Flogging is Approved.

London, Nov. 11.—The white slave traffic bill, which orders flogging for the first offender, a clause which passed by an extremely narrow majority, continues to arouse considerable misgiving amongst certain humanitarians. The Bishop of London has expressed publicly his pleasure at such a provision, and his sentiments received the endorsement of the Lord Chief Justice.

108 NOX A COLD. And Do It Now.

Immediately action is the saving clause in dealing with a cold. Get after it at the first approach. "108" is not a patent medicine, but a prescription prescribed by an eminent English physician—a specialist on throat and lungs. Have you just a slight touch of cold? Use "108" and prevent further encroachments that may put you down and out. Sold by all first-class druggists. 25c. per bottle.

Cable News.

Special to Evening Telegram. VENICE, Nov. 18. William Marconi, made his first public appearance, yesterday, since his recent accident.

LONDON, Nov. 18. The correspondent of the Daily Mail telegraphs at midnight:—A battle is proceeding at Monastir. The Turks number 45,000 and 40 guns; the Servians number more than 100,000, with 200 guns, including siege and howitzers. No attempt has been made to take the town itself by assault. It is intended to force surrender by aid of artillery alone. The Turks occupied an excellent position around the town. The Servians were obliged to advance over soft marshes, and were exposed to the enemy's fire. They moved forward with their habitual courage, covered by fire from their own guns, and occupied the hills running from Tchatatlar, past Beranzit, an important position 400 feet high to the hills of Tzerno Oblakopz Gofche.

LONDON, Nov. 18. It is said that all the Bulgarian troops have departed from Adrianople the investment of which has been left solely to the Servians. The Bulgarians have gone to Tchatatlar. No attempt is being made to storm the forts around Adrianople, the Servians being content to merely isolate the city.

PINS.

BY M. L. RANN.

Pins are a metallic substitute for suspenders, buttons, hooks and eyes, and concealed weapons, when put to the test never fail to produce the desired effect. They have a sharp, astringent point, which causes a feeling of uneasiness when sat upon unexpectedly. Some men can never sit down upon an upright pin in the cushion of a rocking chair without rising at once and pawing frantically to the rear.

The most useful form of pin is the interlocking safety pin, which will pursue a man from the cradle to the grave. This device has saved the life of many a man whose suspenders parted ten miles from a needle and thread. It is also used with much effect in pinning new babies to their first suit of clothes, an inhuman practice which is frowned upon by the best authorities. Thousands of innocent, sweet-voiced babies are being dosed from Maine to California for some fancied ailment, when the only trouble is too much safety pin.

The hat pin is a murderous weapon which ought to be barred from the males. It is getting so that a vivacious transient in a red vest can hardly step up to a lady on the street and ask to see her home without being filled full of vicious perforations from a hat pin. Most men would rather entertain the contents of a duck gun than be impaled on a bejeweled hat pin in a crowded street car.

The rolling pin is probably responsible for more cases of unprovoked assault and battery than any other implement of warfare. It is a terrible weapon in the hands of a woman who is not afraid of anything in human form. It is equally effective whether thrown from a distance or shaken in the face of a dispirited husband and father.

The hair pin is a domestic article which is used to decorate the female head upon retiring. The first sight of a collection of these pins, dotting the head of a loved one and making it look like an asparagus bed, is quite discouraging to men who supposed that hair would stay on the head without clamps, but they soon become reconciled.

Everyone who sees the FAIRBANKS buys one in preference to all others. advt.

More Serious.

Special Evening Telegram. VIENNA, this morning. The Austro-Servian situation has been rendered much more serious by the tone of Servia's press, in the denunciation of Austria. This has been added to by Servians to Austro-Consuls at Albanian towns, who insert their posts for fear they might disclose the ill-treatment to Albanian inhabitants by Servians. Public opinion here tends more and more to demand that the situation be definitely settled up.

Shannahan and Tucker Make a Suggestion

ON CLEANING THE STREETS.

It is a fine thing, says Delaney, to be able to look to the time when we will be able to lounge around in the New Park, and sail our little boats in the miniature lakes, or listen to the gleeful notes of the robin redbreast. But at the same time, says Tucker, we can't help deploring that some other idea didn't suggest itself to the mind of the philanthropist who donated it to the city.

