Short Talks on Advertising

Do you advertise (God save the mark!) en the backs of restaurant bills of faret Do you put a card in the book "for the benefit of the Fire Department!" Do you subscribe to the "Industrial Progress" book and have you a picture in it as a prominent business man? Does the "Society" programme catch you? Are you susceptible to the blandish-ments of the gentleman who puts beautiful charts in the railway station Do you take "a space—the only one left," in a thousand and one schemes that come Overseers of Poor-Oliver McNayr, John McNayr, William Sprowl, Charles Whit-

Youth is Lengthening.

Scientists tell us that the duration of life s increasing slowly, but not very slowly if we stop to take thought of it a couple of hundred years ago. When a man or woman had reached the age of fifty they were conhad reached the age of hity they were bou-sidered old people. The traditions of our forefathers hang around us to some extent, but the world and society are to-day full of people sixty and sixty-five years of age, many of them seventy, who are just as bright, just agreeable, and just as important members of the community as the younger once: Indeed, the community as the younger ones; indeed the item of age in social life has ceased to b considered, and a great deal of this due to the improved methods of living. It is very often only at fifty-five, or thereaboute a man and his wife become sufficiently from business and household cares to be from business and household cares to be young together. To live a second youth together, in maturity, is very delightful, and what every couple should aim at doing. That is one of the advantages of early marriage, where there is enough earned to rear a family. At fifty the parents, still young enough to enjoy life, have got rid of their brood and are ready to set out together on a new career with enjoyment for their aim. with enjoyment for their aim. - Ex.
