INDICTED FOR BLASPHEMY.

A Kentucky Editor Whose Paper Sells Like Hot Cakes.

Lexington, Ky., April 10.—C. E. Moore, the prohibition infidel editor of the Blue Grass Blade, has been indicted for blasphemy, and is now in the Fayette county jail. His indictment is the first of its kind in the history of the state, and is causing a great deal of excitement. When Editor Moore learned yesterday that the grand jury had brought in two true bills against him, one for blasphemy and the other for nuisance, he called at the sheriff's office and gave himself up, refusing to give bonds. He was sent to jail and he intends to publish his paper from there. To a reporter, Moore said:

not the right to prevent me from giving expression to my opinions on religion. The principal charge for which I am imprisoned is for saying Jesus Christ was a man exactly like I am, and had a human father and mother, exactly like I had. Some of the pious call it blasphemy. The preacher did not like my criticism of himself and before the grand jury had me indicted."

About a year ago Editor Moore attacked the members of the Christian church at Paris, Ky., and was indicted by the Bourbon county grand jury, tried and sent to jail for a time.
