The University Choral Society is expanding this year to include singers from the community at large as well as from among the students, staff and faculty of the University of New Brunswick and Saint Thomas University. The choir is funded by the Creative Arts Committee of the two universities, the New Brunswick department of youth, recreation and cultural resources and from minimal profits accrued during the previous three years of operation.

This year, the choir will be rehearsing in Room 230 of Marshall d'Avray Hall on the UNB campus on Tuesday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. with the first rehearsal scheduled for September 14. The choir, under the direction of Tim Cooper of the faculty of education, UNB will be preparing Franz Schubert's Mass in E flat major for a performance on December 3 or 4.

Professor Cooper, who locally has directed Saint Dunstan's Church and Concert Choir and the Fredericton Choral Society, is looking forward to the fall season with the expanded choral forces. In the past the choir has been composed primarily of students from the faculty of education and a few other student singers and several faculty and staff members assisting. This has resulted in concert programs of short and varied pieces of relatively easy but effective choral literature.

However, the young singers, many former members of the Fredericton High School Glee Club, have outgrown this casual type of repertoire and are capable of producing much more. Unfortunately, there appear to be too few singers among the university community to provide the number of singers required.

Therefore, new members of all ages and levels of experience are warmly invited to join the University Choral Society in what promises to be a truly exciting year of growth.

For any further information, please contact Prof. Tim Cooper at 453-3503 or 454-7761.
