THIRTEENTH YEAR

TO ASSASSINATE THE COUNT

Plot to 'Remove' the Japanese Progressist Leader.
Joe Chamberlain's Reply to Mr. Gladstone's Challenge—A Hungarian doctor's threat to assassinate the Count O'Kun, the leader of the Progressist party, and Viscount Kono Tokin, the Japanese Minister of Justice. The attempt is reported to have been instigated by Radical conspirators.

Disablers in a Dilemma.
Joe Chamberlain's Reply to Mr. Gladstone's Challenge.

London, July 31.—G. W. Smallay cables to the N.Y. Tribune: There is not the slightest doubt but that Home Rule will be the first measure introduced by Mr. Gladstone, but his dealing with the improvement in the establishment of parish councils and possibly with the payment of members, will be brought in as the earliest measure to be introduced in the intervals of time necessarily left by the progress of the Home Rule Bill through successive stages.

It is already proved that the putting forth of such a program will be a matter of some embarrassment to Mr. Chamberlain and his friends. They still declare that they are Liberals, even Radicals, as loyal as they were in 1885. Their only point of difference with the bulk of the Liberal party is in respect of Home Rule. But the measures do not directly touch Home Rule, and are therefore essentially Liberal. How can Mr. Chamberlain, even though anti-Home Ruler, stand against them? Mr. Gladstone's quick eye early discovered this dilemma, and he made the opportunity a ready-made one.

Speaking at Birmingham last night, Mr. Chamberlain promptly and boldly took up the challenge. In vain, he tells his old chief, is the rest spread in front of Mr. Gladstone's dilemma. He admits the impossibility of the Disablers voting for Home Rule, but on this point he expects that they will vote in accordance with their professions and convictions. Mr. Chamberlain says clearly enough whether this touch with the register or put on a reasonable business basis and the principle of one man, one vote embodied in legislation, will sweep the country and carry Home Rule triumphantly. As Mr. Chamberlain tersely and picturesquely puts it, "Mr. Gladstone will give us his ground in order that he may afterwards sit on our heads with it. Not for Joe, in my reply to his speech, Mr. Chamberlain probably did not expect any other, but the dilemma of the Disablers, Liberal and Radical, is a matter of some embarrassment to Mr. Chamberlain and his friends.

BURIED BY A FALLING ROOF.

Five Families Narrowly Escaped Death in Parkade.
An accident of a peculiar character occurred in Parkade on Saturday, by which four families are suddenly rendered homeless, and which narrowly escaped being fatal. It was the collapse of six houses in Florence street, close to the corner of Florence and Brock-avenues, and very near the C.P.R. track.

The houses were Nos. 38 to 68 inclusive, and four of them were tenanted. Mr. and Mrs. Tyler with their child lived in No. 60; Mr. and Mrs. Hopper with their three children had just moved into No. 62; Mr. and Mrs. Mahan, who have a family of three children, were in No. 64; and Mr. and Mrs. Campbell, who have some relatives living with them, were in No. 68. No. 58 and 56 were unoccupied. The whole six houses were covered by one roof. Five were owned by Ald. William Bell, while the sixth belongs to the Union Loan and Savings Company. They have been built for some years and have always been regarded as safe.

The accident occurred about 3 p.m. The first intimation received by the tenants was a cracking, rattling noise and a shaking of the houses, which made many of the tenants think there was an earthquake. Then the roof collapsed, and beams and slates came down upon the upper floors. The walls crumbled, and the roof fell in many places. The people were thrown down, and many were injured. Some were killed. The scene was a terrible one.

Only one person injured. Mrs. Mahan, her husband and child, were in the ruins. P. C. Burns dashed in very quickly, and at the expense of a slight cut on the head, got four pieces of flying slate, found and carried out the two younger children, who were comparatively safe by the mother, and with the assistance of a neighbor, carried Mrs. Mahan, who was completely paralyzed and unable to help herself.

Mrs. Mahan was the only person injured, and her injuries proved to be slight. The owners ruefully surveyed their shattered property, and their hearts were broken. They had just moved into the houses, and they had just received the news of the disaster.

CABINET RECONSTRUCTION.

Just now there is talk among Conservatives as to the Cabinet at Ottawa. There are those who hold that further change beyond that of last winter will not now be required. That Mr. Patterson and Mr. Oulmont have proved themselves, and that the old men ought to be left where they are.

Others there are who hold that the Premier is pledged to further reconstruction. They advocate extensive change, and extensive changes involve several retirements. And speaking of retirements at once brings up the office that was available for retiring Ministers. Just why, however, Ministers should have offices is a question that has never been fully explained. The offices vacant or shortly to be vacant are: Leasing-Governorship in British Columbia, Northwest Territories and New Brunswick, and in a short time Quebec and Manitoba. But even the latter may be had now if the Premier cares to make other arrangements. So that, as a starting point, several holes to slip in Cabinet posts if he desires to begin at that kind of play.

Next as to the men suggested by this one or that one for retirement from the Cabinet: Mr. Dewdney, Minister of the Interior, is frequently mentioned as willing to go to British Columbia as Governor; Hon. John Carling, now in the office of back to the Commons, vouchsafing the value of his front-street property in Victoria by the settlement of Union Station right opposite it, might be asked to go to Quebec by retiring; of the three other Ontario ministers, Bowell, Hagar and Patterson, Mr. Bowell is the oldest and Mr. Hagar is the youngest, but still willing to remain in active service.

As to Quebec, Sir Adolphe Caron and Mr. Chaplain are both being put forward for Spenserwood, and this to trade places with Governor Rogers, who would enter the Cabinet. No changes are spoken of in the Maritime representation. Cotnam and Foster, Tupper and Sir John Thompson will continue to represent their provinces.

The strong men in the Cabinet to-day are one from each of the big provinces, and they are really the makers of it and of their colleagues. They are Sir John Abbott, Quebec; Sir John Thompson (Nova Scotia); Mr. Foster (New Brunswick); and Mr. Hagar (Ontario). And who are making a book of choice, if he heads his list with these names, especially if he is well posted, as every Cabinet reconstructor ought to be.

Who next, then, are the available men to bring into the Northwest? Well, the Northwest is lacking in Cabinet material. There are too many Ouellet's, Frasier's, and other names. There are also a few names who are not in the House, one of the finest debaters, but still lacking in his official aptitude, but still lacking in his official aptitude, but still lacking in his official aptitude.

It has been suggested that Hon. J. C. Patterson go from the Secretaryship to the Interior. It is a department of work, and the House is not likely to take of his cost if he desired to win honors in so hard a post. But there is another man suggested for this post, George H. Hall, who is a member of the House, and who is a member of the House, and who is a member of the House.
