

7 EGYPTIANS DIE FOR MURDER

Executed for Slaying of British Sirdar, General Sir Lee Stack

One Confesses Murdering 35 Englishmen Before He is Hanged.

CAIRO, Aug. 24.—Seven men were taken from their cells and executed at intervals of 40 minutes Sunday. Their crime was the murder of Sir Lee Stack, Governor-General of the Sudan and Sirdar of the Egyptian army. Stack was shot down several months ago as he sat in his automobile.

Premier Zaghloul Pasha resigned, and Egypt paid heavy indemnity and otherwise atoned as a result of the crime.

More than four hours were required for the execution of the penalty prescribed by the court that heard the trials of the seven Egyptians.

ADMITS 35 MURDERS

Abd Del Hamil Enayat, the first handcuffed murderer, was led from his cell at 7 a. m. to the scaffold situated at the end of a spacious room. Standing shackled, he listened to the reading of the death sentence and then was invited to reply to it in the hearing of the acting Governor of Cairo, police, prison officials and three newspapermen, who were the only spectators.

Enayat heard his doom to the end and then confessed to murdering 35 Englishmen.

CARRIED FROM CELL

The next to march toward the scaffold was Dr. Shafiq Mansour, who had to be carried from his cell because he refused to do anything except fight. Despite his pinions he exerted his strength, finally bursting the leather thongs with which his hands had been bound.

DECEPTION PRACTISED

It had been announced that the hangings would occur Monday. Not even the relatives of the condemned men were informed of the deception, which was adopted to forestall the gathering of a crowd.

Bluenose Makes Large Codfish Catch

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 23.—The Canadian Government steamer Arras, of the Fisheries protection service, stated in a radio message, received here Saturday, that the Lunenburg schooner Bluenose, the world's champion fishing schooner, now on the Grand Banks, reported Friday a catch of 2,600 quintals of fish.

The message added that the Lunenburg schooner Una Corcum, with a cargo of 2,700 quintals of fish, had sailed for home, but that the rest of the Lunenburg fleet would probably stay on the fishing grounds for some time. Bait was reported scarce.

2 WOMEN SETTLERS, 80 AND 84, ARRIVE

Parties Are Brought Out by British Dominions Migration Body.

Canadian Press Despatch.
MONTREAL, Aug. 23.—That Canada's opportunities are not confined solely to youth was evidenced here on Saturday when two old ladies, aged 84 and 80 respectively, disembarked from the White Star Dominion Liner, Regina.

Mrs. Mary Hunter, was en route to join her son at Nelson, B. C., while Mrs. H. T. Killingbeck, whose span of years reaches to four score and four, is traveling with her son-in-law to Moose Jaw.

Some difficulty with the Canadian immigration officials developed at Quebec, with regard to Mrs. Hunter's admission to Canada, but after the Regina had been held up for half an hour, the aged lady was permitted to continue her voyage to Montreal, and from there she proceeded to her destination. A sturdy family of eleven arrived in
