THE BOTTOM OF THE SEA.

[Nothing can be more beautiful than a view of the bottom of the sea, during a calm, even around our own shores, but particularly in tropical climates, especially when it consists alternately of beds of sand and masses of rock. The water is frequently so clear and undisturbed, that at great depths the minutest objects are visible, groves of coral are seen expanding their variously coloured clumps, some vivid and immovable, and others waving gracefully their flexible branches. Shells of every form and hue glide slowly along the shores, or cling to the coral boughs like fruit; crabs and other marine animals pursue their prey in the crevices of the rocks, and sea plants spread their limber shrouds in gay and gaudy irregularity, while the most beautiful fishes are seen sporting on every side.]

"The floor is of sand like the mountain drift, And the pearl shells spangle the flinty snow; From coral rocks the sea plants lift Their boughs where the tides and billows flow.

The water is calm and still below, For the winds and waves are absent there; And the sands are bright as the stars that glow In the motionless fields of upper air.

There with its waving blade of green, The fan-coral sweeps through the clear deep sea; And the crimson leaf of the dulce is seen To blush like a banner bathed in slaughter.

There, with a light and easy motion, The fan-coral sweeps through the clear deep sea; And the yellow and scarlet tufts of ocean Are bending like corn in the upland lea.

And life in rare and beautiful forms, Is sporting amid those bowers of stone; And in safe when the wrathful spirit of storms Has made the top of the wave his own.

And when the ship from his fury flies, Where the myriad voices of ocean roar; When the wind god frowns from the murky skies, And demons are waiting the wreck on shore.

Then far below, in the peaceful sea, The purple murex and godfish rove; Where the waters murmur tranquilly, Through the bending twigs in the coral grove."

A gentleman called at the house of an honest old lady for the purpose of collecting a small debt. Not recollecting the amount, he promised to send his bill that evening. The old lady, supposing he meant his son William, replied, "Oh la, our Sal never sat up with any body yet, but Bill's a clever fellow, and they may build a fire in the other room."—New York paper.
