

Great Crowds have attended the Maritime Salvage Co.'s effort to dispose of all the Russell Shoe stock at 695 Main street. Nothing but very low prices could have sustained this interest of shoe buyers. Bargains have been bigger than ever before in shoe selling history of St. John. If this store were not to be occupied May 1st by Lilley & Co., these big price reductions would not be made. All the shoes not sold this month will be for sale by public tender, this will be a grand opportunity for storekeepers to get a snap. Now for eleven months this store has kept the shoe prices of St. John down to rock bottom and before April 30 enough people resident in St. John will have learned from us what to expect for a dollar invested wisely in shoes to kill high prices here for months to come. It will be difficult for any dealer to ask big profits on shoes for months to come.

NOTICE—Letter orders must be accompanied with sufficient cash to buy all wanted. Balance will be returned in postal notes if lines required are all gone. Money will be returned day received. Goods always shipped dry order received.

RING / Bouts Tonight.

Charley White vs. Jimmy Duffy, Buffalo.
Leo Houck vs. George Brown, Atlanta.
Al Shubert vs. Young Merino, Lawrence.

Gallet vs. Sullivan.
Of a bout to take place in Amherst tonight, the Amherst Daily News says: "For probably the first time in his career Gallet will meet a man that can go it just as well as himself, and many fans think a shade better. This James Sullivan of Roxbury, Mass., is a scrapper that carries a punch, not a slow brawler, but one that comes with a sharp swing and a sudden jolt. Sullivan has met some of the classiest boys in the States and has licked off fourteen sleep wallopers in twenty-one bouts. Gallet will have the go of his life on his hands."

$20,000 Offer for Jess.
A London syndicate has offered a $20,000 purse for a bout between Frank Moran and Jess Willard. Willard is offered $1,000 for expenses.

Coffey Defeated Morris.
In New York last night Jim Coffey, the Dublin giant, administered a beating to Carl Morris in a ten round bout. The winner has issued a challenge to fight Jess Willard.

Willard Got Only Glory.
Havana, April 6.—It develops that Jess Willard got only glory out of his fight with Jack Johnson. The big Kansas cowboy smiled when he admitted it. His agreement was to take one-half of whatever money that was left after Johnson's $80,000 and the expenses were taken out. Jack Curley gave out the official figures as $78,000. He said that he had made expenses but that all hands expected to clean up on the moving pictures.

Referee's Version.
Havana, April 6.—Referee Jack Welsh declared today that if he had been compelled to give a decision at the end of the Johnson-Willard fight, it would have been in Johnson's favor by a wide margin. "Up to the 20th round," said Welsh, "Willard had won only one round by a real margin, and two or three others by the slightest shade."

"In the 18th and 14th I was almost sure Johnson would knock Willard out, but Willard showed that his jaw and his body were too tough. Johnson put up a wonderful fight to the 20th round, but age stepped in then and defeated him."

"I think that Johnson put up one of the most masterful battles I ever witnessed." "He couldn't have lost in the shorter route. He fought carefully and punched the white man terribly, but Willard is built to take a terrific hiding. It will be many a day before they whip Willard. His size is his greatest asset, and this alone will hold the title for him."

for many years to come. I don't think anybody ever gave him credit. He is a far superior man than I ever dreamed he was."

Johnson Kept Gloves.

Havana, April 6.—After the fight yesterday, when Jack Curley went over to Johnson's corner to cut the gloves off his hands, the negro looked up, smiled feebly and said: "Let me keep these." "How do you feel?" asked Curley. "All right," said Johnson. "Everything is all right; the best man won."

Later Johnson told Tom Finagan he was glad he lost. He said:—"Now, all my trouble will be over. They will let me alone."

Johnson knew he was gone sooner than anybody else. In the rest between the 21st and 22nd rounds he sent for H. H. Fraser and asked him to find Curley. Soon afterward he told Finagan he was getting crank and could not last much longer. "I want you to get my wife out of here," he said.

Finagan told him to go on a few rounds and see how he felt. Between the 25th and 26th rounds Curley was found. Johnson repeated his request to him. Curley went to the box occupied by Mrs. Johnson, back of Willard's corner and told her what he said. He offered to take her out. Mrs. Johnson agreed to go. The 27th round had started and the fight was on. As she moved past Willard's corner the knockout came. Her husband dropped before her eyes. Johnson expects the interest in the pictures to bring him an income.

Ostracism Awaits Mrs. Johnson?

Who will feel the effects of the Willard-Johnson fight at Havana, Cuba, the most? Some will say Jess Willard as the new champion, with his rise to power and the paths to riches and honor that have been opened up to him. Others, Jack Johnson, a fallen king, exiled from his native land, who will no longer be looked up to even by those who alone admired him for his physical strength and cleverness with his fists.