When we wade through the muddy streets, says Tucker, and view incessantly the miniature mud pools that present themselves on all sides, we don't feel disappointed that some of the Fifty thousand dollars wasn't given for the purpose of improving the condition of our thoroughfares. It's all right to have a park staring us in the face, providing we have the everyday requirements of our citizens something near the mark. But to Tucker it seems like giving a man with no boots a present of a beaver hat, to donate a park to a city that is covered with mud. Tucker admits that if he were asked how to go about improving the roads, that he'd have to answer in plain English, that he didn't know, but yet he feels that it is possible to discover some man who could tackle the problem and solve it to the entire satisfaction of all concerned, and not only solve it, but successfully carry it out.

Tucker worked on the roads in the days gone by, and knows a thing or two about it, and he says that while the present system is in vogue no Council or no boss can improve the condition of our streets in anything like a lasting manner. What is wanted is a practical man who understands the work thoroughly, to be given a contract for keeping our roads in order, and not men appointed whose only qualifications are that they are nice men with lots of influential citizens at their back. Anyone with half an eye can see that our present system is a flat failure and 'tis high time that the Council should cater to whims and get backbone enough to revolutionize the whole flat-out.

Where is the citizen who does not feel jaded with the mud? Where is the man or woman that wouldn't feel elated if he or she could count on getting cleaner streets to walk on? We will talk again this winter at our lectures and in our halls about tuberculosis and wrinkled browed jaders will repeat again the oft-told rignaroles of improving upon our conditions of living. But while they talk, let them ask themselves the question, how can the homes of the people be kept clean and sanitary, with a whole family bringing in the mud into their homes which is up to their doorsteps?

Tucker says when any one talks out like this in this town, they're put down as fault-finders, but he wants it to be distinctly understood that it is not for fault-finding that he talks, but to arouse if possible a movement to secure some practical man or company to take charge of the cleaning of our streets, for everyone wants it, and every one knows that it is the only way that the matter can be handled successfully.

Delaney says that if you talk about this matter to some people, they will tell you that the only remedy lies in street paving.

But Delaney says, there'll be a lot of us dead, before we reach that stage, and in the meantime he feels like falling in line with Tucker's suggestion, and obtaining the services of a practical man who knows his business and who will tackle the cleaning up of our streets in a business way.

"Park time" is a fine time, but unfortunately it only lasts for a couple of months, but mud-time clings to us with the tenacity of a bull-dog, and never lets up 'till 'tis frozen to death. TIM SHANNAHAN.

After the Trouble.

Oh, now the vanquished statesman kicks a n d murmurs while the victor snags; but let's forget stale politics, and try to think of helpful things. If any man rears up and tries to thrash the threadbare issues o'er, let's biff him once betwixt the eyes and take him home upon a door. The land the dippy eagle guards without our efforts can make good; let's take the tin cans from the yard, and bank the house, and whack up wood. Let's see the kids have decent rags when to the schoolhouse they parade; our old palladiums and flags and bulwarks do not need our aid. Let's fill our homes with true delight and see the wives and children laugh, while Freedom on her mountain height is sitting for a photograph. Let's help the wife who daily slaves among her tubs and pots and pans, the while the spangled banner waves above the crowd of also rans. Let's quit this thing of talking big of Vital Themes and Peepul's woes, and give some bedding to the pig, and put away the garden hose. Oh, let us for a while be sane and fix the porch and mend the pump, and let the musty old campaign lie dead and rotting at the dump.

CAPT. NOAH BISHOP. "I say from my heart with all sincerity that I would not sell my 7 1/2 H. P. FERRO for ten times what it cost. I knew nothing about a gasoline engine when I bought it, but with the aid of the instruction book I got with the engine, I could do anything with it in a few days. I can confidently recommend FERRO Engines for fishing purposes. My FERRO was a great benefit to me this summer." —nov19, tu, th, s.

Selling Cattle.

The schr. Maggie B. arrived here yesterday from Renew with 14 head of cattle, a lot of sheep and poultry to be sold in the St. John's market. Owing to the failure of the hay crop the past season and the high price of feeds of various kinds the people can't afford to hold their cattle during the winter. This is not the only shipment of live stock which will come from the Southern Shore.
