IMPERIAL PRESENTS
CANADIAN THRILLS

"Conflict" a Tremendous Story of British Columbian Lumber Strains—An Appalling Climax—On Again Tonight.

One of the most thrilling pictures ever made for the screen is shown last night at the Imperial Theatre, when "Conflict," Priscilla Dean's latest Universal-Jewel production, had its premier in this city. The picture is the last word in screen melodrama and grips the audience with its suspense almost from the first scene.

Its climax is built around the dramatic mining of a big log-jam in the swollen waters of the great north woods, and the succeeding flood of logs and water down the valley, sweeping everything in its path. The big punch comes when the heroine, played by Miss Dean, rides madly down the bank, almost to the flood, leaps perilously from log to log through the flow, and rescues her unconscious sweetheart, played by Herbert Rawlinson, just as he is about to be swept over a cataract.

The suspense is real, the thrill is actual, and Miss Dean deserves credit for one of the most fearless stunts ever performed for the screen. The rescue scene has been favorably compared to the rescue scene in "Way Down East." It is just as good, if not better. For one thing, it is not so long drawn out.

The logging camp scenes of "Conflict" are a revelation in screen verisimilitude. Miss Dean and her company passed several weeks in the timber country of British Columbia filming the story in its proper settings.

The story concerns Dorcas Rennie, a society girl forced by her father's death to go and live with her uncle, a mysterious recluse and lumber baron. A crafty and queer housekeeper rules his prison-like home in the deep woods. Menaced by the housekeeper and driven to desperation by the ominous atmosphere of the place, Dorcas runs away. She has fallen in love with Jevons, an educated young lumberman, who has challenged her uncle's supremacy in the timber country. When Jevons' life is threatened she takes up his fight, out-her uncle's holdings and brings the lumber baron to tears.

In addition to the excellent acting of the star, and her leading man, Herbert Rawlinson, two other players stand out prominently. They are Edward Connelley, as the grim uncle, and Martha Mutton, as the weird housekeeper. Sam Allen also is unusually good as a village hotelkeeper. His part is small, but he makes it as clear out as a cannon. Others in the cast are L. C. Shumway, Hector Sarno, C. E. Anderson, Milton Brown, Bill Gillis and Knute Erickson.

"Conflict" was adapted from the novel of the same name by Clarence Buddington Kelland, which recently appeared in the Red Book. It was directed by Stuart Paton, the director of Miss Dean's previous success, "Reputation." It is being shown again today.

MORNING NEWS OVER THE WIRES

Chief Detective Kennedy, of Halifax, says that the explanation of the New Year's Eve disturbances in Digby was the dismissal of Chief of Police Bishop. The chief who succeeded him has been removed from office and the four men arrested in connection with the disturbance are out on bail.

Miss Elva Greer of Woodstock, who was thrown from a sleigh last Saturday, died yesterday. She sustained a fractured skull. When the horse arrived home without the young lady a search was made and she was found lying on the side of the road. She was twenty-two years of age.

Fred Stork, Liberal, had a majority of thirty-eight over Col. C. W. Peck, V. C., Independent, in Skeena River riding, according to the official count of R. W. Cameron, returning officer. Colonel Peck is a native of New Brunswick. Marquis Okuma, formerly premier of Japan, died yesterday morning. He had been in a critical condition for several days.

ARE THESE COMFORTABLE APARTMENTS
except for crowding? asked Samuel Unchmyer.

"Many of these apartments went without a tenant for years before the war," said Dr. Daniel, "because the poor people would not live in them at any price. Now they have no other place to go."

OFFICERS INSTALLED.
George J. Martin, grand regent, assisted by grand officers, installed the following officers of St. John Council, 138, Royal Arcanum, at a meeting in their rooms in the Market building last evening:—Regent, Charles McCabe; vice-regent, G. J. Vincent; orator, Roy Gray; past regent, H. L. Lindsay; secretary, George G. Wetmore; collector, W. S. Clawson; treasurer, W. A. Wetmore; chaplain, F. E. Wetmore; guide, S. W. Lilley; warden, J. H. Guild; secretary, G. J. Vincent; trustee, R. G. Thomson; representative of grand council, H. L. Lindsay; alternate, W. A. Coleman.

The Fortnightly Club met last night in the rooms of F. A. Dykeman and heard two interesting papers, J. M. Freeman in his paper dealt with the Turk in Europe and G. A. Henderson gave a paper on Deep Sea Discoveries.

