PORT DANIEL CENTRE.

The funeral of the late Clair Bisson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bisson of this place was held at the Anglican Church here on Tuesday, Jan. 23rd. The remains were followed to the church by a large concourse of friends. The funeral being the largest held in Port Daniel for a long time. The deceased young man died of the results of his overseas work, having been gassed and severely wounded. He has been in a sanatorium in the United States since his return, having enlisted with the American Army. The parents have the sympathy of all here.

We have been experiencing a series of very bad weather, from the north, storms with high wind and heavy rain.

A carnival was held in the skating rink here on Wednesday, 24th. A large number of good costumes were to be seen, the ice was good and also the attendance. Prizes were donated by the rink committee. The rink was open for girls, first and second for ladies, and same for children. First prize for ladies was given to Mrs. Jones, second to Miss Nellie. The rink was first prize to Mr. Pamphile LeClerc; second to Mr. Arthur LeClerc; children, boy's first, to Master Billy, McPherson; girl's second to Miss Nellie.

"My Boy was Starving to Death"

"As He Was Getting No Nourishment He Was Gradually Wasting Away."

"Here's a story which will interest every mother. Before my boy was born, I was in such delicate health that the doctor didn't think I would survive the ordeal. For weeks after he was born my life was despaired of, so I couldn't feed him and the poor little fellow was left to the care of friends. He was 'naturally' strong. No care was taken of him. He was getting no nourishment from his food. He was gradually wasting away. Finally, in desperation, we sent for a child specialist and he said that my child was dying of starvation."

awaited his return as my sister had written me that I would be surprised when I saw my boy. When my sister got off the train, I could not believe that it was my own boy. He was leading by the hand. I never saw such a change in any child. He was fat and rosy and full of life. He was happy and content. He was a healthy child running round. I cannot believe that he was once a puny, delicate boy."

MRS. PANKHURST ON CONCENTRATION

Noted Orator Talks on Women's Work in Interview With the Graphic.

During the recent brief visit here of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst in connection with the province-wide campaign against "Social Diseases" a Graphic representative secured a lengthy interview with her. Mrs. Pankhurst makes some significant remarks concerning Women's Share of the World's Responsibilities and her place in public life.

Promptly at the hour appointed the famous lady appeared at the door of the hotel parlor. In spite of the lateness of the hour at which the previous day's work had been completed, she appeared fresh and rested and greeted the interviewer with a cheery smile. The reporter hurried to express the hope that he was not depriving her of needed rest after her fatiguing duties of the previous evening but was promptly assured that it was a pleasure to her to be doing her share of the work.

Realizing that the lady before him was the first famous reformer of the fair sex that he had ever approached in a reportorial capacity our representative was almost at a loss as to the most dignified and at the same time, most successful method of inducing a world-famous lady reformer to talk freely on some subject which would be of interest to our women readers.

As a brief as possible, however, he expressed his desire to hear her opinion on a few questions of the day which had some relation to women and in which she would naturally be interested. Although the smile which greeted the lady's face as her reply did not seem especially encouraging.

"I am always interested in important issues of the day and more especially in those that have a direct relation to my own sex," she declared, "but at present I am giving my undivided time and thought to the great problem of Social Disinfection."

The reporter grasped eagerly at the last word.

"Concentration," he exclaimed, "that is a big enough word to form the theme of a lecture."

"Indeed there is," agreed Mrs. Pankhurst, "concentration is a big word and one, the real significance of which is seldom realized by a great number of people. Concentration is essential to success in all human endeavor and it applies very fittingly to women's work of our day."

"Just here," she continued, "is where a great many women workers make their mistake. Instead of concentrating on one or two things and making thorough study of them they split up their time between half a dozen different undertakings. Each undertaking may be entirely worthy of their support but their limited time does not permit them to do justice to each one."

tearful with the noted lady lecturer and expressed her sympathy for the work in which Mrs. Pankhurst expressed her views on a few current topics of general interest. In the first part of the interview which appears below, Mrs. Pankhurst makes some significant remarks concerning Women's Share of the World's Responsibilities and her place in public life.

THREE NEW RECIPES FOR DELICIOUS COFFEE DESSERTS

Coffee is a flavoring that almost every housewife has at hand, and that nearly everybody likes, so why not use it more frequently? This flavoring is cheaper than that that comes in bottles, and may be made in any quantity as it is needed. The following recipes will show various ways of using coffee flavoring in comparatively inexpensive dessert dishes:

Coffee Jelly.
Dissolve in one pint of sugar, clear coffee, three-quarters of a pound of sugar. Pour a half-pint of boiling water over a half package of powder. Strain the mixture through damp cheesecloth stretched over a fine strainer into molds and set with cold water. Serve the jelly with whipped cream. If desired, add a few drops of vanilla.

