A TREMENDOUS HAUL! By Montreal Burglars - Cracked &

Theater Safe. MONTREAL, Nov. 17 .- Burglars effected an entrance through a window into the office of Sparrows & Jacobs, proprietors Thomas S. Hobbs, Hon. A. S. Hardey, of the Theater Royal, this morning and drilled two holes into the safe, which was found open by Lew Rhodt, the treasurer. He states that the safe contained $30,000 of United States bonds belonging o H. H. Jacobs, now in the city, a lot of railway stock belonging to Mr. Sparrow, who is at present out of the city, and some hundreds of dollars of yesterday's receipts. There is no clue except a broken bit used by the burglars, who were evidently experts.

Final Grand Rally Thomas S. Hobbs.

Greatest Meeting of the Campaign Held on Saturday Night.

Ontario's Grand Old Man and the Alleged Modern Moses Contrasted.

Good Reasons Why London Citizens Should Support the Ontario Administration.

Why Were the Railway Employes Refused Their Pay by Mr. Essery?

Ringing Addresses by Hon. A. S. Hardy, Thos. S. Hobbs, Newton W. Rowell, Geo. C. Gibbons, Q.C., and Thomas H. Purdom.

While small arms were being fired in the City Hall Saturday night the Government artillery was booming in the Opera House. It was the scene of the last grand rally of Mr. Hobbs' friends before election night, and the face of Shakespeare above the curtain never beamed upon a finer gathering. Every seat in the pit, circle and galleries was occupied, and throughout the evening scores stood in the aisles and passages. while hundreds were unable to gain admission and reluctantly went home. The assemblage was graced by a large number of ladies-a distinctive feature of London meetings, which strangers remark upon with surprised pleasure. It has seldom been the lot of a London audience to listen to a more entertaining, instructive, eloquent and convincing discussion of political issues. Mr. Hardy's keenlypointed and well-directed shafts of argument and wit were driven home with sledge - hammer blows. The able Commissioner of Crown Lands was in his best form. Mr. Newton W. Rowell, of Toronto, did credit to himself and his native city of London. The attractive manner in which he presented the usually dry subject of finance stamped him as an orator of no little skill. He has the magnetic quality in a high degree, and when he ended his brilliant address he received a veritable ovation. Messrs. Gibbons, Purdom and Hobbs rounded off this splendid programme. ON THE PLATFORM. On the ample platform were hundreds of London's best citizens, including not a few ladies. Mr. V. Cronyn, president of the Liberal Association, was in the chair. cent audience to those on the platform. "Our opponents are continually harping on our being afraid of public meetings. You read the reports of their "grand rallies," and running down the columns one is reminded of the old song, 'Down the Avenue of Chestnuts.' (Laughter.) We have had returns all along the line, and they show accessions where we never expected them, and our friends have only to do their duty on Tuesday and they will roll up such a majority as will satisfy the most ardent Liberal. (Cheers.) Even Court Pride will be proud of it." (Cheers.)

AN OVATION TO MR. HOBBS. Mr. Hobbs entered and took a seat at this juncture, and was greeted with tremendous applause, to which he bowed acknowledgment. MR. GEO. C. GIBBONS.

