WILL-TO-ACTION

Your intellect compels you to admit the wisdom of being business trained. The feeling of self-protection, the plausible ambition to possess your share of luxuries of life, urge upon you the necessity of business training, but in spite of the wisdom and desire to become an expert in business—knowledge, unless you exercise your will-power now, decisively, the realization of your desires will be postponed. The Will-To-Action, the Determination-To-Do must be exercised.

Enroll now at the

We are taking preparedness courses to train you in business, commercial printing, at short notice. (One month is the most you can afford to wait.)

W. C. T. U.
This department is conducted by the Local Union, and is under the charge of an editor appointed by them. This Editor assumes the responsibility for the statements and articles which appear in this column.

The ninth annual convention of the New Brunswick Provincial Edward Island W. C. T. U. convenes at Newcastle, Sept. 7th, 8th, and 9th. The local W. C. T. U. will provide homes for delegates. Mrs. Margaret Hyslop, Dominion Organizer, will be the speaker and assist in the work of the convention. It is desirable that all unions send a good delegation. The usual convention rates will obtain on the railways. Mrs. James MacWha, St. Stephen, is President, and Mrs. L. R. Hetherington, Newcastle, Corresponding Secretary.

Moderate Drinkers.
It is disquieting to learn from the weekly bulletin of the Department of Health that the sort of folk we used to call moderate drinkers have a death rate far exceeding the teetotalers. Forty-three of the leading life insurance companies, we are told, conspired six years ago to discover the truth about alcohol in its relation to the prospect of long life, and collected the facts concerning two groups, to wit: (a) men who drank two glasses of beer, or a glass of whiskey, or their equivalent, a day; (b) men who drank more, but were not considered by the companies to drink to excess. The mortality of the second group was quite 50 percent. above that of the first.

This distressing discovery suggests several queries. First, will the beer drinkers admit that two beers equal one whiskey? Second, is a beer or a whiskey a known quantity? Third, if an allowance above this wretched pitance is not considered excessive by the insurance companies, where does excess in their judgment begin? Fourth, if drinking to a degree that increases mortality by 50 percent is not excessive in the opinion of the insurance companies, what is the opinion of the insurance companies? Finally, if the moderate drinkers of yesterday killed themselves at this rate, how did the real drinkers of the day before exist at all?—New York Tribune.

Men and women of To-morrow, is for your sakes this terrible war is being fought; our men, strong and brave, risking and giving their lives, that when you grow up you may have a free world to live in and not be slaves.

Germany began the war to get the mastery of the world, to have all the world under her feet, and she is fighting for that end. From the dreadful deeds she is doing, killing defenseless and unoffending men, women, and children, sinking great ships without any warning, in which are hundreds of people who have no part in the war—from all these things you may see what kind of a world it would be if she were to win the mastery.

You may read these things every day in the newspapers, so they need not be repeated here.

But what can you do? How can you help? There is one thing you can do, you can pray.

Pray that our men who go to the front may be strong and well and be kept from harm and wrong.

Pray that the sick and wounded among them may be helped by the doctors and nurses to get well again.

Pray that any who are dying may trust in Jesus Christ and have hope and peace.

Pray that the bereaved friends at home may have God's help to bear the sorrow.

Pray that those who have been taken captive, and are in the enemy's prisons may be kept in health, and come safely home when the war is ended.

Pray that the wicked plans of the enemy may be defeated and their cruel deeds ended.—Ex.

PATIENTS AND PRO-GERMAN DENTISTS

Propagandists in U. S. Lose no Opportunity to Preach Huns Doctrine

There was one method of spreading the pro-German propaganda which the agents of the German Government overlooked, if stories of its campaign are to be believed—and that is through pro-German dentists. Concerning the matter a reporter can speak feelingly, says the New York Times.

It so befell that the reporter had an appointment with a dentist who believes that the sinking of the Lusitania and the Arabic was justified and Wilson all wrong in his attitude, otherwise this one best bet might have been overlooked for all time. That is a very effective method there can be no doubt.

The trouble started when the reporter, who, being a reporter, is supposed to be vered fully in the current events of the day, innocently remarked that he had tried to remain neutral until the Germans sank the Lusitania, and then just couldn't. He used the word "murder" and after that he didn't have a chance. Perhaps the modern methods employed in dentistry are to be blamed, and if such is the case they should be reformed.

