CAUSES PANIC.

Financier.

Three Million Dollars---Cther Wealthy Firms Involved.

The immediate cause of Jaluzot's discomfiture is found in Saturday's quotation for sugar, namely 28 F., 12c. per bag. At the beginning of the year the price ruled at 45f. to 46f. per bag, and it would appear that Jaluzot then occupied a "bull" position, which he could no longer maintain when, Saturday's closing prices were announced.

According to some financial authorities the great "slump" in sugar is the outcome of the battle between Jaluzot them.

Mr. Petropolos was not inside, said the witness, but he saw him outside. Officer Scott gave his evidence in regard to the Dock street shop. Sunday morning he visited the shop about 9 o'clock. Witness said he asked the proprietors if they were not going to close; if they did not they would be reported. They continued to do business; he took their names and reported them.

Austin at once got a taste of what was to follow, and out of the 492 passengers on board, there was hardly one who looked forward to the journey with pleasure after the first half hour. A terrific head wind was blowing nearly all the journey, and the seas became rougher as the evening advanced. Men, women and children in the throes of mal de mer were lying about dishabille, not caring who saw them or what happened.

According to some financial authorities the great "slump" in sugar is the outcome of the battle between Jaluzot and the "bears," the latter forcing down prices in spite of the spring inclination that this year's beet root crop would be comparatively light.

Of one play the Milwaukee Sentinel says: "At this stage of the proceedings Goodwin con cluded to pass Oyler and work on Fox and Seiver. His judgment came near undergoing a severe test. Fox popped up a fly to short left field that was too far back of Robinson (s. s.) for him to handle and apparently too near for O'Neill. But the fleet left fielder pulldid run he managed to get his gloved Stockton, K. C., for the defendant. and under the ball and completed the wonderfully spectacular play by whip-ping the ball to McCormick, who completed a double play.

This appeared to take all the fighting spirit of the Millers out of them and they calmly submitted to quick retirement in the two innings that followed." SYDNEY REGATTA POSTPONED.
