

The Weekly British Colonist AND CHRONICLE. Tuesday, June 18, 1867.

The Government and the Estimated Revenue.

The utility of the Colonial Government attempting to flounder out of the mire of its financial difficulties was never made more clearly apparent than by the statement published in the last Gazette of the total value of goods imported into the Colony for the first quarter of the present year. The statement embraces the three best months, when stocks are replenished in readiness for the Spring trade; and when, it is well known, a larger amount of goods is brought in than during any other three months of the year. The attenuated columns foot up the miserable sum of $185,837 99 at Victoria, and $41,459 59 at New Westminster—in all, $227,297 58. Fixing the average rate of duty on all goods imported at 20 per cent, we have in round numbers a total revenue of $46,000 from Customs Duties for January, February and March. Assuming that the imports for the remaining three quarters will reach the same amount (which we are well assured they will not) we have a total revenue for the year from Customs Duties of only $184,000! The Government estimate of revenue from Customs Duties, as transmitted to the Legislative Council on the 18th of February last, was $400,000. The difference between the estimated and the actual Customs revenue, therefore, is $216,000, or more than one-half. At the time the Estimates were sent down we advised the Government not to place too much reliance upon the correctness of its figures. We furnished a statement of the various cargoes on the way hither; the probable consumption of imported goods and the revenue therefrom; and pointed out the necessity for greater retrenchment in the conduct of public business. Our warnings were unheeded. The spirit of recklessness that had seized upon the Government invaded the Council Chamber. All attempts at retrenchment by the popular members were voted down; the "pound of flesh" was ruthlessly off from the lean frame of the body-politic, and the Administration we enabled to acquaint Downing Street that the Council had voted the handsome sum of $700,000 as a mark of public confidence in and attachment to the Seymour Government. The vote, however, was one thing—the squeezing process whereby the dollars are to be extracted, is another. Let the pressure be ever so great, we see no hope, from the showing of the Customs revenue, of any increase from that department; and if there have been as great mistakes made in estimating the probable revenue of other departments as has been made in that, the total amount received by Government for 1867 will certainly not exceed $300,000. Where the remaining $400,000 are to come from, we are at a loss to understand. The taxation cannot be increased; it is already too heavy. There will be no material augmentation of the population for at least a twelvemonth, and as the redemption of bonds due this year and the clamoring of the insatiable interest mch will absorb $212,000, our readers can readily see that less than $90,000 will remain in the colony to defray necessary expenses and pay salaries, instead of the $400,000 that are required for that purpose! Is the end not plain to the merest tyro in politics? Can there be a doubt as to the result in any man's mind? The Government estimated its probable Customs revenue at $216,000 more than under the most favorable circumstances it will realize, and having, like the ambitious hen, counted its chickens before they were hatched, has proceeded to base its expenditure upon that estimate. Colonial Bankruptcy must inevitably ensue. By robbing Peter to pay Paul, it may be staved off a few months longer; but before the close of the year the denouement will take place and the Government must fall! Next to Confederation on fair and equitable terms, bankruptcy of the Government will be the best thing that can happen the Colony. It will insure the early retirement of the present incompetent regime and the appointment of a new set of officials, who will recognize that they are expected to perform some duty more arduous than that of drawing their salaries, and that they were sent to this country to govern it, and not for the purpose of exploring trout streams, following deer paths, or inquiring into the origin of the red man for the edification and advancement of the British Anthropological Society.

The Duties of Jurors.

Editor BRITISH COLONIST:—The interest excited during the last week by the trial of the case of Pidwell vs. Hudson Bay Company, and the disagreements of the jury, must lead thinking minds into the inquiry as to the causes that have produced such an effect. Trial by jury has been the boast of England for ages, and it is to be hoped that the day is far distant when it will be thought necessary to abolish the institution. Nevertheless, it must be admitted that "justice" is often defeated through the very means devised for its protection; sometimes from conscientious considerations, but oftentimes from personal considerations or pecuniary benefit. The qualifications of jurymen and the duties they are called upon to discharge, are frequently misunderstood, and perhaps by none more than by those who, having received no preparatory training through petty or common juries, have yet been placed on the Grand Jury list, from which special juries are mostly taken, under the supposition that they possess more intelligence and honor. The qualification for Grand Juries differs materially from those of Common Juries, but especially in this: Grand Juries dispute the right of any power to prosecute a fellow-being without a just cause being first made to appear to them. They assume the right to control both Crown and Court, and therefore "find" or originate bills of indictment as shall seem right to them. But common juries have a different duty to perform; they are called upon by their oath to decide in the case brought before them according to evidence presented by plaintiff and defendant. They are not the judges of the law, but of the fact; the law is given by the judge, whose peculiar duty it is to define and lay it before the jury. The jury draw their conclusions from the testimony given; if at all conflicting they estimate the credibility of the parties tendering it. For a petty juror to question the law or the application of the law to the fact, is stepping far beyond his prerogative. For jurors to take the bearing of the law in the case from the coloring the feed Counsel of either side may give, would be to dispense with the office of judge altogether. The points of law noticed by Counsel, or exceptions taken, are not to interfere with the action of the jury; they simply find on the facts; the points of law are generally discussed in Chambers on some future occasion before final action is taken in the case. Special jurors are petty or common jurors, but being selected from the Grand Jury list, many of them never had the preparatory training for common jurors, and are ill qualified to serve as such, for they in many instances assume what they have thought to be the right of grand jurors; and by so doing show that they are not competent to decide any case where life or property is at stake. This must be evident to all intelligent men who have attended our courts of law, or who have read the reports of them. I have said that the duty of a common juror is to give his verdict according to the testimony. For this to the world they are held responsible; the judge for the law and its application to the case at issue. But when jurors assume the right—notwithstanding the clear and unbiased testimony of disinterested, intelligent and scientific witnesses and the lucid interpretation of law as applied to the case—to set up their opinions or desires against both law and fact, we are led to seek a solution which must bring us to conclusions not creditable to such opinions.
