Beach heads psych centre

There is no couch in his office, he isn't interested in childhood reminiscences and he won't hand you an easy solution to your problem on silver platter.

What Dr. H.D. Beach, director of Dal's new psychological centre, will do is help you assess your ability and direct it so as to find a way out of difficulty.

An adherent to the behavior modification theory, one of psychology's newest concepts, Dr. Beach uses a method of counselling which is far removed from Freudian psychoanalysis. He tries to analyse the problem in terms of what creates it and what alternative courses of action it presents. Then he tries to work out a program to solve it.

"The approach is variable", said Dr. Beach in a recent interview. "Often I have to play it by involved in helping students cope with their problems. In July his appointment as director of the new student counselling and psychological services centre was announced. The centre located in room 134 of the "Learning how to learn is a critical problem for freshmen", said Dr. Beach, who expects to spend a great deal of his time this fall helping students develop efficient study habits. "After the first set of exams of Christmas. depression sets in for many freshmen. As finals approach, many are shaken, worried, "Where there is adequate

is deferred

HALIFAX (CUP) - - The feder- tude tests sparingly. "I try to al government's decision to de- help students assess their own fer initiation of their scholarship ability rather than give them plan and freeze provincial aid has drawn criticism from in- what they should be doing", he coming Canadian Union of Stu- said. dents President Doug Ward.

Ward said Friday the move was "just another decision" to keep ties report they are occupied universities composed mainly of middle class students.

Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp announced in the House of Commons Thursday that "the essenfrom our student loan program on one hand, and the extensive provincial student aid programs on the other.

Ward said the provincial aid is not extensive at all, but "depends on an increase of federal aid to the provinces."

provincial governments to in the field of government."

Ward said this resolution was passed to get away from this joint constituency of federal and provincial governments "so we have only one source to go to in order to finance higher educa-

CUS also passed a resolution on universal accessibility which rejected in principle "all systems of financial aid to students which involve loans, means tests or conditions implying mandatory parental support."

In the Commons Thursday, the finance minister also delivered a broad hint of a baby budget in late October, bringing increased or new taxes and possibly delaying medicare for at least one

He said the move would be required if Parliament approves director of the psychological

DR. H.D. BEACH

For the past nine years, ever communication between students since he first came to Dal as and professors there is less need associate professor of clinical for counselling", said Dr. Beach, psychology, Dr. Beach has been emphasizing that a visit to a professor is often the answer to problems which students bring to him. "In university, a wall can easily arise between professors and students", he said.

Although he expects freshmen and sophmores to make up the Arts Annex, opened officially the largest proportion of students first day of student registration. visiting the centre, he also expects to see a large number of graduate students, "The tough competition and demanding program mean that they too have problems", he said.

As well as learning problems, Dr. Beach expects to deal with personal difficulties. "Many students feel a lack of any sense of identity, and feel they don't count", he said. He will also talk to students about their inter-personal problems, from relations with members of the opporite sex to relations with collegues in residence, fraternity or boarding houses.

Dr. Beach says he will use aptitests which supposedly tell them

"After three months counselconstantly", said Dr. Beach, whose one worry is that coming in for counselling will become a fad. If he finds that there are so many students coming in to see tial needs of students can be met him, either by appointment or unannounced, that he cannot see them all personally, he will set up small groups. He foresees the day when Dal will have as many as seven counsellors in the psychological centre.

How people behave under stress, from simple situations Earlier in the day, the 30th Cus up to disasters, is a field which Congress in plenary session pas- keenly interests Dr. Beach. sed a motion asking the federal He is the author of a book, government to "surrender suf- "Management of Human Beficient taxation powers to enable havior in Disaster", written under the sponsorships of the fulfill their financial obligations Emergency Health Services. He was researcher and senior editor of 'Individual and Ground Behavior in a Coal Mine Disas. > ter). Saskatchewan in 1919. From 1942 to 1946 he served as an officer in the Royal Canadian Armoured Corps. He was awarded the American Silver Star.

