

longer; and occasioned great damage to numerous buildings, particularly those occupied by foreign commerce. We have since had repeated shocks, of short duration. The town is a picture of consternation; and will remain so until after Pentecost, the anniversary of the terrible convulsion of 1770. Our stores and dwelling-houses are shattered from roof to base. Accounts from Gonaives of the 8th are more deplorable; the place having been visited by fire at the same time, and our correspondent there was writing literally in the street. We are most anxious, however, for intelligence from the Cape. A Government Courier arrived here last night from the neighbourhood, with most dreadful tidings, that the city and most of the inhabitants had perished, the sea having risen during the convulsion and submerged the town in its vicinity. The surviving inhabitants are said to be without food. What tends to confirm the report, is the activity of government in sending round provisions. We are in dreadful suspense, as you may well imagine; as one and all of us are without a line from any of our friends there."
