

HOME, SWEET HOME IS AN EMPTY SHACK

But McFarlane Family Speeds
North Rejoicing With Gift-Filled Trunks.

They arrived from the fire-swept north just three weeks ago, utterly destitute of baggage. They left again for the new shack they are to occupy in Halesbury on Friday afternoon, accompanied by five trunks, one suitcase, and an ingenious packing box, which, when emptied of goods, will serve for a table and cupboard for dishes. That is what London has done for one grateful woman of Northern Ontario, Mrs. William McFarlane, and her six bonnie children, largely because of their good fortune in meeting right away the generous-hearted convenor of the civic Northern Ontario fire relief committee, Mrs. A. T. Edwards. Their "luggage" on the homeward journey included all the lunch seven people could eat between here and Halesbury, enough to tide over the week-end, not forgetting a birthday cake for the courageous father-man, who celebrates his thirty-sixth birthday on Sunday. It was put up Friday forenoon by Mrs. Edwards, with her own hands.

A regular bouquet of happy faces looked out of the end window of a C. T. R. coach, about to leave for Toronto at 4:20 o'clock. There was Mother McFarlane, "happier than when she came down, glad to be getting back to the husband and father, and eager to be at the task of starting all over again to build up a home."

There was James, aged 12, and very much the man of the party, with his honest, dependable brown eyes and heart-warming smile. Margaret, of the ruddy locks and navy velvet hood; winsome Jean, and de-guise Martha, with Puritanical gray bonnet matching her gray eyes. And last, with his white tan tucked under his mother's chin, was Jackie, just three.

The girls could scarcely wait for the train to start, so anxious were they to be on the way, to see what things looked like when they would get back, and best of all, to be with daddy once more. James and Ian, older, more serious, weren't quite sure they didn't want to stay in London with "Grandma Noble," who was feeling lonesome down on the platform because they were going. Very vivid to them is still the dread of the fire.

In Lake Five Hours. "Wasn't Mrs. McFarlane afraid to go back?" "It'll likely no happen again," she said, with a surprisingly Scotch accent.

Mothers and Their Children

Button! Button! To keep my children busy on a rainy day, I turn the family button box out on the floor, give each child a threaded needle, and let them string buttons. I have them sort out the buttons and match the different kinds. This is good training for their eyes and makes them feel of help as well.

Guard the Baby Against Colds

To guard the baby against colds coughing and croupy babies, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best. The Tablets are a mild laxative that will keep the little one's stomach and bowels working regularly. It is a recognized fact that when the stomach and bowels are in good order that colds will not exist; that the health of the little one will be good and that he will thrive and be happy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

cent, considering the number of years she has been in Canada. "But I wouldn't like to go through it again. We had to go down into the lake and lie right down in the water, with our heads all covered up with a wet blanket to keep us from being scorched and smothering with the smoke. My husband had to keep wetting the blanket every few minutes, it dried so fast, and would have caught fire. At last he had to take my hat to pour water on it."

"But, was the water cold? It is a wonder you didn't die," exclaimed a listener.

"The water seemed bitter cold," she replied, "and we were there five and a half hours. It is a wonder we are all alive. The children were sick from exposure after we got down here."

"My horse's burned," mourned the musical little voice of Master Jackie. "House?" queried The Advertiser. "No, horse," stoutly insisted Jackie. "He means his fine wooden horse," explained the mother.

"He just can't be comforted about it. He was so proud of that horse, and wouldn't go to bed at night unless it stood on the floor beside him. The children are going to very much miss all their books and their toys. But they miss more than that. And still she smiled heroically as she told of going to the 'shell' of a house father has rushed up for his family, with not a stick of furniture inside of it. Trunks contain bedding, dishes, kitchen utensils and clothing, and Mrs. Edwards has assured that along will go in record time at least chairs to sit on, and a stove for keeping the parents and little folks warm."

"I'll send you a candle, Mistress Edwards," called the irrepressible Margaret as the car wheels began to turn round. And above the rumble of the dance to the music of the wheels, a family good fairy: "And come and stay with us in Halesbury next summer, Mistress Edwards."

One of the attractive weddings of this season took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid M. Fleming, in Lorne avenue, Chatham, Wednesday at 2:30 o'clock, when their daughter, Ruby Frances, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Fred Wilson White, also of Chatham.

To the strains of the wedding music played by Miss Grace White, sister of the groom, the bride entered the room with her father. Her becoming wedding gown was white canton crepe heavily headed, and her flowers were a shower bouquet of Ophelia and Sweetheart roses. Her attendants were two pretty little flower girls, Alice Margaret and Ruth Marion White, in orchid organza, and the bridesmaid, Miss Beatrice Fleming, who wore a pretty frock of jade, radium taffeta, and a corsage of roses. The best man was Mr. C. Carman White, a brother of the groom. Rev. LaR. C. Wood, from Kincardine, another brother, performed the ceremony, and was assisted by Rev. H. W. Crews, pastor of Park Street Methodist Church. Miss Trot, of Mount Brydges, rendered a solo while the register was being signed.

A wedding breakfast was served in the dining-room, effectively decorated with yellow mums and Sunset roses. The happy couple left on a wedding tour to Chicago and other points, the bride donning a brown coat over a dress of same shade, and a smart henna hat. They will reside in Des Moines.

Amongst Londoners who attended the wedding was Miss Eunice Moorehouse.

WEDDINGS

SWITZER-RUMBLE. A quiet wedding took place at the Methodist parsonage, St. Marys, Wednesday, Nov. 8, when Vera L. Rumble, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Rumble, was married to William H. Switzer, youngest son of the late H. H. Switzer and Mrs. Switzer of Anderson. Following the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Switzer left on the afternoon train for Harrison, Clifford and other points. Upon their return they will reside on the groom's farm on the third concession, Elmhurst.

MILLER-HEALEY. Trinity (Anglican) Church, Simcoe, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday, Nov. 15, at 2:30 o'clock, when Helen Esther, only daughter of Mrs. Elizabeth E. and the late John R. Healey, was united in marriage to Mr. John James Miller, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. John I. Miller of Brantford. The rector, Rev. A. B. Farney, performed the ceremony.

At the appointed hour the bride entered the church, leaning on the arm of her uncle, Mr. Angus M. Munro, and followed by a full choir of which she was a member and soprano soloist. On the arrival at the chancel, the choir and congregation joined in singing the beautiful hymn, "The Voice That Breathed Our Eden." During the signing of the register, Miss Irene Hurley sang delightfully the appropriate solo, "Because."

The bride looked charming in a Princess Mary blue canton dress, trimmed with gray and silver, and a smart hat trimmed with blue ostrich feathers. She carried a bouquet of sunburst roses. On leaving the church, she wore a wrap of midnight blue duvety, with mole collar. The bridesmaid, Miss Katharine Fink of Preston, was becomingly gowned in black canton crepe with green and gold trimming, with which she wore a black picture hat and carried Columbia roses.

The groom was supported by Mr. Frank Woodley of the Molsons Bank staff, of which Miss Healey was a popular member.

The groom's gift to the bride was a handsome hat trimmed with blue ostrich feathers, the bride's gift to the groom was a beautiful meerschaum pipe, and to the bridesmaid a pair of shoes.

After the ceremony and congratulations, the bride party, with a large number of their friends, motored to Waterloo, where the happy couple took the M. C. R. for Detroit and other western points.

The popular young couple on their return will occupy their new home at 321 Norfolk street north.
