BY RUTH CAMERON.

I wonder if many people realize what an amount of fun one can get out of life by finding out what other people's lives are like. It seems to me that like associates with like too much.

We are apt to weaken ourselves by being too constantly with our own kind, and never making the effort to hold converse with the other kinds.

The bookblack, the shop girl, the stenographer, the business man, the waitress, the college student all have different angles on life, and if all of them would try to get to each other's angles occasionally they would all be much broader minded and have much more to think about.

I don't mean by that that anyone can include in his circle of friends every kind and condition of men. What I am trying to say is simply that you can get a great deal of fun out of life, and incidentally broaden your understanding very much by trying to find out what the lives of the hundreds of people whom you serve and who serve you each day are like.

Did you ever say anything much beyond "Good morning" or "A dark polish, please," or "Looks like rain," to your bootblack while he was polishing your shoes?

Probably not. If you are an average man.

Well, some time try asking him how he happened to go into business, and how long he has to work, and how well he pays, and what he wants to be when he gets through being a bootblack, and see if he doesn't give you something interesting to think about. Did you ever talk to a telephone girl about life at a switchboard? I did the other day and I found out a lot of things that I don't believe many people know, and that I think are worth knowing.

For instance, when you ask your operator a perfectly simple question that you are sure she could answer if she wanted to, and instead of answering it she insists on saying, "I'll give you information," wouldn't it cool your wrath some to know that she does that, not because she wants to be disobliging, but because she is not allowed to say anything except a few formulas.

On all the big exchanges, this girl told me, the operators are absolutely forbidden to say anything except a few prescribed formulas, such as "What number are you calling?" "I'll give you information." "The line is busy." "Small I call you?" and two or three others.

The slightest infraction of this rule—even answering "Good morning" to a pleasant greeting, for instance—is punished by fine or suspension. Isn't that rather interesting?

While you waited for your change, did you ever talk to the shop girl about people as they looked behind a counter?

Did you ever ask some rich man how his life looks from his angle? Did you ever get one of the waitresses at your favorite restaurant to tell you some of the funny and interesting experiences that come her way?

No, they won't think you a Paul Pry at all if you go about it rightly. Don't YOU like to tell about your own peculiar experiences, your own view of life, your angle on the world?

Well, so will they if you ask them in the right way.

When You Think Of the pain which many women experience with every month it makes the gentleness and kindness always associated with womanhood seem to be almost a miracle. While in general no woman rebels against what she regards as a natural necessity, there is no woman who would not gladly be free from this recurring period of pain.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, and gives them freedom from pain. It establishes regularity, subdues inflammation, heals ulceration and cures female weakness.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private and sacredly confidential. Write without fear and without fee to World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y.

If you want a book that tells all about women's diseases, and how to cure them at home, send 31 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce to pay cost of mailing early, and he will send you a free copy of his great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser—revised, up-to-date edition, in paper covers. In handsome cloth-binding, 59 stamps.

SOUR STOMACH IS A SIGN OF INDIGESTION

If you occasionally have a taste of sour food in your mouth, it is a sign that the food you are taking is not being digested, but is instead fermenting and giving out poisonous gases.

Indigestion of gas is a common symptom of a weak stomach, and also that lump-of-lead feeling, as if your stomach was carrying a much heavier load than it could stand. These symptoms of indigestion should be attended to at once.

A Visit to Sunny Italy.

Letter From Mr. W. A. Thorburn.

(Concluded.) There are great crowds everywhere as numbers of people are "in town" to do their Christmas shopping. In former letters which have appeared in the Evening Telegram I have touched on New York, so this time I will mention only a few places I went to, viz.—1. The Hippodrome, at which, as now being produced three attractions, namely: "A Trip to Japan," "Inside the Earth," and "The Ballet of Jewels."

I enjoyed the latter and former productions the best, and it may be of interest to your lady readers to know that the costumes used in "A Trip to Japan" were made by Alexander Blanche & Co., of Vienna; those used in "The Ballet of Jewels" were made by M. Landoff, of Paris. Marceline, a famous American clown, is still "clowning" at this immense theatre. I have seen him at the Hippodrome several times and he is just as funny as ever. It is by no means so easy

As It Appears to be a Good Clown. Margaret Anglin, at the Savoy Theatre, in "The Awakening of Helene Richie." This is an emotional play in four acts, adapted from Margaret DeLand's novel of that name. Miss Anglin is, of course, a "star," and many of the audience were moved to tears at her clever interpretation of the play. The orchestra at this theatre was the celebrated Y. Kossy's Hungarian orchestra, and they almost made their instruments speak. Margaret Anglin is pretty generally conceded to be the best emotional actress in the United States. Inter alia, it is said that a strange man was at one time so completely overcome by her charms that he followed her about for two years from city to city protesting his undying love for her. He sent her flowers galore and many an ardent billet doux, but in this case the motto amor vincit omnia failed to work and, sad

I left New York for Buffalo by the Fast Mail at 8.45 a.m. on December 15th, arriving at 7.15 p.m. the same day. The Fast Mail is a "New York Central" train and a good one and averages 43 1/2 miles per hour for the whole distance. This completed a most enjoyable five weeks' trip of something over 9,000 miles, and I hope if any of your readers ever take this itinerary that they will derive as much pleasure from it as I have done. Yours very truly, WILLIAM A. THORBURN, Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 24th, 1909.
