From the Brockville Recorder

CLERGY RESERVES AND RECTO RIES. In the year 1836, when the House of As and missiles, not as before merely calcula-ted to insult, but to endanger, if not to de-for the principle of Responsible Govern. ment, a select committee was appointed the ultra-Conservatives. English statesmen of all shades of opinion, in the meantime, pronounced unfavourably of these proceedings. Annexation to the United States, with the mockery of "peaceful attached to it, was next mooted; chiefly by those, too, whose feelings hadjust been grieviously wounded by rewarding, it was said, those who had a few years before their grievances! It annexation was a light crime, and the right to dispense with allegiance denied in 1837, what has male the crime-less enormous and how can allegiance be thrown off in 1849? If it be no crime now, it were surely no crime then. But if the highest penalties were justly awarded then, would they be unjustly awarded now? If to subvert the Government now, be patriotic, it was so then. To allege wounded feelings with one breath, and annexation with the next, is truly absurd! But this Methodist Conference represented the case in it two years before would have denoun-strong representations against the Clergy ced as republican, and subversive of every! Reserves, signed by upwards of 18,000 of thing British. In this assembly were deba-ted propositions subversive of what Conser-John Colborne informed the House of Assembly, in a message dated the 25th Januacluding question left open to the country and always boasting of loyalty, seek this and other elective functionaries not then thought of.

I was not in favour of the introduction of Responsible Government at the time it was granted to us, because I was afraid we could not, as a people appreciate its advantages and carry it out, I cooless my fears in this respect never rested upon the party or the men who have been the first to try to subvert it. If this form of government was good for the ultra part of the Conservative party when in power, it should be good for it when out of power: it did not become that part of the party to show, that being in power they were Conservatives, but, being out of power they were Radicals and destructives; and that the distinction, in fact, between the one and the other was having, or not having the power.

Responsible Government was a step in our social progress, and in our political position, made, as I humbly thought, in advance of our wants and fitness to appreciate it, but having been made, it could not be recalled. All that remained was fairly to work it out, and I do believe, that if we would but do this, it possesses the quiet, the conceive, as the following exchange of the coloning and the carried into effect without and other elective functionaries of the sets of the substitution of the station and stations of the station and station of the station and stations of the station and stations of the Toronto December 4, 1849 Kossurn.-The following description of Kossuru.—The following description of the great Hungarian patriot is from the graphic pen of Kohl, the well known German traveller:—I looked with much interest at the man on whom the eyes of all Hungary may be said to be fixed. He is of a middle size, and very agreeable exterior: his features are regular and decidedly handsome, but strong marked and manly. He is in the prime of life, with rather redundant hair and whiskers, but a mild and modest expression of countenance. He was rather pale when I saw him and his features were an air of carnestness, slightly tinged with an air of earnestness, slightly tinged with melancholy, sthough lighted up by his fine flashing eyes. He spoke for full half an hour without a moment's hestation, and his mode of delivery appeared to me to be extremely agreeable. His voice is fine, as might be expected from so handsome a person—and the sounds of the Hungarian language always powerful and energetic.—seemed from his lips, I might almost say, warlike, although they came hard and harsh from the mouth of an uncertised of the second from his lips. from the mouth of an uncultivated speaker. The Elyen! Elyen!—(brevo, bravo,)—frequently interrupted him and the Hayunk! - (hear,) - was scarcely uttered once, for every one was silent and attentive of his 164

COULD, KINDALL & LINCOLN are Thappy to announce that they have completed arrangements with Mesers. Chambers, of Edinburgh, for the re-publication, in semi-monthly numbers, of Chambers Miscellary.

The design of the Miscellary is to supply the increasing demand for useful, instructive, and entertaining reading, and to bring all the aids of literature to bear on the cultivation of the feelings of the people—to impress correct views on important moral and social questions—suppress every species of strife and savagery—cheer the lagging and desponding, by the relation of tales drawn from the imaginations of popular writers—rouse the fancy by descriptions of interesting loreign scenes—give a zest to every-day occupations by ballad and lyrical poetry—in short, to furnish an unobtrusive friend and guide, a lively frieadle companion, as far as that object can be attained through the instrumentality of books.

The universally acknowldged merits of the Cyclorepia of Eaglish Literatures. by the same author, connected with its rapid sale, and same author, connected with its rapid sale, and the unbounded commendation bestowed by the press, give the publishers full confidence in the real value and entire success of the present real value and entire success.

The publication has already commenced, and will be continued semi-monthly. Each number will form a complete work, and every third number will be furnished with a title page and table of contents, thus forming a beautifully illustrated volume of over 500 pages of useful, and entertaining reading, adapted to every class of readers. The whole to be completed in THERTY SUMMERS, forming Ten elegant Volumes.