Mr. Geo. C. Gibbons, Q.C., was given the hearty welcome always accorded him by London audiences. He paid a neat compliment to Chief Justice Meredith. "If people differed from him it didn't make them his enemies; he didn't subject them to abuse. (Cheers.) If we criticised him on his public course, we made no personal attacks on him. (Cheers.) If it would have been a mistake to put out Sir Oliver Mowat and put in Mr. Meredith, as we believed, oh! you Conservatives, what kind of a mistake would it have been to put out Sir Oliver and put in his place Mr. Marter? (Cheers.) It is a mistake this country will never make. (Cheers.) Mr. Meredith was a martyr for twenty years; this man will be for the rest of his life." (Cheers and laughter.) Mr. Gibbons, amid laughter, expressed doubt whether he should talk three hours, but reassured his audience those who talked longest generally said the least. He had always recognized the right of labor and all other classes to representation in the House. The lawyers had their rights, and the merchants and manufacturers had their rights too. (Cheers.) Supposing the whole 94 members of the House were talking machines, what would become of the country? (Laughter.) Mr. Hobbs was a laboring man. He had started as a brakeman and worked his way up with his own hands. It ill becomes those who employed no labor to sneer at him and profess to be the special champions of the workingman. These men who were always shouting and proclaiming themselves the workingman's friend reminded him of one of Senator Hill's stories about a farmer who attended a meeting and was very anxious to announce his occupation. He said: "I was a farmer's son. I was raised on a farm. In fact I may say I was brought up between two rows of corn.' small boy jumped up and said: "He's a pumpkin, begosh !" (Laughter and cheers.) Mr. Gibbons said he was a democrat. He asked the workingmen not to be led astray by these false cries. "I have been among the Grand Trunk men and other working classes during this campaign and can say there is no section more free from party bias and more critical than the mechanic class-and I have too much faith in the intelligence of this city to think you will reject our candidate. (Cheers.) Mr. Gibbons made a strong appeal to the moderate Conservatives present to join with their Liberal friends in this campaign, which was not one of party politics so much as a question of having a suitable representative. THE CANDIDATE. when he rose to speak. "It is fortunate lives cheaply at the expense of the Province, sible government and explained that if one that this campaign-the second in 1894- The actual cost for meat for Dr. Bucke's of the parties in minority were able by has been a short one. Mr. Gibbons has family last year was only 71 cents per referred to my opponent's speech at the meal. And Mr. Marter asks you to turn City Hall. Mr. Essery said the other out the Mowat Government because Dr. night that after he got through with his Bucks spent this exorbitant sum! If there was anything thing like so low a rate as those under the to make a man tired it was listening to Mowat Government. (Cheers.) Mr. Marassert that any ordinary man could have it would cut off the educational allowance said as much in 30 minutes as my opponent know there is no such nuisance in the but I want to tell Mr. Hardy that if Mr. a continual session. (Laughter and cheers.) You all know that the Ontario House is a business house-that there are no great issues dividing the members-and I am vain enough to think that I am quite as capable as my opponent to discuss the business matters which will be brought before the House. (Cheers.) I have not sought political honor. I have not been a seeker of office. I can bear out what Mr. Gibbons says-that many Conservatives in London intend casting their ballots for me on Nov. 20. (Cheers.) I shall do my best if elected to serve you in Toronto, regardless of party, and I can assure you I will not be a party laughing-stock. (Cheers.) I think can do some good for the city of London in Toronto. If I cannot I will not ask you four years hence to support me again.' (Loud cheers.)

MR. NEWTON W. ROWELL Mr. Rowell's reception was a most flattering one, and he did not hesitate to thank the audience for its welcome to a London boy. "It was in the city of London that I livered my first political speech." There was no question, said Mr. Rowell, so near the hearts and the pockets of the people as the question of finance. A squandering government would leave a burden that would fall on the young people in days to come. A parsimonious government would starve, impoverish and cripple the country. Mr. Marter recognized this and denounced the alleged extravagance of the Government, and with arguments not quite so forcible, and with illustrations much less forcible than his arguments, he strove to point out wherein the extravagance existed. Mr. Rowell repeated Mr. Marter's challenge that he (Mr. Marter) would with. draw Mr. Essery from the contest if the Government could prove it had a surplus. "All I have to say," said Mr. Rowell, "is

MR. MARTER DOESN'T KNOW MR. ESSERY. (Cheers and laughter.) He doesn't know him as well as the citizens of London. (Laughter.) He doesn't know him as well as the Conservative party. (Laugh ter.) When once Mr. Essery gets the bit in his teeth Mr. Marter can't draw him off.'

Mr. Rowell then proceeded to explode Mr. Marter's arguments against the existence of a surplus. Mr. Marter had given the assets of the Province at $1,500,000. which, subtracted from the liabilities, left a deficit of $762,000. But he completely ignored assets of $4,600,000, being capital due by the Dominion Government and the common school fund, for which the Province received 5 per cent interest, amounting to $300,000 last year. (Cheers.) $6,156,000. Taking Mr. Marter's statement assets they had a surplus of $3,894,000. (Cheers.) But among the liabilities Mr. Marter included some $2,140,000 of railway certificates, and he said Mowat endeavored were not liabilities because they were not | Meredith. presently payable. They had scattered ment met these liabilities every year with Province; Mr. Essery takes his place in the current revenues. (Cheers.) Last year the Government paid oil $219,000 worth of these certificates. In 20 or 30 years these debts would be wiped off. (Cheers.) Subtracting these, Ontario new had

A SURPLUS OF OVER $6,000,000. Cheers.) Today the Dominion Government had a debt of $240,000,000; Quebec. which started at Confederation with a clean sheet, was well nigh bankrupt; the Provinces by the sea were calling for better terms, but there was one Province which stood pre-eminent, towering above all, and that was Ontario. (Loud cheers.) And they had to keep in mind the other fact that Ontario was the only Province which for a long period had had a Liberal Administration. (Cheers.) Last year they received from permanent Government invest- That is the position which you are called ments apart from this $4,600,000 interest, at the rate of $9 per hour for 24 hours in the day and 365 days in the year. (Cheers.) Surely these were assets, for in these hard times creditors did not pay interest unless they had to do it. Mr. Marter said they should revert to the methods of the Sanfield Macdonald Administration. If the Mowat Administration had proceeded along the lines of the Sanfield Macdonald Administration they would have in the treasury today $16,-914,000. If they paid that back into the pockets of the people, the people would be relieved from taxation to that amount. It was a fundamental principal of the Liberal party that people could not be made rich by taxing them; and if Mr. Marter spent on the same scale as Sanfield Macdonald the people would have to make up the deficiency out of their own pockets.