But how about Mrs. Jack Johnson? Sharing with him his life in exile she has been tolerated by those who were obliged to come into contact with her simply because she was the champion's wife.

His fall from the lofty position he has occupied for five years according to the law that governs race and human nature nothing but complete ostracism now awaits her.

Members of her own race have looked down and despised her—who was formerly Lucille Cameron of Minneapolis—ever since she was wedded to Johnson on Dec. 9, 1912.

The colored people to a great extent have condemned the marriage. Others have simply been as nice as they could without going out of their way to do so because they did not wish to offend her husband whom many looked upon as an idol. Some tried to accept the union, contenting themselves by trying to believe "the king can do no wrong."

TURF

Famous Horse Dead.
New York, April 7.—The death of Bash, one of the most prized blood mares at Harry Payne Whitney's Brookdale farm, became known Wednesday. Bash was the daughter of Adam, a French stallion.

Mr. Whitney paid $30,000 for the mare at the dispersal sale of the Newcastle stable at Saratoga Springs in 1910, in the hope of winning the future. She ran second to Schilders Novelty in that race, but later won the filly half of the matron stakes.

BASEBALL

Cottrell for Yankees.
Greensboro, N. C., April 8.—To-night Ensign Cottrell, one of the four southpaws on the roster of the Braves, signed a contract to pitch for the New York American League club. With his departure from the Braves is marked the first break in the roster. The lack of left handed pitchers on the staff of the Yankees caused his new employers to make their deal with the Boston club.

playing of golf with the left-hand method seems a distinct handicap. But there are players who have triumphed over much more real and more serious disabilities. One-armed players are not uncommon. Yves Beccaton, a Frenchman, who in recent days has been doing Red Cross work in his own country, played in the open championship last year in the United States and did very well considering that he has only one arm.

But the most extraordinary instance of golfing skill under hopeless-looking disabilities is that of Thomas P. McAuliffe, who lost his arms through road accident when he was a caddy. He grips the club firmly between his right shoulder and chest, and with the combined swing and jerk of the body and shoulder he produces a remarkably good stroke. He hits the ball 100 yards straight down the course with a driver, brassie, or mid-iron, and with his mallet he gets a distance of seventy-five yards. From anywhere within fifty yards of the hole he is astonishingly accurate with the mallet. He has done the round of the Buffalo County Club course in 108, and the course, which has a bogey of 78, is said to be one of the best-bunkered in the States. At the present time he is taking in the Central High School of Buffalo the preparatory course for Cornell University. His skill in games is not confined to golf, for he plays pool and billiard well.

Major Towse is also notable among those who defy under great physical difficulties. The gallant officer had his eyes shot out in the South African war, yet he goes the round of the links with much skill. His only stipulations in a game are that he shall be allowed to touch the ball with his hands to ascertain its position, and that his caddy may ring a small bell to indicate the position of the hole.

Her View.

A minister who recently called upon a young widow to console with her on the loss of her husband, placed considerable emphasis on the fact that the separation was only of a temporary character, and painted in vivid colors the happiness of friends reunited after death. When he stopped for breath the sorrowing one heaved a deep sigh and quietly remarked:—"Well, I suppose his first wife has got him again, then."

BLACK'S RETAIN TROPHY

Incidentally They Make New Record—Some High Strings

Black's alleys team retains the Brunswick-Balke-Collender trophy for another year as a result of their excellent record in the bowling tournament which was brought to a close last night. They met the three challengers and defeated them one after another. In the last game in which they participated they hung up a new Canadian record for candle pins when they rolled a total of 1916. Their strings were 850, 515, 524. Sullivan rolled 289 for a total pinfall. Cosgrove had 305, Bailey had 330, McIlveen had 277 and Wilson 215. In their match in the afternoon against the Victorias, Jack Bailey rolled a string of 142 which was instrumental in securing the team's victory. His average for the tournament was 105.4-5. Coughlan had the highest individual string, 143. Black's had the highest team single string and the highest team total, 524 and 1516 respectively. The bowling by all the teams throughout the tournament was the best ever witnessed in any like competition in this city. The following was the result of the games played yesterday afternoon and evening.

Black's, 1429; Victorias, 1390.
St. Croix, 1439; Eastport, 1348.

Force of Habit.

A young lady telephone operator attended watchnight service, and fell asleep during the sermon. At the close the preacher said, "We will now sing hymn number three, forty-one—three forty-one." The young lady, just waking in time to hear the number, yawned and said, "The line is busy. Please call again."