> He received his B.A. from the University of Saskatchewan, in 1949, received a Rhodes scholarand his PhD. from McGill University in 1955. For three years he was clinical psychologist at the Hospital for Mental and Nervous Diseases in St. John's, Nfld. He was director of graduate training in clinical psychology at Dal up to his appointment as an increase in old-age pensions. services centre in July.

Caplan at Congress

Recounts deportation from Rhodesia

NOTE ON CAPLAN

The following is a portion of a speech given to the Canadian Union of Students 30th Congress in Halifax, N.S. by Gerald Caplan, in which the Toronto-born history lecturer describes conditions at the University College of Salisbury, Rhodesia. The 28-yearold Canadian was deported this summer from Rhodesia by the government of Ian Smith. Because Mr. Caplan never uses a text, this transcribed extract represents the first time his story has been printed in the dramatic form he uses to tell it at public

"Imagine it at Dalhousie. . ." suggests Professor Gerry Caplan as he describes government restrictions on university activities in Salisbury, Rhodesia. He was speaking at national Congress of Canadian Union of Students at Dalhousie a week ago.

'But there was one place. . . where an African could live with a white man and work with a white man and eat with a white man and share the white man's toilets (in Rhodesia). This was at

Let me tell you a very little bit about its background. It was set up in the middle 1950s to be the symbol of multi-racialism in the new Federation of Rhodesia and Nyasaland. This was an experiment in partnership. Lord Melbourne, who was the first prime minister of the federation, said it was the same kind of partnership that exists between a horse and a rider. He was right.

But in this university, it was going to be different. You take an African, and for his first 20 or 22 or 23 years, you keep him on a reserve, and you keep him at a black school and you keep him being taught by illiterate teachers and you keep him eating a diet of maize and you keep him sleeping on a straw mattress and for three years you pick him up and you plunk him down into the affluence - and it really is extraordinary - of the campus, he's almost equal to us, except if he goes off the campus he'll have to use a different toilet. And after three years, he graduates, and he goes back to the reserves.

'Because you don't get jobs there. Five Africans graduated last year in economics from the University of Rhodesia, All five are unemployed today.

'But you pretend. . .you pretend that maybe it'll work, maybe we live together. . .we share the same toilet. . .Believe me, they think toilets are important, those whites. We'll get to know each other. And the Africans said: We'll try it - we're suspicious, but we'll try it. But we want one thing back: we want friendship from the

"And it came to UDI. The university said nothing, and shortly after UDI, the campus went on vacation because our year there is March to November. And during the university vacation last January, Mr. Smith's police arrested four African students from our university. Two of them they took and they sent to restriction camps. End of them. Two of them to a court. And they said: 'Judge, these two men have thrown petrol bombs - they're guilty of arson, and we want them indicted.'

'The evidence was introduced and the judge said: 'Absolutely conclusive that these guys were 100 miles away when those bombs were thrown. I acquit them.

"And they walked to the end of the court room, and they walked down the court room steps, and they were met by Mr. Smith's police, who picked them up and took them to restriction

"Students came back in March. And they were angry. And they went to the principal. And they said, 'Listen, you're the only ling services, other universi- friend we've got, and you've said nothing. You haven't said anything for all these years 'cause you said the university can't get involved, and we have to walk a middle line - now take a stand. We want you to condemn UDI, and we want you to denounce this illigal nabbing of our fellow students. And the principal of our university said: 'Well, you know, it's a university, it's not a political party, and universities shouldn't really get mixed up in politics because you know we've got to be friendly with all sides and I'll work underneath. Very very far underneath. And I'll see what I can do.' And they said: 'Nuts. We've waited for ten years at this place, and insist for you to say once, 'I'm your friend' - and you never have.

