Mr. John A. Govenlock, Forest, Ont., writes: Our herd of Herefords are looking well. We have a very fine lot of young bulls and females this season, bred from our prizewinning bull, Imperial.

Electric power is now being applied to the currying of horses in Chicago and New York. To the ceiling of the stable are secured two small dynamos. From each long, flexible tubes depend, and attached to each of these is a small brush buzzing around in a dizzying whirl. All the men have to do is to keep moving the brushes about, and with the invasion of each new portion of the animal's anatomy, dirt and dust are sent flying from the hair of the horse. Both men and animal seemed to be enjoying the experiment immensely. The device commends itself to grooms because of its saving in time over the hand currying.
Expert hostlers say, it takes about twenty minutes to clean a horse with the ordinary currycomb, and about four with the electric brush. Horsemen say the revolving brush is a great benefit to the solid work horse, in that it causes the blood to circulate properly, oftentimes making the old-timer feel like a colt.
"Why," declared one stableman, "I've seen a cart horse shy at his own shadow after an electric currying. And this one here" - stroked the flank of a pretty little trotter - "why, after an electric currying and a good rub-down, iron hoops can't hold her."

There are only two methods that we know of to get rid of weeds. One is to keep more or less sheep upon the farm and use them as weed destroyers. Sheep will devour every kind of weed at some season of the year except thistles and cockleburrs. They draw the line on these two. Sheep use weeds as a vermifuge, and as almost every weed has some medicinal property of which the instinct of the sheep tells it to avail itself, they can be used to very good effect, not in utterly destroying, but in keeping down weeds on the farm.

There is another method which can be used in conjunction with sheep, and if used properly the weed will not be so much of a burden as it is now. That method is good farming. By good farming we mean keeping the land very rich, well cultivated when in grain, heavily seeded with grasses when not in grain until the stand of grass becomes so thick that weeds have no place. A witty Scotch preacher said, speaking of morals, "If you keep the bushel full of wheat, I defy the devil to get any chaff into it." If you keep land rich, well set in grass, well manured, weeds will give little trouble.

BILL NYE AS A DAIRYMAN.

When I was young and used to roam around over the country, gathering watermelons by the light of the moon, I used to think I could milk anybody's cow; but I don't think so now. I do not milk the cow unless the sign is right, and it hasn't been right for a good many years. The last cow I tried to milk was a common cow, born in obscurity - kind of self-made cow. I remember her brow was low, but she wore her tail high; and she was haughty, oh, so haughty! I made a commonplace remark to her, one that is used in the very best society; one that need not give offense. I said "So" - and she "Soed." Then I told her to "Hst," and she "Histed." But I thought she overdid it. She put too much expression to it. Just then I heard something crash through the window of the barn and fall with a thud - sickening thud
- on the outside.

The neighbors came to see what it was that caused the noise. They found that I had done it in getting through the window. I asked the neighbors if the barn was still standing. They said it was. Then I asked them if the cow was injured much. They said she seemed quite robust. Then I requested them to go in and calm the cow a little, and see if they could get my plug hat off her horns. I am buying all my milk now of a milkman. I select a gentle milkman, who will not kick, and I feel as though I can trust him. Then, if he feels as though he can trust me, it's all right.

Symptoms of Nerve Disorders

Which Foretell the Approach of Nervous Prostration, Paralysis and Locomotor Ataxia.

Twitching of the nerves and muscles, sensitiveness to light, sound and motion, jerking of the limbs, sleeplessness, headache and indigestion - such are some of the symptoms of exhausted nerves.

Because there is no acute pain, people do not always realize the seriousness of nervous diseases. They do not think of the helplessness of body and mind, which is the result of neglecting such ailments.

Because of its extraordinary control over diseases of the nerves, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food has come to be considered the one great treatment for disorders of this nature.

Not only does it revitalize the wasted nerve cells, but actually forms firm flesh and tissue, builds up the system and sends new vigor and vitality to every organ of the body.

box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates
