Those traitors who would set fellow-citizens and fellow-countrymen fighting each other instead of developing the country's wealth and cultivating each other's kinship and esteem, are afraid to let the people know who they are, they are sworn at night to not reveal their identity, but to even perjure themselves in courts of law when oaths are required, in order to conceal their identity.

WE regret for want of space having to hold over till our next issue an account of the dramatic and musical entertainment given by the pupils of St. Mary's Academy, Notre Dame street, on Monday evening, in honor of the Very Rev. Father Soulier, Superior General of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate. While witnessing the play, and taking note of the very creditable manner in which each and every one of these young lady pupils, (even some little toddlers of about five summers) acquitted themselves, the thought just struck us that had the Hon. Jos. Martin and the rest of the clique which go to make up the Greenway Government, the pleasure of being present at one of these entertainments, (and if sincere at heart for the advancement of educational interests in this province) they would have reason to blush for their conduct in passing the infamous School Act of 1890, which tends to dwarf and deprive an institution such as none other under the sun "except of its kind" excels in facilities for a thoroughly finished education to our bright young rising generation. When these young ladies step out into the world in the years of womanhood they are not only a credit to the academy but a credit to the Dominion from whence they spring, and greater than all a credit to their parents.

WE can boast of no P. P. A. here, and think our Protestant friends here are too sensible to allow of such. IRISH HOME RULE FUND.

Winnipeg, Man., April 16th, 1894. Captain P. D. O'Phelan, Late Chairman of the Home Rule Association, Winnipeg, Graceville, Minn.

Dear sir,—The sum of $10 having been handed to us in aid of the Home Rule Fund since your removal from this city and as the collections made here were entirely made through your energetic perseverance in behalf of the Irish cause, we deem it only right that this sum should be forwarded through you to Hon. Mr. Blake, or the committee appointed to receive such moneys. We beg, therefore, to enclose a money order for $10, which you will kindly forward to its destination.

Yours truly, FRANK McPHILLIPS, Ex-Treasurer. A. MCGILLIS, Ex-Secretary.

Graceville, Minn., April 23rd, 1894. Hon. J. P. Ryan, Secretary Irish National Federation, Room 22, Cooper Union, New York City.

Dear sir,—Will you be so kind as to forward to its destination the enclosed draft and communication, which I consider it my duty to transmit through your hands, to Hon. E. Blake, M.P. for Louth, House of Commons, London, England? By so doing you will greatly oblige.

Yours fraternally, P. D. O'PHELAN.

[Enclosure to Hon. E. Blake, M.P., House of Commons, London, England.] Graceville, Bigstone County, Minnesota April 23rd, 1894. Hon. E. Blake.

Dear sir,—The enclosed letter from Winnipeg, Canada, is self-explanatory. The lovers of liberty on both sides of the International boundary line are delighted with the work you have done toward securing self-government for Ireland. Continue, my dear sir, your noble efforts to emancipate the noblest and most historic race in Europe, and your name will go down to remotest posterity as one of the greatest benefactors of mankind, and the people of the United States, and Canada as well, will show by their monetary contributions that they are with you in the fight—or until a Parliament will assemble in College Green, to make laws for the people of Ireland.

I remain most respectfully, P. D. O'PHELAN, Ex-Chairman, Winnipeg, Canada, Home Rule Association.

Mrs. Trotter—"Then it would read, 'Our cross grandmother.' That would do very well, for she was real cross sometimes."

"Can't you settle this bill to-day? Senator?" asked the tailor of the delinquent legislator.

"No, Snip; it wouldn't be parliamentary. I've merely glanced over it, you know, and I can't pass a bill until after its third reading."

"I hope things are more peaceful in the choir than formerly," said the pastor. "Yes, sir," replied the organist; "it's perfectly calm now."

"I'm glad to hear it. How peace secured?" "Everybody excepting myself resigned."

"I said to your bird, Polly want a cracker?" but she didn't seem to understand me."

"Well, you see, Polly was brought up in Boston. If you had said, 'Does Polly desire to masticate a biscuit?' you would probably have had a different result."

EXCUSE US!

ACCIDENT AT THE REVIEW OFFICE.

PRINTERS are but human, after all. We have had a very painful example of this this week. As we were going to press an accident happened to the first and fourth pages and the whole of the matter which we had painfully and laboriously set up during the preceding week was precipitated into a mass of "pie." The most annoying part of the business, however, is that a long article on the arrival of the Very Rev. Father Soulier, Superior-General of the Oblates of Mary Immaculate, and the great demonstrations held in Winnipeg and St. Boniface was amongst the various other articles which have been so unfortunately disintegrated. We hope our numerous friends and subscribers will pardon the delay in placing before them this issue, but accidents will happen, and to err is human. The article, the non-appearance of which we so deeply deplore, will appear on the first page of our next issue.

HOW TO DRESS AND SHIP POULTRY. It Pays to Send Fowls to Market in Proper Regulation Style.

The great aim is to have poultry reach the market in perfect order, firm, ripe and sound and that it may present as handsome an appearance as possible. Keep from food from 12 to 24 hours before killing. Kill by bleeding in the mouth or opening the veins in the neck. The fowls should be properly dried, hung by the feet until properly dried. Pick immediately, before the blood stops flowing, taking care not to tear the skin. The wing and tail feathers should not be removed until the bird is actually dead. For scalding the water should be as near the boiling point as possible without actually boiling. Pick the legs dry before scalding and hold the fowl by the head and legs.

If the head is immersed it turns the color of the comb and gives the eyes a sunken appearance. The fowls should be held in about 10 seconds or lifted up and down three times, which is better. The feathers should be removed immediately, very cleanly and without breaking the skin, then "plump" by dipping 10 seconds in water at nearly the boiling point and then immediately into cold water.

"After 'plumping' the fowls, if not put in ice water, should be hung in a cool place until the animal heat is entirely out and should be packed cold but not frozen. Dried-picked chickens and turkeys always sell best, the quality being equal. Chickens and turkeys that are poor will look plumper if scalded.

The packages for shipment should be neat, clean and light. Use either barrels or boxes holding about 200 lbs. Boxes are best and should be lined with clean paper. Never use straw in packing nor wrap the birds in paper. Pack as closely as possible, backs upward, legs out straight and that the boxes are so full that when the covers are nailed on there can be no possibility of the contents shifting. The fowls must be perfectly dry and cold before packing.

Ducks and geese should always be scalded. Hold them in the water longer than for fowls, as the feathers are so thick that more time is required to penetrate and loosen them. It is a good plan after scalding to wrap them in a blanket provided they are not left long enough to partly cook the flesh. Another method is to steam them to loosen the feathers. It is poor policy to dry pick just before killing, as this causes the skin to be very much flamed and greatly injures the sale. The feet should not be skinned nor the body singed. The process of "plumping" and killing is the same as for turkeys and chickens. There is no kind of stuff harder to sell than poor slovenly dressed ducks and geese.