"And they boycotted - 210 African students - every single African student at the university. They were supported by three whites out of 450. Because the rest of the white students were working on the carnival that was coming up next week. And that's the truth. But the Africans boycotted, and the next day, the police up in the middle of the lawn saying: There will be no more at this university of more than three people, except lectures, without me giving permission.

'And we met with our principal, who called a meeting of all the staff. And we said: 'Do you think this is an infringement of our academic freedom, sir? And he said. . .this was his exact ter (1958 Springhill mine disas. phrase: Not quite.

WALK OUT AND STRIKE

'Twenty-nine of us got up and walked out and went on strike. We said we will not teach a word as long as we're teaching because a policeman gives us permission. We're teaching because this is our job and our duty. And it's the job and the duty of students to protest and teachers to teach without police or government moving in. And if we can't do it that way, then we're not doing it. And 29 of us went on strike; and the strike lasted for a week. And for a week, there were policemen in patrol cars prowling the campus, appearing outside meetings at night, meetings which were. of course, illegal. Always knowing where we were. And finally, the university saw that we were serious, that in fact we wouldn't go back to work and the students back to classes while there were policemen on our campus. And they spoke to their friends in the government - and they had friends in the government. And the police went away and that was the end of crisis Number One.

An uneasy tension for two weeks. And then, suddenly, on Monday morning, one of the African students who had been arrested during the vacation, returned to campus. I almost called him a kid. He's 35 years old, this man, he's married and two kids.

He'd already been in jail for six years of his life. That's what you have to do in Rhodesia. And he came back, and the African students said: We want this man registered because he was picked up illegally by the police acting on the arguments of an illegal regime, and we want him registered.' And the police came back to the campus, and they said: Anybody who's caught harboring this man is guilty and is liable to two years imprisonment.

· And some of the staff agreed - I'm pleased to say at this time, exactly half. And 50 of us signed a letter to the administration saying, 'Register this man.' And the administration said, 'We're not sure, you see, because he's late, first of all. He has to pay late fees.' They said this. So we got him money for late fees and then they found another excuse and another. In the meantime, the police stayed. And the white students every day of that week were in touch with the police, telling them if they knew where that black student was. And he escaped to Bechuanaland, And the police went away again. End of Crisis Two.

The third one began two months ago. There was to be a graduation ceremony, the most important public affair of the university year, as you all know. And it was announced that the university had invited as its guests to the graduation ceremony, first, the principal of a university in South Africa which practises apartheid; and secondly, two ministers of Mr. Smith's cabinet. The African students were outraged; they went to the principal and they said, 'You told us you can't mix in politics. You told us you can't denounce the illegality of the regime, and now you're recognizing it, because you're asking these mento come here and represent their government at our university.' And the university administration knew what it had done, and knew it before.

"The graduation ceremony was effectively disrupted by those government. The government publicly announced, because as you well know, governments are intimately connected with graduation ceremonies, that the university had two weeks to take disciplinary action against these hoodlums-or else.

DISCIPLINARY COMMITTEE

'The university announced that there'd be a disciplinary committee called to examine the case. We argued there should be an ordinary and provocative action of inviting those extraordinary and provocative guests. And the university said: You have to have authority - then you have justice.' That's the line they followed, and they said 31 African students are to be expelled for the rest of this term. And this order came out on the 26th of July. And they were very embarrassed because two of the African students weren't in Salisbury on the day of the demonstration. And so, they said: I guess we'd better have appeals, eh?' because not one of these 31 African students had been heard while their case was being discussed. And they said: 'All right, we'll have appeals. Instead of having to go home at 12 O'clock as your expulsion order said,

'And so they were around that afternoon, and the white students saw them. And they said. 'These university liberals, these wishywashy administration liberals, they're never going to get tough with the kaffirs'. And they went downtown, white students, and we know it. They went downtown to the government and they said: You can't trust the university - you'll have to get rid of them yourself'.

