HONOR LIFEBOAT HERO

GALLANT RESCUE OF FIFTY YEARS AGO IS RECALLED.

Wreck of the Northern Belle-Beached by Heavy Seas-Twenty-Three Men Lashed to Foremast-Taken Off by Boat's Crew After Perilous Journey - Deed Recognized by

Broadstairs honored itself recently by honoring William Wales, an old lifeboat-man belonging to the town. Some fifty years ago, all England and America was cheering Wales and his comrades of the lifeboats Mary and Culmer White. To-day Wales is the only survivor of those gallant crews (he is 84), and there are not many who remember the wreck of the Northern Belle. The affair occurred on Jan. 5, 1857. She was an Ameri-

heavily, and the seas beached her. To steady her, her main and mizzen masts were cut away. But the gale increased, it was feared her anchors would part, and the Broadstairs lifeboat was sent for. The lifeboat-men harnessed themselves to their craft, and dragged it from their town to Kingsgate.

A Margate lugger, in attempting to assist the laboring ship, was overturned and the crew drowned. Late that might the Northern Belle broke away, and drove towards the rocks. Hail and aleet made any attempt at rescue impossible then, for nothing could be seen. At daybreak, the ship was seen with 23 men lashed to her foremast, continually soused by the great seas. One lifeboat put out, at great peril, and got seven of the men away. On its return, the boat, of which Wales was one of the crew, went to the wreck and brought off 14, returning again to rescue the captain and the pilot. The United States Government presented a gold medal and $100 to the lifeboat-men engaged in this responded to the lifeboat-men engaged in this responded by the continuality was found that his circumstances were not of the best, and a subscription list was opened for him. Amongst those who subscribed were Sarah Bernhardt, and Lord Avebury, and this week a substantial sum, together with his portrait, was handed over to the veteran lifeboat-man.

TROOPERS' BRAVERY.

Two Natal Police Beat Off Fifty Armed Natives.

A story of magnificent bravery on the part of a sergeant and trooper of the Natal police has just come to light at Estcourt. Some months ago a native doctor named Umkuba was attacked and seriously injured by a number of other natives between Chieveley and Tabamhlope. The Natal police at Colenso were notified, and Sergeant Wright, with Trooper Stuart, went in pursuit of the miscreants. One of the latter on reaching a large kraal on the summit of a hill shouted that he was being killed by the police, whereupon some fifty natives, fully armed, swept down on the police, who knowing that retreat would fully armed, swept down on the police, who knowing that retreat would almost certain be fatal stood their ground. The horde gradually closed in on them, shouting and gesticulating wildly. When within a few yards Sergt. Wright shouted to them to halt, and as they did not heed the summons the two plucky Englishmen dashed in amongst them and used their fists to such good purpose that
the natives were utterly demoralized, fifteen of them being arrested on the spot by the policemen and their native helpers. The bravery of Sergt.
Wright might never have been heard of but for an action brought at Estcourt by Umkuba against one of his assesilants, when the narrative came out in the course of the evidence.

The First Libraries.

So far as existing records show, the oldest approximation to libraries was brought to light by the Assyrian discoveries in the form of Babylonish books inscribed on elay tablets. They are supposed to have been prepared for public instruction about 650 B. C. Prisistratus is said to have founded a library at Athens about 537 B. C., but there is no clear evidence to that effect. According to Strabo, Aristotle was the first known collector of a library and bequeathed it to Theophritus 322 B. C., the library finally going to Rome.

Fate of a Famous Library.

Fate of a Famous Library.

The great Pinellian library, considered at the time one of the largest and most valuable in the world, was purchased in 1600 after the death of its possessor by a London bookseller, who chartered three vessels to convey it to London. He was pursued by corsairs, who captured one vessel, and finding it carried a cargo of books and manuscripts destroyed all by easting them into the sea.

CLARIFIED AND BOTTLED MILK

To clarify and bettle milk is the only sanitary and up-to-date way to handle such an important product of the dairy as milk, for while it is one of the best and most necessary foods we saye if properly cared for, it is certainly one of the most dangerous if neglected or carelessly handled, and should never be exposed to street dust, as is done in the ordinary way of pedding milk from large cans with open measures.

The Steam Turbine Machine used to clarify all the milk sold from the
