

-6-

in the House of Commons, or of any minority group are to be allowed to over-ride the will of the government which is responsible finally to the people for the management of their affairs.

Let it never be forgotten that under the British system of government, a Prime Minister is charged with a double responsibility. It is his duty to see that the Constitution is upheld, not only in word but also in spirit.