

THE PETROLEUM QUESTION.

"The Lectures on Petroleum which the Government had engaged Charles Marvin to deliver before the Royal Engineers at Chatham came off on the 30th and 31st ult., and excited the deepest interest."—United Service Gazette, Feb. 9th, 1889.

ENGLAND AS A PETROLEUM POWER;

By CHARLES MARVIN.

Describing the Burmese and other Oil Fields within the Empire. With Two Maps.
Fifth Thousand. Price 1s.

Twice translated into German, and twice into Russian—once by the Russian Government.

"Charles Marvin has been elected Corresponding Member of the Imperial Russian Technical Society, in recognition of his writings on Petroleum."—Academy, Aug. 6th, 1887.

THE COMING DELUGE OF RUSSIAN PETROLEUM,

And its Bearings on British Trade.

Describing the Mammoth Oil Fountains at Baku, and the development of the Russian Industry. With Two Maps. Price 1s.

Twice translated into German, and twice into Russian. Third Thousand.

"At a meeting of the Balloon Society yesterday it was resolved to present the Gold Medal of the Society to Charles Marvin, in recognition of his valuable writings on Petroleum."—Globe, January 5th, 1888.

BAKU, THE PETROLIA OF EUROPE.

A Historical Account of the Caspian Petroleum deposits from the earliest times.

With Two Maps. Price 1s. Second Thousand.

After two years' incessant agitation, the crusade conducted by Charles Marvin against dangerous lamps has resulted in the Government appointing a Commission to inquire into the matter.

THE MOLOCH OF PARAFFIN;

Being a Popular Scientific Account of Lamp Accidents, and how to avoid them.

Death in the Lamp—Various kinds of Lamp Accidents—Causes of Lamp Explosions—Types of Lamps in use, with Coloured Diagrams showing their Defects—Why Glass and China Reservoirs are universally Condemned by Experts—Shoddy Safety Lamps—Hospital Experiences—Is the Oil to blame or the Lamp?—The necessity for Legislative Interference to put down Dangerous Paraffin Lamps.

Translated into Russian. Price 1s. Thirtieth Thousand.

"At the Petroleum Exhibition at St. Petersburg, the Imperial Russian Technical Society not only placed copies of Charles Marvin's 'Moloch of Paraffin' (the Russian translation is called the 'Kerosinovi Moloch') about the Exhibition for the public to read, but sold it among the cheap popular guides it had adopted to assist the public in studying the Petroleum display."—Ironmonger.