Tonight's Thistle-Shamrock affair at other game, a fault that will not be the armories finds both teams confident, they claim. Thistles that they'll overcome the seven-point lead held by the Colleens team was on the floor they outplayed the confident, point to the fact that while their whole team was on the floor they outplayed the confidence of the conf latter equally as sure they'll dold the lead largely intact. Factions of both teams hold the same opinions, in spots Thistles' team-play and comof both teams hold the same opinions, so again it must be left strictly up to the results of the game.

Thistles will probably switch their ine-up slightly and use another style of attack for tonight's game. It will tonight, probably verging on the de-be strenuous, for the smaller Thistles fensive, to tire Thistles out. On the have to make their attacks lively to overcome the slight edge Shamrocks ing Thistles, who had it on them in may have in team-play from long practice and a long schedule of games this winter. They claim, however, that while they intend to stay on the floor tonight, stricter enforcement of penalhave to be made by the referee, or they will be handicapped. Soccer Notes

Critics assert that should West Ham United be enabled to stand the heavy strain of their recent league and cup tie games in their most crucial game today with Bolton Wanderers in the English Cup final at Wembley Park stadium, they ought to nose out the Trotters by the orphan goal. The question arises, can the Hammers win both the league pennant and the cup? Both are within their grasp, but it is doubtful if the Londoners can achieve the double event. While the team has gone from victory unto victory; there is an end to endurance, and it may be that the weaters of the red and claret will crack under the strain. The next two weeks will truly be the testing time for West Ham, for besides today's crucial game they have yet to meet Notts County in home and home league games with the two-game series hinging a whole lot as regards their promotion. County in home and home league games with the two-game series hinging a whole lot as regards their promotion next season to the English First Division League. Outside of the playing personnel of both elevens, there is always keen interest taken in the selection of officials for the final game, and an English referee considers he has reached the crest of his ambition when he officiates in an English Cup final and a further honor to referee an international match. The final at the new Wembley stadium will be in charge of D. H. Assan of West Bromwich, while the linesmen will be Messrs, R. Crump of Surrey and W. H. Moody of Grimsby. Should there be a replay it will take of Surrey and W. H. Moody of Grimsby. Should there be a replay it will take place at Wembley on the following Wednesday, and the officials will be: Referee, G. N. Watson (Nottingham); Inesmen, Messrs. E. J. Scott (Herts) and F. C. Winton (Sussex). A few words about the players of this remarkable team, which is the best that has carried West Ham's colors for a dozen years, may be appropriate at this time:

As both elevens intend fielding their strongest lineups, this league battle should prove mighty interesting and a close encounter.

INGERSOLL MAY ENTER INTERMEDIATE O. B. A. A.

Special to The Advertiser.

Ingersoll, April 27.—If present plans do not fall, Ingersoll may have representation in the intermediate series of the O. B. A. A. Those who have been giving consideration to the baseball outlook believe there is material here for a strong team, and keen interest has developed during the week. Six teams are mentioned as seeking admission to the O. B. A. A., but it is probable that only four will be accepted. The six clubs are: Ingersoll, Tilisonburg, Aylmer, Springfield, Norwich and Otterville.

keen interest to win the British Amateur Golf championship. The Americans have been hard at work every day since their arrival here Monday night, and their earnestness is making a decidedly favorable impression.

Englishmen, who watched the play over the Surrey courses, singled out Gardner and Wright as the most polished golfers on the team; Johnson as a rather too boisterous player; Ouimet as less accurate than formerly, and despite his reputation, they declare Sweetser neither an attractive nor convincing player. All of which shows Englishmen realize at the outset they face foemen worthy of their steel.
