THE Nova Scotia Almanack, now presented to the public, is the work of much attention and care. The matter is obtained from sources unquestionably valuable, and with a strict eye to the design and scope of such a publication. The "Calendar Pages" are thought to be especially correct; and the proprietor feels much confidence in recommending that part of the work to those who may have to make use of it, as an unerring criterion.

The various Institutions throughout the Province,—public, literary and scientific associations; temperance, religious and philanthropic societies,—Ministers of the Gospel, in their respective stations—Officers of his Majesty's Army, Navy, and provincial Militia—these, with the rest of the arrangement, comprise much that may be called important and useful.

To facilitate references, an Index has been carefully framed, and the pages numbered.

As it would be quite impossible in a work of such limited range, to find accommodation for all the matter which has been so ably and bountifully prepared for the Nova Scotia Almanack, by its well-wishing contributors, and as some sacrifice must be made, where an individual is allowed but a restricted selection from an abundant store, the proprietor confidently trusts, that in this, precisely his situation, the pain of inevitable disappointment will be ascribed to him—which is only relieved by the hope he indulges, of employing the materials now withheld, in the work of a succeeding year.
