Britain's Unrighteous Crusade.

Goldwin Smith writes in The Weekly San: To the valor of the torodon Highlanders and their comrades, British or native, who recaled the perious palleade at Dargal, unstituted praise is due. There is nothing to limit our pride in their achievement, in doing a brave soldier's duty they were not concerned with the merits of the cause. But to us, if we as British subjects are morally partakers in the 'puntitive expedition,' the merits of the cause are a matter of some concern. They are at least, if in our hearts justice has not entirely given way to imporial aggrandizement. These mountaineers own no natural allegiance to the British Grown. Nor are they bound to surrender themselves to the distates of "the forward policy," or the alleged need of a "escentific frontier." It cannot be said that as savages they are the legitimate prey of a civilized conqueror, since if they share the Afghan character, the have a good deal of sentimental, if not of material, civilization. They are probably not more uncefulized than the Scotch Highlauders were two or three centuries ago, or than the Swiss were in the time of Willem Toll. Nor is it much against them that their patriotism is fired by religious zeal, which is called fanations when the religion is not ours. Righteousness, just at present, is at a discount; Jingoism has everything its own way. Yet history may almost apply to nations that which the Pealuist has said of men She could not easily point to a righteous nation which lafter a course of rapacious aggrandizement, when it seemed to be raised to the height of grandeur, has been foresken indeed.

Mr. Themas Ballard, Syracuse, N. Y. writes: "I have been afflicted for nearly a year with that most to-be-dreaded disease Dyspepsia, and at times worn out with pair, and want of sleep, and after trying almost overything recommended, tried a box of Parmellee's Vegetable Fills. I am now nearly well, and believe they will cure me. I would not be without them for any money."

Sir Wilfrid to Mr. Crean,

Sir Wilfrld to Mr. Crean.

The Canadian Gazette (London, England) makes the following reference to a present given by the Premier to that Prince of railway conductors, Edward Crean of South Quebee:

Sir Wilfrld Laurier had a magnificent national welcome on his return to Canada. But he had a special welcome from G.T.R. conductor Ned Crean "Ned," it seems, is one of the Fremier's greatest admirers, and when Sir Wilfrld was in Ireland he purchased in Dublin one of the finest blackborns that ever charmed an Irishman's heart, nad it richly mounded in silver, with the ongraved inscription, "Ned Crean, from his old friend, wilfrld Laurier," and presented it to the delighted Ned on his return. Ned's gratitude found expression in characteristic fashion. As he took the "Kippeen" from the Premier's hand he said: "May the heavens to your bed, but may it be a long time till you get there."

UNKQUALIED.—Mr. Thos, Brunt, Tyon.

a long time till you get tileto.

UNRQUALLED.—Mr. Thos. Brunt, Tyondinaga, Ont., writes:—" I have to thank you for recommending Dr. Thomas Ectlectrate Oru, for bleeding piles. I was troubled with them for nearly fifteen years, and tried almost overything I could hear or think of. Some of them would give me temperary relief, but none would effect a cure. I have now been free from the distressing compliant for nearly eighteen months. I hope you will continue to recommend it."
