Miss Alice L. Fairweather and Mrs. Alfred Morrissey, also survive. Mr. Fairweather was head of the F. R. Fairweather Co., Ltd., insurance agents and dealers in fire fighting and other appliances. He was one of the most active and energetic of the younger insurance men of the province. He was deeply interested in political and economic problems. Active in the Orange fraterpity and in other organizations, he was one of the few men striving to keep alive an interest in the good old game of cricket. Mr. Fairweather was one of the St. Mary's Church vestrymen. When the war call came Mr. Fairweather responded promptly and the nature of his death proves with what courage he served. Among the younger business men of St. John he was one of the most prominent and most energetic.—St. John Globe, Sept. 23.
