Charge of the Gallant 500.
How the Worcesters Saved Calais.

(London Daily Mail.)

Only now, after the lapse of many months, is it possible to tell the story of how 800 British soldiers barred the Kaiser's road to Calais; how fewer than 500 English linesmen charged right into the mouth of a veritable inferno, drove back a twenty times stronger force of Germans, and for ever freed England from the menace of the Hun on Calais sands.

The story is told by an officer who is but now recovering from a wound received on that day at the end of October when 2,400 men of the "contemptible" British Army held the village of Gheluvelt, on the road to Ypres, against 24,000 of the War Lord's hordes. The British troops consisted of the sorely thinned battalions of the Scots Guards, the South Wales Borderers, and the Welsh and Queen's Regiments, which held hastily constructed trenches across the front of Gheluvelt village.

There had been no time to perfect these poor defences against the artillery and rifle fire of the enemy, but every British soldier knew "that the position had to be held at all costs, for once the line was broken there was nothing to stop the Hun's march on Calais. Reinforcements had been promised; the Worcesters were on their way, but even then the odds would be nine to one.

Commanders in Dug-Outs.

From long before dawn the battle raged. The German artillery searched the British trench from end to end and shelled the Chateau of Gheluvelt, where the battalion commanders were quartered, causing their hasty removal to a dug-out in the chateau grounds. Men fell not by ones and twos, but by dozens and half-dozen, but those who survived were as steady as if on parade. There was no random firing.

The officers, careless as usual of their own safety, ceaselessly patrolled the position from end to end, cheering and encouraging their men. Many fell, and those who could scrambled to their feet again, making light of their injuries, but many had fallen for all time, and had perforce to lie where they fell.

At last the shelling ceased and there was a stir in the German ranks. They were about to charge. Now the British knew that the time of their inactivity was passed—now they could take full of the enemy—avenge their comrades who lay stark and stiff around them. The machine gunners looked to their weapons; there must be no hitch, no jam when the moment came.

And so the Germans charged. On they came without fuss and without flurry, only to be mown down in thousands by rifle and gun. One moment there was a solid advancing mass of Germans, and the next there was still a mass of Germans, but they were farther away, while between them and the British was a carpet of grey heaps. Again the Germans came on climbing and

An Amazing Cure For Neuralgia
Magical Relief For Headache

The Most Effective Remedy Known is "Nerviline."

The reason Nerviline is infallibly a remedy for neuralgia resides in two very remarkable properties Nerviline possesses.

The first is its wonderful power of penetrating deeply into the tissue which enables it to reach the very source of congestion.

Nerviline possesses another and not less important action—it equalizes the circulation in the painful parts, and thus affords a sure barrier to the re-establishment of congestion.

You see the relief you get from Nerviline is permanent.

It doesn't matter whether the cause is spasm or congestion, external or internal; if it is pain—equally with its curative action upon neuralgia—Nerviline will relieve and quickly cure rheumatism, sciatica, lumbago, strains, swellings or enlarged joints, and all other muscular aches.

Nerviline is a guaranteed remedy. Get the large 50 cent family size bottle; it is far more economical than the 25 cent retail size.

original position, and were never again able to break the British line. Of the 500 Worcesters who went to the charge but 200 un wounded men answered to the roll when the field was won, and of the 2,400 British soldiers hale and whole when morning broke but 800 lived to tell of that great fight.

How Germans Used Poisonous Gases.

Placed Cylinders With Men to Operate Them Along the Entire Front of Trenches.

Havre, April 29.—The Official Belgian Committee appointed to investigate reported violations of the laws of nations has addressed to Minister of Justice Wiat a report on the use by the Germans of asphyxiating gases. It is stated that gaseous clouds extending 300 feet into the air were carried away from the German lines by the wind. The clouds were green in color at the base gradually shading to light yellow toward the top. Several kinds of gases appear to have been used, including chlorine, the nitrous vapors of sulphurous anhydride and others, the nature of which has not yet been determined. Four methods were employed, the report states, in generating these gases. The first was to light fires in the first line of trenches and permit the wind to blow the gas formed towards the lines of the German's antagonists. The three other methods involved enclosing the gas in some kind of missile. These included caps thrown either by hand or mine launchers, cylinders of compressed gas or shells containing compounds which were transformed into gas when they exploded.

To-night the great Canadian Western photo-play "The Wolf" will bid its adieu to St. John's audiences. Its successor commencing Thursday evening and remaining for the balance of the week will be Charles Kiehl's famous society drama, "The Lion and the Mouse." This beautiful and much-talked-of production is from the studios of the Lubin Co., long and favorably known as perfect artists who pay strict attention to every detail, no matter how trivial.

Westeners Saved the Situation.

(Special Cable to the Montreal Gazette.)

Northern France, April 27.—Canadian sappers speaking with proud admiration of the work of the Sixteenth Regiment, the men of Alberta and British Columbia, in the opening stage of the battle. With remarkable foresight, General Alderson, who was holding this battalion in reserve, instead of having it parallel to his front, had it perpendicular, that is to say, facing north. When, therefore, the Germans broke through from Langemarck toward the canal and swung south to cut off the Canadians, the Sixteenth was ready to meet them and to advance at the critical moment to maintain the line intact. This was undoubtedly the crucial part of the battle and the heroic conduct of the men from the far west undoubtedly carried the day.

A Good Report From the Front.

In an article entitled "Lord Lonsdale at the Front," the Animals Guardian, London, says:

Lord Lonsdale says he was "enormously impressed by the health and vitality of all the horses that I saw," and, further—

"I think it is only due to all those in the Veterinary Department and the Remount Department to express their extraordinary energy, the love of the animal, the time, hard work, and forethought displayed by all those connected with these two departments. It certainly was a surprise to me, and I went into every detail, and had every facility granted me, and saw every horse, and I do think that we—the real lovers of animals (if I may so express it), whose interests we have so deeply at heart—should be not only satisfied, but most grateful too, for the forethought, hard work, and endurance of all officers concerned, and the very highest praise is due to those in command."

3,400 CANADIAN SOLDIERS REACH ENGLAND SAFELY.

Ottawa, April 29.—Thirty-four hundred Canadians who sailed from Halifax on the steamers Gramscian and Northland, arrived in England to-day. They include the 18th battalion from the London district, a force of engineers, arm service, field ambulance and railway depot supply detachment. They will form a part of the second Canadian overseas army division which it is hoped will be completed and in the trenches within a short time.

Our Volunteers.

Seven volunteers enlisted with the Reserve Force yesterday, making a total of 1,738 enrolled to date. The names of yesterday's volunteers are: John Madden, St. John's; Wm. Park, McGrath, St. John's; R. Huxsey, St. John's; Wm. Lidstone, St. John's; John Hawco, Hr. Mah; Wm. Lannon, Bell Island; Esau Gillingham, Glenwood.

Yesterday the men were put through drill indoors, while squads had rifle practice at the Southside Range. Before dismissing the parade yesterday afternoon, Lieut. Nunns addressed the men on the subject of temperance, and warned them that drink was the greatest enemy with which they had to contend. He also referred to the excessive use of cigarettes which impairs a man's ability to shoot.
