IMMIGRATION.

The question that naturally arises in the minds of the people of the Maritime Provinces on reading the announcement of the new and vigorous immigration policy to be adopted by the Federal Government is: What benefits may these provinces derive? We are told that—

"Free homesteads will no longer be the chief magnet, but the efforts of the chief magnet will be directed toward getting up and making productive the vacant lands convenient to railways, and the lands will be largely centred upon the settlement in a position to buy land, but not to sell it. A new departure will be taken in creating machinery through the immigration department for bringing settlers into direct contact with owners desiring to sell their lands. In this way, it is hoped to place the tenant farmer in a position eventually to become a land owner in Canada."

"There are vacant lands convenient to railways in New Brunswick, and to the minds of our own investors doubtless areas to be rented to tenant farmers who would share in the benefits of the policy there would have to be co-operation between the federal and provincial authorities, the latter getting the information about the lands and aiding in the general policy of looking after the settlers for a period after their arrival. The Federal Government undertakes to conduct a publicity campaign in the United States and overseas, and we should see to it that the Maritime Provinces are not overlooked."

The policy of selecting immigrants from the United States, the United Kingdom and some southern European is a wise one. The United States, however, finds it difficult to get settlers from northern Europe, and quite too easy to get them from less desirable sources. The New York Tribune shows some light on this subject, as follows:—

"A comparison of the number of immigrants from different nations that actually entered the country during the last year with the numbers allotted in the quotas for each nationality shows that a smaller proportion of the northern than of southern European races have come in. Only 68 per cent. of the quota for the United Kingdom was filled and only 26 per cent. of the German and 45 per cent. of the 33 per cent, respectively, of the Norwegian and Swedish quotas. The quotas for the southern and eastern European nations were filled in nearly every case. The lesson to be drawn from this is that the greatest demand to emigrate to America still comes from the peoples of southern and eastern Europe."

There is, however, one encouraging feature as stated in the following paragraphs:—

"But even with the small number of northern Europeans that availed themselves of the opportunity to come the relative proportion of northern European arrivals is now greater than before the war. In the fiscal year 1913-14 only 15 per cent. of the immigrants came from northern and western Europe. This year the figure rose to 36 per cent. The total quota for the north arrived it would have been more than 50 per cent."

Along with this increase in the relative proportion of desirable settlers there is a movement of the southern and eastern races back to Europe. "During this time 265 per cent. more Poles returned to Europe, more than to this country and 91 per cent. more Italians. In the case of the Greeks, Rumanians and Russians also the number of returning emigrants exceeded the newcomers."

Of course this would not be true if no restrictions were placed on the entry of newcomers from these countries, since the full quota of those permitted to enter from southern and eastern Europe was filled last year in almost every case.

The Canadian law is also restrictive, and must be maintained. This country wants selected immigrants, and could have no greater misfortune than an influx of the undesirable of Europe. The class of immigrants now to be sought is a class that would do well in the Maritime Provinces, and this province will no doubt heartily co-operate.

The Hall-Mills murder mystery in New Jersey seems likely to remain unsolved. The grand jury has found no evidence which in its view would warrant the indictment of anybody for the murder of the minister and his choir leader. The suspicions that pointed to the minister's wife as the perpetrator or instigator of the crime have not been confirmed by satisfactory evidence. The case is one of the most remarkable in the annals of recent crime in the United States. The prominence of the victims and the fact that one was a minister aroused public interest to an unusual degree, but the murders appear to have completely reversed their trail.

THANKSGIVING.

Now God be thanked for many things,
For blessings great and small;
For answered prayers and whisperings,
Each heeded plea and call;
For Light that failed not but shone
Through gloom and dusk and night;
And for the greatest good sent—
The recompense of calm content—
That lies in honest work.

And God be praised for glowing health,
Well-filled and crowded days;
For worldly honors, power, and wealth,
For joyous moments known and shared
Alone by chief or clerk;
But thanks sincerest send to Heaven
For this, the greatest blessing given—
The happiness of work.

Whiter Than a Sheet.
Inventors have a power of abstraction which serves them a good turn on some occasions and is liable to betray them into strange statements on others.

So you think you have perfected your little machine at last, do you? asked the lawyer of his dreamy-eyed client.
"Yes, it's all right now; there's not a flaw in it," said the inventor. "But I can assure you, sir, that when I came to making the final test I was scared. I happened to see my face in a mirror when the thing was safely over, and it was as white as your shirt, sir. In fact," he added, bending an impartial gaze on the lawyer's shirt-front, "it was whiter—considerably whiter, I should say."

Narrow Gauge.
Not long ago there was a collision in Maine in which no one was injured. A certain old chap, who does hand-some work with the fiddle at country dances, is "great on time," but unless it is argued with him will play "The Girl I Left Behind Me" from eight o'clock until twelve for every dance except the Virginia reel.

Some of the old dancers were on the floor and between dances one of them went up to the fiddler, who sat rubbing rosin on his bow.
"Uncle," said the dancer, "all the folks on the floor want you to play 'The Girl I Left Behind Me.'"
"I should like to 'commemorate' ye fashions," said the fiddler, "but there's nothing 'bout that tune of 'Speed the Plow.' Just as soon as I 'Speed the Plow' I'll let a little white run right into 'The Girl I Left Behind Me.'"

