednesday the 1st of March., the steamer arrived at Spencer's Island, near Parrsboro harbor, at 10 a. m. She could get no further on account of the ice, and was headed for St. John, to await order of the charter parties. The steamer was docked at the corporation pier, and was loaded with coal from barges No. 6 and 7, which were towed alongside from the west side of the harbor. All the barges, six or seven of them, come from Parrsboro to go into winter quarters. All loaded with coal, and when the Hilda got orders to load here, the barges above mentioned were put alongside of her. No sign of ice could be seen near or around the coal barges. If captain Chambers made the above statement to the Portland Express, it is up to him to contradict it. Neither his vessel nor any other was ever frozen in here. It would be an impossibility.

LIQUOR IN DRUGSTORES.

Two Express Wagon Loads Captured in a Maine Town Last Night.

Biddeford, Me., March 18.—A conference was held yesterday between County Attorney George A. Emery, Sheriff Athorne and the Deputy Sheriffs of Biddeford and Saco, looking to the strict enforcement of the prohibitory law in York county.

County Attorney Emery stated, after the conference, that today the mayors and chiefs of police in Biddeford and Saco, would be notified that they would be expected to assist the deputy sheriffs to the utmost of their power in enforcing the law, and if they failed to do so the enforcement commissioners would be appealed to. The county attorney said further that he had some surprises in store, but he would give no intimation as to their nature.

Just at dark last night, three deputy sheriffs started out to visit the drug stores in this city, and from four of them they secured enough liquors of all descriptions to fill two express wagons. The liquors were taken to the storehouse on Elm street, and the druggists were summoned to appear in court tomorrow to answer the charge of illegally keeping liquor for sale.

The raids created considerable excitement and last night it was quite impossible to obtain liquor for any purpose in the city.

GERMANY'S LITTLE BILL.

Wants Great Britain and Uncle Sam to Pay Up.

Berlin, March 18.—The settlement of the Samoan claims, has become a rather touchy point with the foreign office, as it is not understood why so small a sum as $120,000 should cause the United States and Great Britain to hesitate in the payment.

The delay of years has, it is pointed out, been out of proportion to the amount of the claims, and as the damages are owing, according to the arbitrator, to a lot of indigent persons, the impression here, is that Great Britain and the United States have shown delay, amounting to indifference.

It is admitted unofficially, however, that the claims for $120,000, which were prepared by an American lawyer, are in excess of the actual loss. Germany has not made any proposition to the United States, or Great Britain, but would probably accept one-half the amount of the claims if it was offered. The sum of $25,000 mentioned in an American despatch, as being all the claims are worth, is looked on here as a sort of bartering offer, not becoming the subject in controversy.

The German government has informed the United States and Great Britain, as a result of negotiations, that were begun, March 1st. that she is about to make a joint offer.

A NEW DINING ROOM.

One of the most artistic dining-rooms in the north end, is that of Daniel J. Purdy, M. P. P.

In consequence of a fire, which occurred in Mr. Purdy's residence, some weeks ago, it was necessary to make extensive alterations, and while these were in progress, it was decided to place a bay window in the northern side of the room. This not only adds to the size of the apartment, but makes it very light and cheerful.

The walls and ceiling have been covered with stamped metal sheathing, of an artistic design, having a deep and richly-ornamented cornice. The metal has been laid on, so nicely, that it is impossible to detect the joints. The design has been chosen with excellent taste. The painting and decorating are also in harmony with the general surroundings.

To the left of the entrance, is a small alcove in which the sideboard will be placed; and at the top of this recess, a dainty grill of quartered oak, has been fitted. The room is also fitted with a neat electric chandelier.

With regard to a statement made in a morning paper that the ambulance failed to respond to a call to Britain street last night; it was learned by the Times that the roads in that part of the city are completely bare of snow, and are thus unfit for driving. In any case the ambulance is not supposed to be called for a common drunk as this was thought to be.

Premier Tweedie arrived last night from Fredericton. He will return to the Capital this evening.

The Times New Reporter.

A fine example of growing toleration was the drinking of toasts in orangeade at a C. M. B. A. dinner on St. Patrick's night.

✣ ✣ ✣

Mr. Peter Binks will address the Hen Club this evening, and make a complete analytical comparison between the odor in the cabins of Wm. Lung, and that in the upper end of the country market, with reference also to several fertilizer factories, he has visited. It is the opinion of Mr. Binks that there is more power to taint food in the country market article than in either Wm. Lung's cabins or any fertilizer factory he has seen. He tried an experiment on some butter, and found that after ten minutes exposure in the market it was rejected by his pet dog, which is usually very fond of butter. Mr. Banks thinks the city has a good thing in that country market stench, if only some use could be made of it.