"And the next morning, at a quarter to six, they came. They took nine of us to jail or restriction camp. And the next day the principal announced that the university was being temporarily closed. Why not permanently closed? Because it wasn't an infringement of academic liberty - because it was a coincidence that the 19 of us all happened to be at the university. All we were was 19 individuals because students are individuals and not students, kind of distinction that I find hard to make. The man who came to my door presented me with a piece of paper with my detention order. He said that the minister of law and order has decided that I must be imprisoned indefinitely because, I quote you the words, because of a belief that you are likely in the future to take such actions as are likely to be dangerous to the regime" Two likelies and a belief - count 'em! And for that, I went to prison.

'And then he stood up in the House, and he said: These men are Communists, they're subversives, they're trying to overthrow law and order, they're terrorists, they're creating chaos and, if I may read from Hansard, It should therefore be told that in addition to their dangerous political activities of some of them are a by-word on the campus.' And he addressed those words to all institutions which might consider hiring the deportees. Pass

"But everybody didn't agree. And I got a letter which I ask you to bear with me while I read to you while I was in Zambia after being deported. It was written by a young African student at the university and smuggled up with a friend. And it said:

DEAR MR. CAPLAN

My Dearest Mr. Caplan: It is a pity I did not have a chance to see you before you were taken out of the country. I am glad you are back in Zambia, land of free men. I was not at all surprised at you and your fellow lecturers being raided by the Smith cowboys for whenever a man promotes the idea of liberty, equality, justice, multi-racialism and understanding with his fellows in this tyrannical, white-controlled country, the result is always the primitive punishment meted out to you by the regime which claims to maintain civilization in Rhodesia. Never mind. Your deed has penetrated right into the hearts of all Zimbobweyans. I wish all of you the best of luck, and thank you for your firm stand during your stay at the university. I wish one day my people shall be free from white supremacy and able to rule themselves on a democratic basis. And you are a set of people to come back and live with us forever. Could you please tell the outside world the whole background of this country, and tell them of the cries of a suppressed people. You are now our spokesman. We shall fight this enemy by any means, We shall soon be free.

'I cannot believe that there is in all of Canada one university student who is capable of writing that kind of letter, who could understand what it means to write that kind of letter. And that's why I appeal to you today, that's precisely because none of us has ever and will ever be in a position where we can feel emotions like this. And we have an obligation to do something about it, as students, as individuals, as institutions - it doesn't matter.

Profile on Ward

came to campus. 'Imagine it at Dalhousie. Imagine out front here: 12 police land rovers, 60 policemen. Police dogs. And a policeman standing up in the middle of the laure causine. There will be policeman standing.

By DON SELLAR Canadian University Press

You'll see him walking briskly along Rideau Street these mornings, as he heads for the office Canadian Union of Students can a few minutes early in order to only guess at. get a head start on the day.

His light brown hair, easy-going appearance and bespectacled blue eyes are deceptive, because this neatly-dressed man is spokesman for an organization composed of 170,000 Canadian post-secondary students, and is chairman of the Company of Young Canadians' provisional

There is little trace of hard work on the face of 29-year-old John Douglas Ward, even though he has worked as a roughneck on an oil drilling rig in Alberta, as pulp and paper worker in Northern Quebec and a junior forest ranger in Northern On-congregation in Quebec.

Doug Ward, or just plain Doug as he insists on being known, carries a number of other surprises with him on Rideau Street - things which his co-workers in the boss, though all readily testify to his businesslike, hardworking nature and ability to deliver a powerful speech without the benefit of notes or text. And that's roughly what happened at the 30th CUS Congress last week, when Ward spouted his inaugural address to about 250 student politicians from across Canada.

Earlier in the evening, Hon. Allan MacEachen, federal minister of health and welfare, had stolen his thunder by openly suggesting the federal government is thinking more and more about At the same time, there isn't abolishing tuition fees as a a lot to remind one of the sum- means of attaining that oftenmer Ward spent as a student mouthed but seldom understood minister in Northern Alberta and goal of universal accessibility to

DOUG WARD

Ward, who undoubtedly had been reserving a few choice comments about the federal government's uncompromising attitudes on such things as free tuition, found himself standing directly on the spot.