The Opposition, during their twenty years' experience, ought at least to have become good critics. But in four years, out of the millions of dollars voted for supplies they CHALLENGED NOT ONE CENT. Cheers.) They are saying what is not true when they say the Government is extravagant or they were recreant to their duty when they sat in the House, dumb as dogs, and did not challenge the Government. (Cheers.) Mr. Marter said the Government had increased the expenses of civil government 150 per cent since 1873. Would it not have been fair and candid on his part to have told you that included in the cost of civil government now which was not included then, is the whole cost of administering the Educational Department, of Agriculture, of the Bureau of Mines and other services? (Terrific cheers.) The cost of the same services as those of 1871 has only increased 37 per cent. The cost of government in Quebec, largely ruled by Conservatives, has increased in the Dominion Government, where we get per cent-and yet no word of condemnation. (Cheers.) We should not laugh at (Laughter.) Most of his days he kept a and naturally when he enters city life he cannot shake off his early associations. (Laughter.) He used to say in the House that Dr. Bucke's family consumed some thousands of quarts of milk per year. The actual consumption is a quart per day for each member of the family. Mr. Hobbs received another ovation and, as Dr. Bucke is a vegetarian, I think he describe the urgent necessity for responsuch stuff as he had served up in the City ter says he wants to go back to the old Hall that day. (Laughter.) I can safely | Sanfield Macdonald regime. If he should of the Province 47 per cent. (Hear, hear.) said in three hours. (Cheers.) You all What is the pride and glory of Ontario but the education of her young? And you world as a long-winded man. We have would have to take out of your pockets the place of argument. Perhaps that was heard a good deal about biennial sessions, that amount to maintain it. He would withdraw from the asylums 78 per cent, The Empire heralded Mr. Marter as a man Essery is elected - (Chorus, 'He won't and from hospitals and charities 75 per who was to show the Government no mercy be')-instead of biennial sessions it will be cent of their present allowances. Is there a man here who would like to see the lunatic, the blind, the halt and the lame turned out on the highways? (Cries of 'No!") A man who would condemn a government because it votes to make life pleasant for these poor people is a man who is not in harmony with the spirit of this age. (Cheers.) "As to liquor prohibition, if the courts decide that the Ontario Government has no prohibitory power the lines are then closev drawn. The Mowat Government stands FOR PROVINCIAL CONTROL, the Opposition for municipal control. What is the curse of politics in the United States? It is the low-down saloon in politics. It is not the respectable hotelkeeper who has accommodation and comfort for guests, but it is the man, no matter what his reputation, who controls a few votes, and will elect an alderman in barter for his license. (Cheers.) No greater curse can befall temperance in the land than that the license control should return to the municipalities. Respectable hotel-keepers first took active part in political life. It are one with the temperance people in saywas in London four years ago that I de- | ing this shall not be done, for they do not want to be brought into competition with such disreputable elements." (Cheers.) Sir Oliver Mowat, Mr. Rowell said, would need no statue to his memory; it would be perpetuated in the statute book, in wise and beneficient laws, and in the great resources to the north, which he has won for Ontario. It was generally conceded that Mr. Meredith had been the brains of his party. He had some men of fair ability-Clancy, White, Clark, Campbell, Wood; but they had all gone. Who have the Conservatives to guide the destiny of Ontario? Mr. Marter, with his kitchen polities and butter and eggs policy? (Laughter.) Dr. Ryerson, who trotted around the calf with the cough until his friends began to doubt which was the greater calf and called him off? (Laughter.) Mr. Howland, who told some classical stories here the other night, probably as pointless as his arguments? (Laughter.) The course of decency and honesty in political and municipal affairs will triumph in electing as your representative Thos. S. Hobbs." (Prolonged cheering.)

HON. A. S. HARDY. The Hon. A. S. Hardy on rising to speak was accorded the same generous and enthusiastic reception that greeted the other speakers of the evening. After saying that it was the first time in 22 years that the Government had felt at liberty to speak frankly to the people of London, he went on to speak of Mr. W. R. Meredith and of the number of men who supported him, regardless of politics, in the hope that he would bring the blue ribbon of politicsthe Premiership-to London. Many had The real assets of the Province were supported Mr. Meredith on that ground who could not support his successor. of liabilities and subtracting it from the (Cheers.) Continuing Mr. Hardy spoke of the local patriotism of London and pictured in glowing terms London's magnificent position in the west and the pride that naturally prompted the citizens to elect to deceive the people by telling them these their former distinguished member, Mr.

