Fish Notes.

(Compiled from the current issue of
New York Fishing Gazette.)

SALT AND SMOKED FISH.

The Christmas holiday season made the month of December one of the quietest the salt fish dealers have experienced for some time. There was very little buying except for immediate need. Alaska and Holland herring showed a little activity, but not enough to leaven the general apathy of the market.

The early Lenten season this year is expected to quicken the pace of the market before many weeks of the New Year have past. One dealer drew attention to the general understocking of the retail trade and the high prices asked for eggs as indicative of an increased demand for salt fish as soon as the season begins. The Lenten season last year, he said, proved to be the most prosperous one he had had for five years, when his stock was entirely cleared out. He said he expects to do as well this year.

The export market continues to be poor. A ray of hope is seen in some quarters in the prospects of a Cuban loan being floated in this country sufficient to meet the stringent financial needs of that country. Should the loan go through satisfactorily, it will undoubtedly make for a better market in Havana. Greek and Levantine markets are still too demoralized to take any appreciable quantities of fish from this country, and the abnormal foreign exchange rates in Italy and Portugal are working to the disadvantage of the American exporter to those countries.

In this connection it is interesting to note that in Newfoundland there is considerable agitation for compulsory control of all codfish exports as a check against the unfavorable conditions under which dealers in that colony are exporting their products. One of the factors which contributed largely to this new movement was the fact that during the past fishing season a number of steamers visiting the fishing grounds, and loaded up with large cargoes of fish, which they dumped upon European markets, especially in Italy and Spain, with the result that many schooners sailing out from the Banks found their markets destroyed in those countries.

SALT MACKEREL.

The supply during the month of December was more than sufficient to meet the needs of the trade. The run this year along the North Atlantic coast has been exceptional, and in some cases skippers reported that the schools interfered with the progress of their vessels. Much of this fish found its way into the New York market. Besides the domestic product the market has also carried stocks of Irish, Norwegian and Nova Scotian mackerel. Prices fluctuated very little during the month.

SALT HERRING.

The leading varieties on the market during December were the Alaska and Holland. Alaska herring seems to be growing in popularity constantly, especially with the Jewish trade, and prices are recovering from the heavy slump of the early autumn. Buying over the Christmas holidays was of course very light. Holland herring is making its appearance in many retail stores about New York where it has a small demand. Cargoes of from 40,000 to 50,000 kegs, barrels and half barrels kept arriving throughout the month, although many importers had been apprehensive that the new duties would check importations.

SALT CODFISH.

One of the largest dealers in salt codfish in New York declared that he has had little difficulty in disposing of his stock in spite of the general dullness in the market. He anticipates a rise in prices in the near future on account of the limited supply of fish at Gloucester. It is very likely that the domestic supply will be exhausted before the new run is ready, he said, and in that case the trade will have to get its fish from Nova Scotia and other points and pay the duty on it.

SMOKED HERRING.

Hand to mouth buying has characterized the smoked herring market during December. A small demand for imports continues. One dealer, who imports considerable amounts from Newfoundland, declared that the consignments received recently have been of uneven quality, with many lean herring included among the lot.

Horse Breaks Leg.

HEAVY LOSS TO OWNER.

The fast pacing mare Helen, owned by Mr. Ken Harnum broke her fore leg while passing the R.C. Cathedral yesterday, and had to be shot immediately. The loss to the owner is a heavy one, because the animal was very valuable. At the time of the accident Mr. Harnum was proceeding to Quill Viaduct Lake in company with Mr. J. Butler, for a spin over the course, in preparation for the proposed racing meet. The animal was first imported from New Jersey by Mr. George Summers and has about eight years old. She was a very fast pacer and had few equals in her class in this country.

C. M. B. C.

VICE-PRINCIPAL OF QUEEN'S COLLEGE, WELCOMED.

The Class met yesterday afternoon in the Synod Building and was largely attended. The speaker was the Rev. A. B. Donaldson, recently appointed Vice-Principal of Queen's College, who was given a very hearty welcome. Mr. Donaldson is the son of Canon Donaldson, of Peterborough, England, and has spent several years in Canada, where he gained considerable experience in scholastic and parochial work. Speaking of the work of the Church in Canada, he referred especially to the great prairie provinces and stated some of the difficulties with which the Church had to contend owing to the different nationalities and distance. His picture of Canada is that of a nation in the making which makes it all the more important that the church should increase her efforts to make it a Christian nation.

FIREWOOD TROUBLE AT AYON-DALE.

On Saturday, practically the whole male population of Ayonvale took a holiday to hear a number of actions for cutting firewood, which was preferred against some of their number. The hearing took place before Magistrate O'Toole who reserved judgment in the eleven cases which came before him. It appears that the people of Ayonvale have no firewood in their neighborhood, and a number of them obtained supplies by cutting on an 800 acre tract owned by Mr. Harold Clarke, a mill man. The owner, to protect his property, took action through his solicitor, Mr. F. S. McGrath, who went out by train on Friday in this connection. Although the men were all excited over the matter, the disturbances took place. It is understood that Mr. Clarke, the owner of the property has offered to sell the whole 800 acre tract for two thousand dollars.

ANTI-JEWISH DEMONSTRATION

ANXIOUS COMMENT IN BRITAIN.

LONDON, Jan. 22.
The critical situation in Ruhr is the subject of much anxious comment by morning newspapers, which regard the outlook as so dangerous that it is imperative some way of relieving the deadlock be found. Fear is expressed in some quarters lest Great Britain be forced into some form of active intervention against her will. Some circles also are fearful that if France pursues her present line she will be obliged to increase her forces greatly in the occupied district, with the result that Germany may follow with military action, which would mean war. There has already been a report that Germany is arranging to reinstitute conscription, but no official confirmation of this was forthcoming. Another report, this time from Paris, said that General Ludendorff had been recently at Münster, where he witnessed manoeuvres by troops at that point. This is also unconfirmed. Some commentators entertain the belief that France is convinced she miscalculated the German temper, and finding the results of occupation not what she expected, she seeks a means of withdrawing, if possible, without loss of her prestige. Meanwhile to-day's developments in the Ruhr are awaited in Great Britain with much anxiety.

STRIKES IN PROGRESS.

ATHENS, Jan. 22.
The execution of Thomas Ioannides, for ten years representative in the Near East, of the United States military concerns, is reported in a message from Smyrna. Ioannides is said to have been hanged by Turks, with seven prominent Greeks, after being convicted of giving money to Greek patriotic societies in Smyrna. United States officials and unofficial agencies have been making urgent appeals to the Turks, in Ioannides' behalf, for the past fortnight.

Kipling Rids for His Own Manuscript.

LONDON.—The earliest unpublished manuscript of Rudyard Kipling, one which he had forgotten had existed, has been offered for sale and the highest bidder so far, is the author himself. The manuscript contains 12 pages and is entitled "At the Pit's Mouth." Personal recollections of Duncan Farness—translated from the diary by R.K. and is valued by the owners at 800 pounds sterling. It was written in 1884, while Kipling was a young journalist in India. The story is a satire on Anglo-Indian society and tells of a man's love for a married woman. One of the "Wee Willie Kinkie" stories of the same author has the same title "At the Pit's Mouth," but, except of the locality, the resemblance of this early manuscript ends. Mr. Kipling, when informed that the manuscript had been purchased by the dealers, at first doubted its authenticity, but on examination he declared the work genuine, although he only faintly remembered incidents connected with it. Efforts have been made to publish the manuscript, which is still protected by the original copyright, but Mr. Kipling has refused to give his sanction. This is said to be one of the reasons for his attempts to gain possession of the work.
