the cannon to various cities as gifts of the government.

Soon after the Army of Occupation reached German soil requests for canteen began arriving from American soldiers. Among the guns turned over were two heavy 42 centimetre howitzers and a 150 millimetre gun. One of the 150 millimetre guns was located. Nearly two hundred cannon of various calibres have arrived here, but so far only a few have been accepted, as most of them are missing parts. It is understood, however, that the parts have been shipped from Germany.

Among the airplanes being received is an armored battle machine which carries six machine guns. The Germans used this type of machine to strafe infantry. Several observation planes were among the 110 turned over to the Americans at Trossen. These will be sent to America. One that will be sent across the ocean is the first Fokker used by the enemy in the western front. It is in perfect condition. The planes will be distributed among American colleges and aviation corps.

One of each type of airplane in use by the German army will be sent to Washington to be added to the collection of relics being made by the War Department.

UPREME NAVY NEEDED FOR BRITISH DEFENCE

Naval Writer Outlines Fundamental Principles to Which Great Britain Must Return.

London, Jan. 9.—Great Britain must look back to the fundamental principle of the defence of an island state which is the centre of a maritime empire, says Archibald Hurd, the naval writer, in an article in the Daily Telegraph. He says the defence of an island state is the centre of a maritime empire.

Sea power having been shown to be adequate safeguards against invasion and starvation, and to constitute our first line of defence, the primary problem has been simplified, we pursue neither by sea nor by land an aggressive policy.

Expeditionary Force. Associated with the two fleets an expeditionary force will be necessary for peace has been signed, and provision must be made for re-establishing our position overseas on a voluntary basis.

In order that the expeditionary force may be free to fulfill its overseas mission, and that the navy may not be tied to these shores, the restoration of some sort of a territorial force is desirable.

The Air Ministry, Mr. Hurd continues, probably will become a civil aviation authority, and the War Office the needs of the navy and army.

HOT DEBATE OVER YANKS IN RUSSIA

Operations of U. S. Troops There Defended and Criticized in Senate.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Operation of American troops in Russia was defended and criticized today in the senate, half a dozen senators participating in the vigorous debate which continued several hours.

Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, chairman of the foreign relations committee, opened the discussion by delivering a prepared speech in reply to recent addresses of Senators Johnson of California and La Follette of Wisconsin, Republicans, who had sharply criticized retention of American soldiers on Russian soil.

Senator Borah of Idaho and Francis of Maryland, Republicans, replied to Mr. Hitchcock.

Senator Wilson of New Jersey, President Wilson's statement in his fourteen peace principles and declarations in the armistice terms imposed on Germany as assurances that America is friendly to the Russian people and that Russian territorial and political integrity and independence are assured.

The administration's policy was attacked by Senator France as "unwisely conceived." The Maryland senator contended that Russia was a neutral when her soil was "invaded" by the allied and American troops and declared that the "invasion" like the German invasion of Belgium, was "most unexplainable and inexcusable."

Senator Nelson of Minnesota, Republican, asserted that Bolshevism is being ground gradually, while Senator King expressed regret that greater vigilance by America and Canada against the Allies for the purpose of "walling in the Bolsheviki" those murderous mad men.

Before the senate adjourned Senator Thomas, Democrat, of Colorado, announced that he would discuss the Russian situation when the senate reconvenes next Monday.

GEM THEATRE DESTROYED LAST NIGHT AND OTHER BUILDINGS BADLY DAMAGED

By a Fire Which Devoured Property to the Value of $20,000 of Which Over Half is Covered by Insurance—Blaze Discovered by Patrolman.

Shortly after nine o'clock last night, Patrolman O'Neill sent in an alarm for a fire which resulted in the loss of the Gem Theatre and a considerable damage to the Donohue Bros. livery stable, the Drury building in which is contained the Mutual Film Co., also the Gem fruit store, and the fruit store recently opened by John H. Doyle.

Patrolman O'Neill while passing the Gem Theatre smelled smoke and saw a thin white cloud issuing from the roof of the building. His suspicions aroused, he walked on a little further and saw the red glow of flames bursting through the wall along the work which leads up to the cinema occupied by the Mutual Film Exchange and the J. Drury Lumber Company. Immediately he sent in the alarm but when the first crew of fire-fighters arrived the fire had gained such headway that the roof was ablaze and the red glow of the flaming interior was reflected in the windows.

Within a short time four engines were forcing a steady stream through eight lines of hose, with the men fighting most strenuously as it was feared, with the high prevailing wind, that the entire block would go.

Flames from the interior of the buildings were casting a ruddy glow over the sky, at times a crimson blaze would burst through the windows and walls and at one time flames were pouring through four holes in the front of the theatre building, while the flames on the roof were shooting skyward.

It was soon apparent that the Gem building was doomed, but though several streams were kept playing on the outside and two were at work inside the structure, most activities were directed towards saving the adjoining buildings.

The night was intensely cold which greatly hampered the work of the firemen. Most of them had their hair frozen to their heads, and with coats frozen, gloves frozen and a fairly strong breeze blowing, their work was not by any means a picnic.

During the night Driver Bernard Stafford was badly cut on the lip by one of the hose nozzles. He was half dead and half carried into the Colgan drug store where his injury was attended to and later was taken to the hospital in one of the city trucks.

The buildings were still burning and smoldering at a late hour this morning but a conservative estimate would place the entire property loss at twenty thousand dollars, with insurance to the amount of thirteen thousand.

The Drury building was insured for $2,000, the Gem Theatre carried $3,000 and the Donohue stables' loss will be covered by insurance.

John H. Doyle, who but recently opened a confectionery and fruit store in the building, had his stock badly damaged by water; his loss is estimated at $400. Claude Richardson, who owns a fruit store adjoining, saved most of his stock, but his loss by water and other damage will be from $400 to $500. Neither of the above were insured. The Mutual Film Co. has sustained a total loss which is partly covered by insurance, to the amount of $7,500.

How the fire started is not explained. Some are of the opinion that it originated in the furnace room of the Gem Theatre; others say that it started in the film exchange from an overheated coal stove.

The work of removing stock and equipment from the theatre and buildings was speedily carried out by the Salvage Corps and volunteers. Most of the scenery, some chairs and the piano belonging to the Gem Theatre were saved, all the horses and vehicles in the Donohue stables were rescued. The film at the exchange were nearly all stored away in fire-proof cabinets and were practically immune and though the two fruit stores sustained damage it was caused mainly by water—nearly all the tables, chairs and stock in trade were carried out to a place of safety.

There is no exaggeration to say that the feeling here toward America is better than in any period since the days following her entry into the war.

The European political situation is far from settled. The removal of the strain of war has produced economic conditions. There is a cloudy financial outlook and, above everything, the menace of Bolshevism makes even veteran statesmen optimists.

People are demanding an early conclusion of peace. Of this there is no question. In France, Italy and Belgium, as well as in Great Britain, people are demanding that the Paris conference get into motion. Lloyd George called the election to assure himself of the country's support during the process of reconstruction. He was an overwhelming victory, and found himself embarrassed by Unionist riches. Naturally the country expected dramatic changes in the new cabinet, but in the opinion of the "Times," the cabinet is a "reshuffle instead of a reform."

The new cabinet has poor press support, even several of the so-called ministerial papers lamenting the lack of new blood in it. Critics of the government considers that the premier's political weakness lies in the very strength of his election victory. They think he will be unable to act independently because of the overwhelming Tory victory.

The Irish are far from happy over the way in which Mr. Wilson ignored them, but, on the other hand, the president has made many powerful friends among the Irish by his attitude toward what the British consider a domestic trouble. The league of nations becomes a fact, Ireland's problems will be solved amicably, just as many others. The important fact of the moment is the close cooperation between the British and the Americans. It will certainly help materially in the future.

Parties assist our comrades and remind you of many good and joyful hours with you, a true comrade, and a soldier, a padre to be proud of, and we earnestly hope that you will be spared to carry on your fine work among the boys.

A number of your old friends have put their names in the leaves of the book.

Captain Steele arrived in the city Saturday evening and conducted the service at the Citadel on Charlotte street, being given a hearty welcome by the local officers. He was in St. John some nine months in 1905 before he joined the Salvation Army. Mrs. Steele accompanies her husband.
