HABITS OF THE MIND.

"The happiness of your life depends upon the quality of your thoughts, therefore guard accordingly." —Marcus Antoninus.

When we speak of good habits we usually think of outward habits involving action, such as taking cold baths, saving money, answering letters promptly, keeping appointments punctiliously, etc.

Likewise, when we speak of bad habits we think of such overt acts as sitting up too late at night, being slovenly about personal cleanliness, being extravagant and careless about money matters, procrastinating, etc.

But besides these outward physical habits there is another set of habits, good and bad, which affect our lives just as deeply as those to which we are wonted to give more attention. I refer to the habits of the mind.

How Many of These Habits Have YOU?

What are your habits of mind? Did you ever take stock of them? If you haven't you might like to, and to facilitate such a process, I've jotted down a few mind habits that occur to me. You will doubtless be able to add others to the list.

The habit of concentration. The ability to control the mind, to regulate it, restrain it, direct it, as one does the body, is the foundation of all good mental habits.

The habit of refusing to fret one's self over future ills that may never materialize and that one cannot do anything to avoid or mitigate, anyhow. Who was it said, "The habit of looking on the bright side of things is worth a thousand pounds a year?"

A Habit All Executives Should Have.

The habit of making decisions after reasonable and careful consideration and then putting the matter completely aside and refusing to go back over the ground.

The habit of never letting yourself flummox and rage inwardly about grievances or annoyances or irritation or antipathies.

The habit of waiting patiently—mentally waiting I mean—when waiting is necessary, and not straining ahead mentally in useless and demoralizing impatience.

Do You Translate?

The mental habit of translating (as I haven't space to tell you what I mean by that I'll let you guess and tell you to-morrow).

The habit of thinking instead of dreaming.

The habit of thinking only of what you are doing at the moment and not letting your mind wander to what you are going to do next. (I suppose that is really a subhead of the habit of concentration.)

Someone has said, "We first make our habits then our habits make us." And of no habits is this more true than the habits of the mind.

all kinds of seeds, and balliffs kicked up quite a fuss pursuing me through many grades. And well I know how cheap one feels, if he owes kopeck, franc and yen, if Johnson clamors for his wheels, and Jimpson for his iron men. I'd rather live on beeswax pills, and sleep at night in some one's shed, than sidestep merchants bearing bills, and have men say, "Your credit's dead."

Hr. Grace Notes.

Miss Mary Alyward who has resided for years with her brother Mr. James Alyward in LeMarchant Street, passed away yesterday after a short illness and sad to say the brother is in a very weak condition, and much sympathy is felt for him in his great bereavement.

Magistrate Scott, of Grand Falls, passed through here on Tuesday night on his way to Carbonear to attend the Methodist District meetings held there.

Mr. Frank Adams of the West End is now in town on a visit after an absence of 34 years. Mr. Adams is one of the crew of the United States Beam Trawler now at St. John's. Mr. Hayes of South Side is master of the trawler, and he has a number of other Harbor Grace men in the crew.

The Handley-Page biplane is still here, weather conditions on the Atlantic not being suitable for a "hoop off" for the other side.

Mr. E. Simmonds left for St. John's on Tuesday evening on a brief business trip.

Mr. G. Bursay, lately school teacher at Haystack, P.E., is now at Carbonear attending the Methodist District meetings.

Mrs. W. A. McKay returned by Thursday's afternoon train from Placentia Bay where she had been on a visit to her mother, Mrs. Geo. Wareham, who of late has been very sick.

The dock is still kept busy attending to the many schooners needing repairs.

Fashions and Fads.

Wool velour is hinted at for Fall. The silhouette is slowly widening. "Poison green" is a favorite color. Feather dresses are much in vogue. Afternoon gowns show huge revers. Immense emphasis is given to fringe. Some frocks have skirts entirely of fringe.

DUTY.
He shall be great who does his duty well.
Though he may miss the shining light of fame,
And few may live his praise afar to tell,
And history may not record his name,
He shall have much of which his soul may boast
Who has not been a traitor to his post.

Great men have lived and died to fame unknown.
Content always in humbleness to dwell;
Seeking no commendation but their own.
Judges themselves of duty carried well.
These men were great by every mortal test.
Who found their joy in serving to their best.

The stamp of greatness is not fattery's seal.
Nor glory's luster nor the gold of earth;
The cloak of fame a blemish may conceal;
Man's conscience is the best judge of his worth.
And he, who does his duty, day by day,
Needs care but little what his neighbors say.

He shall be great who does his duty well.
Not from the world must come man's words of praise;
The humble toiler is the one to tell
How he has lived his little round of days.
He knows himself, better than all the rest,
Whether or not the world has had his best.