R. T. LINCOLN SAW KILLING OF ALL THREE PRESIDENTS.

Here is the amazing, the very, extraordinary story of Robert T. Lincoln, son of President Lincoln, and now in his eightieth year. He related it recently to a friend and, so far as we know, it has never before been published. Young Lincoln was in the army and stationed in the theatre just in time to see his father receive his fatal wound. He was there when the bullet struck, and he was the first to see the President die. He was the first to see the President die. He was the first to see the President die.

Mr. Lincoln received an invitation to attend the formal opening of the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo, and accompanied by his family, got there just in time to see President McKinley shot by Clegg.

A friend happened to be with Mr. Lincoln when he received an invitation to attend the presidential function at Washington a few years ago. He then remarked something to the effect that, if they only knew, they wouldn't want me there. And he recited his experience as here revealed. — B. C. Forbes, in Forbes Magazine (N. Y.).

THEY WILL REMEMBER.

A Detroit despatch of Wednesday said:—

"In a patrol wagon that clanged its siren with the slow regularity of a funeral bell, seven men, convicted of automobile speeding, were taken today to the county morgue to view the bodies of three persons killed by motor cars. The visit to the morgue was ordered by Judge Charles L. Bartlett, who, in furthering his drive against reckless driving, last week took a large party to a hospital to view victims of serious accidents. None of the men in today's party had any connection with the mishaps that resulted in the deaths of the persons whose bodies they saw."

At the morgue Judge Bartlett delivered a sharp denunciation of reckless motorists. The seven men then were taken to jail to serve sentences of from one to ten days in addition to paying fines ranging from $50 to $100.

FIRE SALE.

Amdur's, Ltd., wish through the press, to extend to the public apologies for having been compelled, during sale hours, to close the doors of their big store, No. 1 King Square, for short intervals during the great fire sale.

Additional clerks were engaged for the fire sale and arrangements made for easy, quick handling of goods, and it was considered by Amdur's, Ltd., that their large floor area and augmented staffs, together with the special equipment, there would be no difficulty in avoiding a rush.

The prompt and sustained response to their fire sale announcement has put in order the doors closed. This condition will be remedied considerably by the engagement of another corps of extra clerks. The great fire sale of Amdur's, Ltd., has proved the season's sensation in business circles.

At the recent elections in Finland nineteen women were elected members of the Riksdag.

A woman's university, for the study of medicine, has been begun in Kabul, the capital of Afghanistan, with five hundred women students in attendance. Pashtu, Persian, Urdu and Russian are also taught in the university. This means a distinct step in the progress of women, and now that Afghan women are travelling more, it will not long until they come out openly, discard their veils, and contribute a valuable part to the progress of the nation.

The German National Insurance Law providing for the self-government of the insured had, from the beginning granted women equal rights with men in administrative bodies, but eligibility only to the lower grades, explicitly excluding them even on pension boards, from all judicial and arbitrary functions. By an amendment to the electoral law these restrictions have now, according to the German constitution, and to the new law on lay-jurisdiction, been abolished; women henceforth can be elected, under the same conditions as men, to all honorary offices as representatives of employers or employees, and as members of the state insurance boards, and can act as arbitrators at all the lawsuits brought before these bodies.

The Calcutta corporation has, by a resolution, granted to the municipal franchise of Calcutta city to those women who possess the qualifications which are also necessary for men voters. It is recommended that the sex discrimination be removed in the reformed municipal bill has to be referred upon by the provincial legislative council.

President Harding has signed the Cable bill which provides for the independence of married American women, and stipulates that the marriage of an alien woman to an American citizen shall not confer citizenship upon her, but requires her to become naturalized on her own account. This has brought satisfaction to the women of the country, who have long felt that women who are married should be treated as individuals and not as the property of their husbands. Aliens married to aliens at the time of the passage of the law (September 22, 1922) are not affected by it, but only those who become naturalized by complying with the old law requirements, including the "five years' continuous residence" in the United States, presentation of certificate of entry, ability to speak the English language and sign their names in their own handwriting and single aliens may continue as in the past to file declarations and petitions for naturalization. But a woman citizen of the United States shall cease to be a citizen by reason of her marriage, unless she enters a formal declaration of her citizenship before a court having jurisdiction over the naturalization of aliens, or unless she is an alien ineligible to citizenship. Both alien and American women may become naturalized without filing a declaration of intention, and after only one year's continuous residence in the United States or its dependencies.

RULES WINDOW CLEANERS "ALL MUST WEAR 'HARNESSES'."

"I intend to deal severely with every window cleaner brought before me who is not equipped with a safety device when he is at work," said Magistrate Alexander Brough in Municipal Court in New York as he imposed a fine of $20 on Otto Gopferich of the Broad Window Cleaning Company, 140 Fifth Avenue.

The law provides that window cleaners when they are working ten feet above the street level shall wear a safety device or "harness" to prevent them from falling. Magistrate Brough said that a week did not go by that some window cleaner was not seriously hurt or killed and that the deaths and injuries thus suffered were a severe drain on the State's finances through the Workmen's Compensation law.

BOAT WITHOUT ENGINE OR SAILS, MAKES GOOD TRIP.

London, Nov. 1.—(By Mail).—Specially constructed for navigation without either engine or sails, a boat was recently tested between the Point de Servas and the Pont de St. Cloud.

The boat was fitted with a special turbine for utilizing the wind as a source of motive power.

The trials were fairly conclusive, reports the Westminster Gazette. Against the wind and on a descending current the boat attained a speed of about six kilometers an hour. It was afterwards turned in various directions with satisfactory results.
