NEWS FROM THE OLD LAND Many Interesting Happenings Reported From Great Britain. (London Daily Mail) 3,000,000 TONS OF SNOW. An army of 30,000 men, whose weapons were shovels, more than 1,000 carts, and the hundreds of tons, many snow-plows, miles of hose-pipe, and hissing jets of steam, entered into the fight which was waged throughout London on Wednesday to rid the streets of their clogging carpet.

BEGGARS CURSE OF RUSSIA. Peasants Give Freely to Vagrants Who Come by Scores. Warsaw.—Surely there never was a country where almsgiving reached such a pitch as Russia's. It is the widow's mite, or rather, the moujik's cockle, that flows most freely. In the Government of Viatka, often called the peasant's government, the average village was visited by and gave alms to the following people during 1908: Fifteen hundred beggars pure and simple; 80 pilgrims to Jerusalem, Mount Athos, Solovetsk, Kiev and Moscow; 30 pilgrims to local shrines; 10 monks and nuns and 30 gypsies, making a total of 1,650. These unbidden guests received on an average a quarter of a pound of black bread each, and when bound for distant places, money as well. The local pilgrims exacted least, the monks and nuns most, for they generally obtained a rouble apiece in return for a promise to pray for the donor's soul. In a word, each peasant family gave these beggars in money and kind no less than $29 during the year. No wonder the moujik is always poor, even in a rich district. What with beggars and "big drinks" on holidays, he has not much chance of putting by for a rainy day.

Love is the gateway to heaven—or the other place. GERMANS AND PATENT ACT. Widespread alarm is manifest in German industrial circles over growing indications of the rigorous enforcement of the new British Patent Act. The German chemical industry particularly is filled with misgivings. It has information to the effect that the so-called "anti-German trade crusade" will shortly be aggravated by the passage of laws conferring preferential treatment upon imports of artificial indigo from India. This would deal a heavy blow to German chemical factories, which have built up an enormous trade in that product in Great Britain. German merchants are also perturbed by the announcement that a private organization has been formed to keep close watch upon foreign-plated articles in Britain, and report to the Comptroller of Patents if the patentees are seeking to evade the provisions of the new Act. It is pointed out, in commenting on the English situation, that the German Patent Law contains a paragraph which could be employed for retaliatory purposes, but that it is practically "illusory" because few Englishmen are in possession of German patents.

Penalties Under Act. A striking notice printed in red ink has been posted in the windows of many ironmongers' shops in London calling attention to the penalty of £10 which may be inflicted after April 1 upon any person over the age of sixteen who leaves a fire unguarded and thereby causes injury by burning or scalding to a child under seven. This provision of the new Children's Act is causing a small boom in fire-guards and other devices for protecting open grates among the better-class customers of the ironmonger, but at present the provision has not been taken seriously by the working-class customers, for whom it was specially framed. Among other important provisions of the Act are the following: No paid person having charge of a child can insure its life. The maximum punishment on indictment for cruelty to children is £100 and two years' imprisonment with hard labor. If the person convicted of cruelty is one agent says that on his road improvement, but she is very well indeed. I also met Lady Constance Lytton in hospital.

Unlucky Freight. Railroads Obligated to Pay Out Millions Every Year for Damages. It is said that the amount paid out by the roads of the United States in 1907 for freight claims was $24,000,000. These claims originate from various causes, such as defective cars, careless employees and incorrect classification, but one agent says that on his road improvement, but she is very well indeed. I also met Lady Constance Lytton in hospital.

Robert Johnston Was Charging Holes at Cobalt. Cobalt, March 18.—Last evening Robert Johnston, an experienced miner, who had been preparing to blast a round of six holes, was missed at supper time. Investigation disclosed the dead body of Johnston, who had evidently been killed by a premature explosion. It appears that five of the six holes had been loaded, and it is probable that the dynamite exploded in deceased's hands while loading the last hole. An inquest will be held to-morrow over the remains. Deceased was a single man, aged about 30 years.

A Severe Penalty Wipe. (Goldwin Smith) A time when murder is on the increase is surely not the best for a reduction of the penalty. Nor can there be much doubt that the most deterrent penalty is death. That of imprisonment, even for life, leaves hope of escape by accident or remission. It might, perhaps, be thought over-refinement to add that life after conviction of a murder, or ought to lose, its value. The one serious objection to the death penalty is its irreversibility in case of mistake; but the precautions and the tendency of judges and juries are such that a mistaken verdict of guilty is hardly possible. In England, within the last two generations, there has been, if the By-stander remembers aright, only one known case of a mistaken verdict of guilty, and in that case discovery followed, and the condemned was saved. A time should, of course, always be given between judgment and execution for the chance of new light.

Liquor at Fort William. Toronto, March 19.—The attention of the Ontario License Department has been called to the peddling of liquor, said to be going on in what is known as East Fort William, where there is a foreign population of about 4,500. There are no licensed houses in the district, but it is said there is a daily delivery of liquor in the section and that it is sold from door to door. It is also said that orders are solicited. A resident of East Fort William, who was in the city yesterday, explained the situation to the license department officials, who will prosecute some inquiries.
