The poor woman died in great agony a few minutes after taking the poison.

An attempt was made to blow up the house of C. W. Lotten, of Acadia Mines, N. S., with dynamite on the night of the 10th inst. Some time ago Mr. Lotten, in company with two other constables arrested some persons for a violation of liquor license act. A good many threats were made against the constables at the time but nothing more was done—until Wednesday night, when dynamite was placed under the corner of Mr. Lotten's house and set off. The report was terrific, and could be heard all over town. Shortly the report a man was seen running from the vicinity of the house. The house was about the vicinity of the house. In the letter-press, the early settlement of the Townships, especially the St. Francis District, is reconnted with accuracy and animation, and the present properous condition of the city is described very fully. No phase of the progress of the community is omitted from the Survey. With these descriptions the illustrations are in harmony. Scenery, architecture, portraiture—it is all as fine as any Canadian establishment has yet turned out and will compare favorably with sonis of the best products of the British and American periodical press. It is a double number, and as it covers the entire annals and social and scomentic development of the capital of the Township, it will be well worth pressarving. One of the first things decided was the awarding of the prize to the best dressed Highlander. A fine body of men competed for the medal, and it went unanimously to Mr. James Colin McRachen, chief of the Caledonian Club. Chief McRachen's costume was very handsome indeed. From the huge feather which rose high in the air from his bonnet down to the buckles of his shoes he was resplendent with silver. His pistol was of silver and his dirk was of the same metal studded with jewels. His powder flask was also studded with jewels and so was his skene thu. Chief McRachen were the Stuart tartan and his kilt was gorgeous. His coutume, so I afterwards learned, a cost about $1,100, and this item ought to prove interesting to the great army of American dudes.