He rose manfully to the delicate situation, expressing his beanother summer with a French post-secondary education in Can- lief in free tuition - without launching an attack planned on a pathetic Liberal Government. Ward, who doesn't smoke and takes a drink of wine only now and then, is the symbol for the diverse, often-condemned exercise known as The New Student Movement in Canada, As CUS president, he is an important left wing figure in a whirlpool of activism and social conscience. Which might sound strange for supposedly inattentive, unsym-

a guy whose father is president of Dominion Securities Ltd. and whose father-in-law is a university president. But Ward has a background of work in youth fields which is probably unparalled in recent CUS history. He, his wife Bonnie Carlene and their three-month-old son Christopher all live in Ottawa. Ward's educational background includes public and high school training in Toronto, a B.A. in modern history from the University of Toronto, B.D. from Princeton Theological Seminary, N.J. and Emmanual College, University of Toronto.

His experience in youth affairs is diverse and comprehensive including a seat on U of T' administrative council, a local WUS chairmanship, work in the establishment of Canadian Overseas Volunteers (later CUSO), part-time experience as a detached-youth worker with a large gang of teenagers in Toronto's Regent Park, the presidency of A four-year course leading to tions to teach an academic sub- J. Josenhans, professor of phy- Ontario region of CUS (ORCUS) ices at U of T.

This past April, Ward was appointed chairman of Young Canadians' interim advisory counil. And when the infant organtion was later bornin Bill 174, became its provisional coun-

i chairman. The student leader's soft-spoken, mild- mannered image belies the fact he led a march of 500 students to the Ontario egislature on November 22, 1963 — the day U.S. President terms of co-operation between English and French, and asking for full recognition in the forth-

Such a background, in Ward's own words, "should be enough for anyone".

Dal offers Bachelor of Physical Ed. course

Dr. Hicks said the course would Professions with the co-operaeducational field, except in such tion of the Faculty of Arts and Science and Medicine, and the athletics department would play field would be undertaken. ment should give tax abatements an integral part in the degree

Dr. Hicks said that in February this year the university Senate agreed in principle to the establishment of the course on the recommendation of a committee which had been studying the matter for some time, and since then a special Senate committee had been planning the program and preparing for its introduction.

Dalhousie University from Sep- doing, it was hoped that the degree research centres and attending eight months as assistant registember, the president, Dr. Henry program would benefit the D. Hicks, announced yesterday, schools of Nova Scotia. "It appears that the province will need be offered by the Faculty of Health to teach physical education," said Dr. Hicks. He added that it was also hoped that in the future, research in the physical education

The Senate committee, assisted by a consultant, Professor W. J. L'Heureux, head of the department of physical health and recreation education at the University of Western Ontario, recommended the four-year course, following senior matriculation,

The committee consisted of tal skills. Dr. R. M. MacDonald, Dean of Emphasis would be placed on a the Faculty of Health Profesbroadly based course which would sions, under whom the degree might have adequate qualifica- physical education; Professor W. and confirmed.

the degree of Bachelor of Physi- ject as well as physical education siology and biophysics, who is in a year as CUS associate secrecal Education will be offered by or health, said Dr. Hicks. By so Germany visiting physical fitness tary for international affairs and the 16th World Congress in Sports trar and director of student serv-Medicine; and Professor H. J. Uhlman, professor of education. Students entering the degree program will take 11 courses in Arts and Science, with additional courses in anatomy, physiology, kinesology and motor learning organization and administration of physical education, the history and theory of physical education, and measurement and appraisal introduce and develop a wide John F. Kennedy was assas. range of physical activities, and sinated - and presented a brief students will be given the oppor- to Ontario Premier John Robarts with admission standards the same as for Arts and Science. ceptable standards of fundamen- ture of Canada", especially in

PREVENTION

The effectiveness of a treatdepth in a subject of Arts and Cooke, Dean of Arts and Sciences; of disability in rheumatoid ar-coming federal-provincial conference.