Hundreds of Children Herded Together With Little Light and Air—Typical Tenement.

New York, Jan. 10.—In answer to the question, "Is there still a shortage in low-priced living rooms in New York City?" Dr. Annie Daniels, a physician employed to attend out patients too poor to go to an infirmary for attention, gave to the Lockwood Legislative Investigating Committee this declaration on tenements selected at random from those which she is called frequently to visit in the house, 15; persons in the families, 109; persons of the 109 under 16, 72; number of rooms, 91; number of rooms with windows, 20.

"Conflict" was adapted from the novel of the same name by Clarence Buddington Kelland, which recently appeared in the Red Book. It was directed by Stuart Paton, the director of Miss Dean's previous success, "Reputation." It is being shown again today.

HOW POOR FARE IN CITY OF RICH

A "balanced diet" may sound confusing to many people

The facts, as explained here, are simple.

The secret of a "balanced diet" is to have food containing all the elements needed for proper nutrition. These elements are protein, to nourish the tissues, starch and sugar to furnish energy, fat to supply heat and mineral salts to provide the material necessary for building nerves, brain, and tooth and bone structure.

Grape-Nuts, the nourishing cereal made of whole wheat flour and malted barley served with cream or milk, is a complete food for young and old alike.

Go to your grocery today and get a package of Grape-Nuts. Eat it with milk or cream for breakfast, or with stewed fruit or jam, as a delicious dessert for lunch or dinner.

Every member of the family will relish this palatable and nourishing food—

SOUTH AFRICAN "DAGGA"

Powerful Drug in Which the Natives Secretly Indulge.

It is not only among war-weary people in big cities that drug taking is prevalent.

The natives of South Africa cultivate surreptitiously, because there is a fine line if the authorities find them out—a herb called dagga, writes Leonard Fleming in the London Daily Mail.

Dagga in Africa is what opium is to China. It is smoked—but smoked in a strange way—and the native smokes it only in the very early dawn or very late at night, when he can do it secretly.

He scoops a hole out of the hard ground three or four inches deep by three inches wide. A foot or so away from this he scoops another hole, and then bores a small channel underground from one to the other. Here is thus a free air passage connecting the two little excavations.

He places some dried dagga leaves in the first hole, lights them and covers them over with moist clay. He pierces this clay with a sharpened piece of wood to allow a draught to go through.

Into the other hole he inserts a small hollow reed—this is the pipe stem—squeezes moist clay round it, and on his knees begins his smoke.

A cup of water is at his side, and as each "dagg" he elevates a small amount of water in without letting any smoke escape. Then in some marvellous manner he keeps the water in a thin stream and the smoke slowly follows.

Bending low over the reed and sitting very still, this is repeated time and time again.

His eyes stream with tears and soon get very red and swollen. He becomes excited; he feels elated, buoyed up in some wonderful way. All his cares and troubles are forgotten, and in their place has come an exquisite feeling of supreme content and happiness.

He begins to talk, and the occupants of his small hear great tales of daring deeds of his youth—told with much demonstration and wild enthusiasm. Tales of his early fights—sides of battles and of victories—always of victories. Tales of great heroism and wonderful journeys—of old forests and of young love.

But the influence of the dagga dies out. The native's eyes are screwed up, small, his head aches, his limbs and face become inert, and in a short while he is just a huddled mass of heavy sleep. His joy in life has lasted just about an hour, and in the dim dawn he awakens feeling a fearful "wreck."

But he believes in "a hair of the dog that bit him" and so another pipe before work.

One Horse to 372 Motors.

A recent count of traffic on a road near Hartford, Conn., made by the state highway department for the National Highway Association, showed one horse-drawn vehicle to 372 motor vehicles, according to official figures made public.

The road on which the check was taken was built largely to accommodate interstate motor traffic. During the period for which figures were taken, 26,088 passenger motor vehicles were counted, 2,393 trucks and 334 motorcycles. Against these figures only eighty-three horse-drawn equipages were checked.

A Greek Temple.

Greek archaeologists have unearthed an imposing temple at Terras, Thessaly. The temple is in an excellent state of preservation and is said to be as large as the temple of Juniper at Olympia.

The bronze inscriptions of the temple date as that of 400 B. C. Tablets have also been found bearing indications of laws and resolutions of ancient civilization. This is the second temple discovered within a month, the first having been a temple of the goddess of Volo. The excavations are continuing.