French Coffee Cake.
Dissolve in one pint of sugar, clear coffee, three-quarters of a pound of sugar. Pour a half-pint of boiling water over a half package of powder. Strain the mixture through damp cheesecloth stretched over a fine strainer into molds and set with cold water. Serve the jelly with whipped cream. If desired, add a few drops of vanilla.

STORED POTATOES NEED AIR.
The diseased blackish area sometimes found in the center of potatoes and commonly known as blackheart, is due largely to insufficient ventilation during storage, according to the potato expert at the New York Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva. Overheating has usually been regarded as the chief cause of blackheart, but extensive experiments carried on by the station and reported in Bulletin No. 486 show that all the symptoms may be produced at will by excluding air from the tubers, even at low temperatures. The trouble is undoubtedly aggravated by high temperatures, but good ventilation aids materially in checking it.

Where the tubers are to be stored at temperatures below 45 deg. F., it is said to be safe to pile them to a depth of six feet without danger of producing blackheart in the potatoes. On the bottom of the pile, if it is six feet high, there should be a layer of straw or other material to keep the potatoes from coming in contact with the bottom of the pile. If the temperature is above 45 deg. F., it is said to be safe to pile them to a depth of three feet if they are to be kept longer than three or four weeks.

Potatoes stored out of doors in pits on the station grounds also developed symptoms of blackheart due to insufficient ventilation. Small outdoor pits are said to be fairly well ventilated, however, and it is not thought necessary to make any special provision for ventilating them. Large pits of storage cellars should have ventilators which extend down into the potatoes, if the best results are to be obtained.

Potatoes affected with blackheart are low in vitality and sprout feebly, if at all. Badly affected tubers should not be used for seed, but those that are only slightly affected may be used as the trouble is not transmitted through the seed.

UNFAMILIAR USES FOR LEMONS
Lemon-juice has an affinity for grease. Lemon from which most of the juice has been squeezed for other purposes will take the grease from pots, pans, dishes and sinks better and quicker than hot water and soap. Brass and other metals can be effectively cleaned by rubbing the surface with a cut lemon after it has been sprinkled lightly with salt. If silverware has been discolored or stained rubbing it first with lemon and later with alcohol and common whitening mixed will give it a high luster.

Never Let a Cold Get a Start
Follow the Good Advice of a London Woman.

The quick direct treatment for colds of children and grown-ups, too, is an application of Vicks over throat and chest at bedtime.

Not only is Vicks absorbed through the skin, but its healing vapors of Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Thymol, etc., are breathed all night directly into the affected air passages. Relief usually comes by morning. Just as good, too, for cuts, burns, bruises and itching skin troubles.

Mr. Lily Waggoner of 136 Elliott St., London, Ont., says: "I am pleased to tell you I have never found anything to equal Vicks VapoRub. My daughter had a terrible cold and sore throat. I rubbed it on her forehead and her head was aching and got her to bed. Next morning she was nearly well. I think it the best yet for colds or chest troubles, also catarrh in the head, as it loosens up the air passages so quickly."

At all drug stores 50c a jar. For a free test size package, write Vicks Chemical Co., 344 St. Paul St., W., Montreal, P. Q.

Though Vicks is now in Canada, it enjoys a remarkable sale. Over 17 million jars used yearly.

INCONSIDERATE.
As long as the grass in a Chicago public park is healthy and green the citizens seem to look upon it as some sort of garden and keep off of it, as the signs command them. When it begins to die, however, their respect for it instantly vanishes.

A man in a hurry started one day to cut across a yellow patch in the upper park, but was stopped by a policeman.

"What difference does it make?" demanded the citizen. "The grass is half dead already."

"Sure," said the indignant officer, "if you had a sick friend, would you be walking on his stomach?"

How to Prevent Biliousness
Doubtless you are aware of the fact that biliousness is a common ailment. It is caused by indigestion, and is characterized by a yellowish tint to the face, a heavy feeling in the stomach, and a general feeling of uneasiness. It can be prevented by the use of a good laxative. I have used many remedies, but have found that only Dr. Brennan's D.D.D. is effective.