Invent 'new kind of student'

Kelsey on Congress

The Ubyssey

HALIFAX - The Canadian Union of Students has invented a new ally a provincial matter in Ca-He pays no fees and gets a nada; salary for attending university. He probably doesn't have middle-class parents.

He wants to learn, and actively participates in what he learns by attending board of governor and senate meetings, electing representatives to boards and senates, and fighting for alternate ways to administer universities. He fights to preserve academic freedom and improve the quality of universities. He is a creature of the stomping six resolutions passed Thursday by 250 delegates to the 30th Canadian Union of Students Congress at Dalhousie University. The major resolution of the stomping six is universal accessibility to higher education, which replaces the standing CUS order that spurred UBC's march of concern last October.

The new univac move, calling for student salaries, no fees and improved education at all levels, rolled over the remnants of rightwing opposition from McGill University, Maritime and University delegates by a vote of 86 to 36.

The other five resolutions support universal accessibility by

-Increased federal support for six university affairs resolueducation by granting new taxation powers to the provinces, since education is constitution-

-Non-secret board of governors and academic senate meet-

-Student participation in deciding questions of academic -A new CUS commitment to higher quality education, full student participation in university sponsibilities to take an active role in raising academic stand-Univac calls for rejection of all loan plans, bursaries, means government and full student re-tests and other conditions on stu- field secretaries. dent aid, favoring tuitionless student stipends.

riers to higher education, beginning at the pre-school level. The 24-point resolution was drafted and moved by the Univer- ing co-operatives across Canada. sity of Victoria's student president Stephen Bigsby, generally regarded here as the hardest working delegate of the Congress. Said Bigsby, "This resolution contains both long-term financial and social goals, and immediate implementation steps."

tions, change the entire character of Canadian universities.

In other business, UBC moved that CUS start a national stu- been promised for years, and its dent newsmagazine, to cost the union $10,000 an issue. retary for communications.

UBC's Braund told the Congress the first issue would appear on eral Government get out of the all campuses in early 1967. The Congress also approved money to hire two new travelling the Maritimes to help strengthen provinces, he said. It urges student community student councils at the small work to remove motivational bar- Atlantic schools. The other new field secretary will work with all member institutes to create student hous-

The only public review of or-

UNITED APPEAL

ganized charities is conducted by United Appeal citizen budget committees. How money is spent, how much is needed, what services are provided - these are He said it could, if implement- the concerns of the united appeal ed with the rest of the stomping on behalf of the contributors. priest and explorer.

Scholarship delay miffs student head HALIFAX - Douglas Ward,

UBC Alma Mater Society president of the Canadian Union president Peter Braund spoke of Students, said this week, the strongly for all six resolutions federal Government's decision and said UBC and Uvic would to postpone indefinitely its scholwork together for their imple- arship program is unfortunate and distressing.
Mr. Ward saidthe program has postponement means that universities will go on being "clubs Working with McGill's Victor for those people who can afford Rabinovitch, CUS associate sec- to kick in another $1,500 a year." He said CUS passed a resolution recommending that the fed-specialized areas as research. Instead, the federal Govern-One will work exclusively in and equalization grants to the program. Mr. Ward said Canadian stu-

> for help, the buck is passed to the provinces. When the provinces are asked for help, they say the federal Government does not give them enough funds. SKELETON UNEARTHED: Midents have found that when they approach the federal Government chigan archeologists are speculating whether a skeleton found in a grave at St. Ignace, Mich., ensure that a student be given course will be given; Dr. H.B.S. ment program for the prevention may be that of Rev. Jacques Marquette, the famed Jesuit Science in order that he or she Kenneth D. Gowie, director of thritis has been demonstrated