London. (Laughter.) There is a great gulf between Meredith and Marter, almost as great as between Meredith and Essery. (Applause.) Referring to Meredith and Marter it is the case of the prince and the pigmy. I know of plenty of men in other parts of the Province, as well as the city of London, who would have voted to put Mowat out and Meredith in. I don't know that there is a single man in these towns or in the city of London-except Mr. Essery-who would vote to put Mowat out and Marter in. The case is different. You are no longer dealing with Mr. Meredith. If the blue ribbon of politics is going it will no longer go to a London man, but it will go to Muskoka. After Movat goes out Marter comes in. upon to face and look at and consider before you give your vote. And its a very grave position-grave for the city of London, grave for the Province of Ontario, grave for the entire Dominion of Canada.

(Applause.) Mr. Hardy was applauded when he argued that even in the 22 long years of opposition London had not been discriminated against by the Government in power. The asylum had been enlarged from time to time and all supplies bought in the city. Kingston, Brantford, Stratford and St. Thomas, and even Toronto, had all given the Mowat Government a fair measure of support, whereas

LONDON HAD STOOD ALONE. He asked them to reverse their verdict on the 20th and return the active and energetic citizen of London, Mr. Hobbs, over and above Mr. Essery. (Cheers.)

"Something has been said of the results of the last election." continued Mr. Hardy. "We are pretty evenly divided. That is to say the Government on the one hand and all the other forces on the other—the other forces made up of Conservatives, Patrons, P. P. A. and all other Independents. Not a very harmonious quartet out of which to make a solid Ministry, and Mr. Marter seemed in standing here to claim all but the Liberals. Were they his own they would not be Patrons or P. P. As. or Independents, and the large majority are just as likely to support the Government which is in a straight majority, which they say is equal to all others; and I say much more likely to fall in with the Government than those who by themselves represent 27 or, as they claim, at most 28 members out of the entire House. We have in this country a responsible Government. It is perhaps unfortunate that the majority of the Government is not larger; the absolute majority I am speaking of. I am not speaking of what the Patrons are going to do. They the same period 86 per cent, and that of | themselves have proclaimed it upon every platform from which they have spoken that Conservatism simon pure, has increased 76 | it is not their mission to turn out the Government. They proc aim it in their paper, they proclaim it from their grand master, Mr. Marter because his statesmanship is by the leader who has been elected; they largely mixed with butter and eggs. proclaim it by each and every individual one of the 16 or 17 Patrons who have been general store. He has been all his life deal- | elected, and therefore I think we have a right to take them at their word; therefore I think we have a right to claim that they are not there to turn the Mowat Government out. That is not their object and mission. There is very little danger of the Mowat Government not being able to carry out the Government." (Cheers.)

RESPONSIBLE GOVERNMENT. Mr. Hardy went on elequently to swinging there vote to defeat the Government there would no longer be responsible government, but the minority ruling. Then they could look for scenes such as were enacted in France, where the governments changed almost every morning before breakfast. He said that it had been urged by Conservatives that Mr. Meredith had been too fair and gentlemenly, and Mr. Marter was to be something different and was to do a great work of executiongoing to pound the Government to a jelly. There was to be no fairness, no gentlemanly treatment. Billingsgate was to take why they wanted Mr. Essery. (Laughter.) -to pound the life out of them. (Laughter.) ANSWER TO SHEPPARD'S PRAYER.

"Mr. Sheppard, who is speaking in this city tonight, is the editor of a Saturday paper for young ladies or young gentlemen -to show how high they shall wear their cellars, etc. A great admirer of Mr. Meredith was Mr. Sheppard. Well, that is all right, but even, notwithstanding that, you will remember a year or so ago how he burst upon the country with his cry and his prayer, 'Oh, for a man!' (Somebody echoed 'Oh, for a woman!') 'Oh, for a man; Lord Almighty, he said, 'send us a man l' Well, his prayer seems to have been answered-(laughter)-answered very much as you would expect such a profane prayer to be answered, and he sent him Marter! (Laughter.) Mr. Sheppard will no longer sit in his studio at night or wander over green fields uttering 'Send us a man !' He has got the man. What does he think of him? How much better is he than Meredith? How much more is he going to accomplish than has Mr. Meredith? What has he ever done? What is his record? Before a man should be leader he should show that he has done something to qualify him for the leadership. I have failed to find it. I don't see it after reading what he said here the other night. Not much pounding to pieces or pounding the life out of us the other night. It sounded very much like the old poundage, the old system. One gentleman said there was nothing in it that was very new.

THE SAME OLD STORY that he has been telling along the concession lines of Muskeka (for he boasts that he lived in Muskoka for the past sixteen years).
