Alfred was a good man," the prisoner went on, "and I have no doubt that he went straight to heaven, but this defect in him had to be overcome. Mr. Folinsbee asked Quick why, after all, it had been necessary to kill Alfred, and the prisoner said:
"Well, you know, it was necessary to do something to raise the standard of mankind. The standard of mankind has fallen to so low a level that God! 'equired me to do this.' Quick then asked his counsel regarding the condition of his mother, and expressed great sorrow for her. He reasserted, however, that his deed had been necessitated "It was the blackest crime ever committed in Canada," he said, "but there was nothing else for me to do. Alfred's soul had sunk so low that I had to raise it higher. He thwarted me once, when the Spirit of God was upon me by shutting me in the asylum but they could not do so this time. The Spirit was too strong for them. I had a revelation last night," he continued, after a pause, "and now I am surer than ever that my ded was right. The city council, at its special meetng last night, decided to issue depentures to the amount of $9,000 for the laying of mains, etc., for the London

In calling the meeting to order. Mayor Campbell briefly reviewed the reasons for the issue of the debentures. Owing to such causes as the overdraft of last year and the increased uncontrollable expenditures of this year the council of 1905 was finding it As the estimates stood as at first presented, it would have taken a 25-mill rate to cover the city's expenditures this year. These estimates had been this year. These estimates had been pared down to a 23½-mill basis, or a half mill more than a year ago. While agreeing that a half mill on the assessment it not a very serious matter to the taxpayers, his worship stated that a high tax rate was a bad thing for any city. He was prepared, however, to see an increased tax rate this year, rather than shirk any of his responsibilities. If the council chose mates he promised that the issue would mean a 23-mill rate this year. In years past, debentures had been issued to cover the cost of laying mains, and he quoted Auditor Jewell to the effect that all such capital account expenditures should be covered by debentures, and should not be taken out of current revenue. He did not wish to influence any alderman in the slightest. He was however, prepared waterworks this year. Only two of to vote for the debentures as the best the city fathers—Ald. Matthews and Carson—opposed the issue, but the arguments of neither influenced the council.

In calling the meeting to order issue the circumstances.

Ald. Carson and Matthews followed the mayor, both speaking against the issue, and Ald. Stevely twitted Ald. Matthews with being willing to issue $10,000 debentures for a fire hall, and yet unwilling to issue debentures for water mains ssue debentures for water mains. On motion of Ald.
