Ald. Church's Reason.

Ald. Church said that his attitude was the result, more directly, of the legal steps being taken to unseat members. If the council should relinquish their seats, the troublesome issue would be at an end, and public sentiment would be satisfied.

"We were elected on the power issue, and another issue, which was not an issue in the election has been set up," he said. "I hope all the council will agree to resign. Let us have another fight. I am willing to hand in my resignation now and have the peo-

Alarmed at Turkish Penetration of Persia, Funds Are Voted and Troops Will Advance.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 8.-The Russo-Turkish relations have entered upon a menacing phase. Alarmed at the unchecked Turkish penetration of Persia, and the mobilization in Armenia, the Russian government has decided to execute a formidable military demonstration in reply on the Turko-Persian frontier despatching there a compact expedition of 60,000 select troops from Central Russia, with full war from Central Russia, with full war equipment, and it is acting with uncommon rapidity with a view to overaweing the Turks by a decisive exhibition of force.

The war office has drawn up plans of the expedition, and submitted them hurriedly for legislative enactment to the douma on Friday. The committee on national defence assembled in a virtually closed session. A representative of the war office briefly and impressively outlined the Turkish preparation, of which Russia is fully informed, and asked for an open credit for the maintenance of an army of 60,000.

He met the possible arguments of economy by saying that Russia had expended blood and treasure in Manchuria in vein, owing to the initial backwardness in armament. The empire's prestige in the middle east, he said, is now also in the balance, and Russia must be prepared to defend it.

M. Guchkoff, leader of the Octobrist party, in a speech, said that the majority in the douma were Russian patriots and willing to part with their "last shirt" to defend the fatherland. The committee in a high pitch of patriotism passed the appropriation unanimously. At the same session the war office obtained sanction for a further item of $10,000,000 to create floating batteries along the Baitic coast, which, owing to the weakness of the navy, is at the mercy of Germany.

The heavily armed procession which left the Neccidades Palace was reminiscent of a bygone age. Cavalry with pikes led the way; infantry and artillery brought up the rear.

The cortege proper was surrounded by squadrons of dragoons. It consisted of the funeral cars, following in the wake of high-seated gilded coaches, each drawn by six pairs of richly-caparisoned mules, in which rode the special ambassadors and the high dignitaries of the court. These lumbering, creaking, springless vehicles are Portugal's pride, dating back to the golden age. Each has a romantic history. Riding alongside of these were special platoons of hussars with drawn sabres.

The crown, veiled with crepe, was borne in a separate carriage. The sword-bearers, black-capped, and the staff-bearers, walked ahead of the funeral cars, and three rows of taper-bearers on either side. Bareheaded lacqueys, in royal livery of red and yellow, and halberdiers, with arms reversed, marched behind the cars. Here also came the mounts of the dead master, covered with black mantles. The sleeves of the soldiers, the whips of the coachmen, hilts of swords, caps of grooms and points of The street lamps, veiled and lighted, heightened the effect of the cortege. On the arrival of the funeral coaches before the door of the Morterio de Sao Vincente, the Holy House of Lisbon, an association for helping the poor, assisting the wounded and burying the dead, exercised the ancient privilege of carrying the coffins of kings to the grave and saying the first prayers. The caskets were placed on two biers before the door of the church, where the patriarch, assisted by clergy, received them, first sprinkling them with holy water, then giving his blessing and saying: "Requiescat in pace." The ceremony of handing over the coffins to the patriarch of Lisbon was carried out immediately after the departure of the members of the cortege. The grand chamberlain handed him the keys and declared upon solemn oath that the bodies of King Carlos and Crown Prince Luiz Phillippe really were contained in the coffins, that he had seen and recognized them and locked them in and had accompanied the bearers of the kevs