Let it be said to the everlasting credit of the dentist that he didn't cause unnecessary pain. He might have lacerated the gum or let one of his instruments slip, or have filled the "wrong tooth, or something like that, but he didn't. He simply talked and there was no reply. He had the platform all to himself and it took 50 minutes to put a simple porcelain filling in that tooth.

"Now, open your mouth wide," he said. "I don't think you have a single tooth to say to support your theory. That's right, open wide. President Wilson is all wrong."

He pressed his foot against a bar and a thing which might have been an electric fan from the sound it made, but wasn't, began to buzz.

"A bit wider, if you please. Why was the sinking of the Lusitania or the Arabic murder? That's it, now; don't you dare close that mouth or you'll get the cavity damp and I'll have to do it all over again. Why should the Government promise protection to its citizens who go on English ships and fail to give protection to those in Mexico?"

"Grrrr," attempted the patient. "Look out; keep that cavity dry," he replied. "Those ships had been used to carry thousands of rounds of ammunition to the enemies of Germany."

"Now, hold that position, hold it." He clipped out a square piece of rubber, punched a hole in it, and fitted it around the offending tooth. "There is no such thing as international law which is binding in this case."

He strung a strap about the head and chucked a small roll of bandage in the mouth—not his mouth—to keep it open.

"Ah," he said, "perfect. Now for the filling."

That ended the patient's chance, if he ever had any, for the strap about the head was tight, the rubber secure and articulation a thing of the past until succor came. There are pro-German arguments of many kinds and he heard them all. They went unanswered; one cannot talk very well with the feet or hands unless one is skilled.

But that strap had to be removed; the rubber square taken from the tooth. Did the patient have a chance? Wait.

"Now," said the dentist as the filling was completed, "it is necessary to permit this crystal to harden. Why do you think it was wrong to sink the boat; why should there be trouble? Why, you know there are no reasons."

He was waiting for something; that much was evident. He buzzed the buzzer to test the unnamed machine of torture in operation; he arranged his tools. The hour was nearly.

"Just hold that position for 5 minutes," he said, "perhaps three, or two. I guess it is all right now."

The bell had rung and a young woman stepped into the outer office.

"Right this way, Miss Blank," said the dentist. "You get into the chair and I'll start working on you."

"You said you would be in a hurry. Yes, Mr. Blank, good morning. You are to come again on Tuesday."

BERNSTOFF MUST LEAVE COUNTRY

Famous U. S. Journalist Says 'People Demand Break With Germany'

Louisville, Ky., August 28.—Col. Henry Watterson, in the Courier-Journal, says:

"It is the last straw that breaks the camel's back."

"Long ago should Count von Bernstorff have been given his passports. Now he must go, and along with him the whole imperial outfit will have to walk the plank."

"The country has suffered enough in its dignity and its peace. Invaded by a horde of secret service agents, who found here a body of reservists already organized and prepared to meet them, there has been no time when Germany was not making war upon us. Her hirelings have threatened us with civil strife. They have threatened us with political destruction."

"The time has come when we shall send the officials away and compel the domestic leaders, the subsidized editors and volunteer spies to know their place."

"It may be that not until we have hanged a few of them will they learn that the United States is a government and that America belongs to the Americans."

"We have neither right nor reason to doubt the President. His attitude admits of no further parley, equivocation or delay. The people en masse demand the suspension of all relations with Germany, and we believe he will promptly answer the summons. Berlin will ascertain, when it is too late, where we stand. To hell with the Hohenzollern and all his agents, his works, his ways, and up with the flag of the republic!"

CHANDLER
Mr. and Mrs. Edward Traverse of Hopetown spent a week in Chandler the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Hircy W. McKee.

J. D. Ross, Esq., of Hopetown was in town today, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. David McLellan.

PULP MILL HAS STARTED OPERATIONS

(From the Gloucester Northern Light)
The new pulp mill of the Bathurst Lumber Co. started the manufacture of unbleached pulp on August 17th, and now has quite a quantity manufactured, which will shortly be ready to be placed on the market.

The quantity turned out so far is largely for the purpose of tests, but it is expected that all the requisite adjustments, that were of course expected in the new plant, will be completed this week, and unbleached pulp will be turned out in large quantities in a very short time now. The plant is designed for the manufacture of bleached pulp, but it will probably be a month or more yet before this much more marketable product will be made in Bathurst.
