

through a PDN to another user device to move data from one device to another, and to release the virtual circuit when the session is over.

X/400

A CCITT-developed OSI application-layer function generally associated with electronic mail, but including other store-and-forward application needs.